The following rules shall apply to officers upon the Indian establishment at this date, and to those who may in future proceed to India for a tour of service, except in the case of officers who, having elected for continuous Indian service, do not cancel their election, and of any who may be allowed to elect between this date and the 31st December 1904.

Service in India. I. A tour of Indian service for an officer of Royal Engineers shall be five years, reckoning from the date on which he is posted to the Indian establishment.

An officer who, after a term of Indian service, has reverted to the Imperial establishment, as provided in Rule II, will, if again posted to the Indian establishment, be required to complete a five years' tour as before.

Leave out of India shall reckon as part of a tour.

II. At the expiration of a five years' tour, an officer may be permitted to extend his Indian service indefinitely

An officer may apply for permission to revert to the Imperial establishment on completion of a five years' tour of Indian service, or at any subsequent date, giving six months' notice of his wish to revert.

The Secretary of State for India, with the concurrence of the Secretary of State for War, may at any time terminate the Indian service of an officer.

III. During his first five years of Indian service, an officer shall be under the leave rules applicable to the British service in India. After the expiration of his first five years of Indian service, an officer,— Leave

(a) If in military employment,—

(1) May be granted leave under the leave rules for the Indian Army, subject to the following conditions:—

(i) An officer's service for leave allowances shall be,—

When he has less than 20 years' service for Indian pension, reckoned as in Rule VIII, his service on the Indian establishment,

When he has not less than 20 years' service for Indian pension, reckoned as in Rule VIII, his service for Indian pension

(ii) In the event of an officer not returning to India on or before the expiration of any leave granted to him under the Indian Army leave rules, by reason of his reversion to the Imperial establishment, he will be required to refund the difference between the leave allowance drawn under these rules and the leave pay he would have received under the leave rules applicable to the British service in India;

Or,

(2) May be granted leave under the rules applicable to the British service in India, should he prefer these rules to the Indian Army leave rules

(b) If in civil employment,—

(1) May be granted leave under civil leave rules as laid down in the Civil Service Regulations, subject to the following conditions —

(i) For purposes of reckoning the amount of furlough earned by an officer, "active service" will include all "active service" in India, as defined in the Civil Service Regulations, whether passed in military or in civil employment. In no case will any service on the British establishment count for furlough under civil rules.

(ii) The furlough at the credit of an officer will be the amount earned (viz, one-fourth of his active service, as defined in the previous paragraph), less any leave with pay out of India actually taken The furlough thus at the credit of an officer may be partly in respect of service passed in military employment, and partly in respect of service passed in civil employment

(iii) During furlough credited to an officer as above, the furlough pay will be equa to one-half the officer's "average salary," as defined in the Civil Service Regulations, subject to the following minimum rates —

During furlough earned by service in civil employment, £125 a quarter, or his last salary, whichever is less.

During furlough earned by service in military employment, the rate to which the officer would have been entitled under the Indian Army leave rules at the time of taking the furlough had he been in military instead of in civil employment.

(iv) That portion of the furlough at the credit of an officer which has been earned by service in civil employment may be taken before the portion earned by service in military employment.

(v) An officer who reverts from civil to military employment forfeits the claim to enjoy, during any leave granted to him while in military employment, the rate of furlough allowance ordinarily admissible during furlough earned in respect of service in civil employment.

(vi) In the event of an officer not returning to India on or before the expiration of any leave granted to him under civil leave rules, by reason of his reversion to the Imperial establishment, he will be required to refund the difference between the leave allowance drawn and the leave pay he would have received under the leave rules applicable to the British service in India,

Or,

(2) May be granted leave under the rules applicable to the British service in India, should he prefer these rules to civil leave rules.

Note.—The provisions of Rule III, shall not apply to an officer who, under existing regulations, is entitled to leave under the Military Furlough Rules of 1868, and may desire to remain under these rules.

IV. An officer who has completed 20 years' service for Indian pension, reckoned as in Rule VIII, will be considered as an Indian officer for purposes of staff employment and command. Staff employment

V. An officer in military employment, who has been placed upon the half-pay list under the Regulations of the Royal Warrant governing promotion and appointment, shall vacate his appointment, but may be re-employed in a Colonel's, or in a higher appointment. Vacation of appointment

An officer in civil employment will be removed from employment under the civil rules in force. If placed on the half-pay list under military regulations he will not be removed from civil employment unless required to vacate under civil rules. If retired from the Army he will vacate his civil appointment, and can only be re-appointed with the special sanction of the Government of India.

Unemployed pay

VI. A Colonel or Lieutenant-Colonel on the Indian establishment removed from employment, either on account of age or of being placed upon the half-pay list, shall receive, until re-employment or retirement—

(a) When he has less than 20 years' service for Indian pension, reckoned as in Rule VIII, the rate of half-pay prescribed in the Royal Warrant regulating the pay of the Royal Engineers generally,

(b) When he has not less than 20 years' service for Indian pension, reckoned as in Rule VIII, if residing in India, the Indian pay and allowances of a Lieutenant-Colonel of Royal Engineers, namely, Rs 1,002-4-0 a month, and if residing out of India, the leave pay to which he may be entitled under the leave rules for the Indian army, subject to a minimum of £600 a year

Pension

VII. An officer, who has completed not less than 20 years' Indian service for pension, reckoned as in Rule VIII, shall on retirement receive a pension consisting of the retired pay to which he would be entitled under the Royal Warrant regulating the retired pay of the Royal Engineers generally, and in addition such a portion of the difference between the said retired pay and the Indian Army pension belonging to his total length of service as is represented by the proportion his Indian pension service bears to the minimum total service that would have qualified him for the before-mentioned Indian Army pension

In calculating the Indian pension service, any broken period of 15 days and upwards shall be reckoned as one month, and any broken period of less than 15 days shall not be counted

An officer of the Royal Engineers, who has not less than 20 years' service for Indian pension, reckoned as in Rule VIII, and who has served upon the Indian establishment as a general officer, should be eligible on retirement to receive the Indian Army pension due to the rank he held while upon the Indian establishment

An officer of the Royal Engineers who has the necessary service shall also be eligible for Indian invalid pension under the conditions applicable to the officers of the Indian Army

VIII The following will reckon as service for Indian pension —

(a) Service on the British establishment not exceeding three years, provided tha such service has been rendered before the completion of 15 years' total service

(b) All service in India—which need not be continuous—from the date of first arrival in India, except service in India on exchange with a continuous service officer under regulations in force previous to the date of these rules.

(c) Time spent on leave, provided the officer is still borne on the Indian establishment, except in the case of an officer under the furlough regulations of 1868, whose leave will reckon as service only to the extent provided for in those rules.

(d) Time spent under the regulations in England under instruction at a school of Military Engineering, provided the officer is borne on the Indian establishment.

(e) Time spent on duty out of India, provided the officer is borne on the Indian establishment, and provided that, if in "foreign service," as defined in the Civil Service Regulations, contribution for pension is duly paid, as laid down in those Regulations.

(f) Time spent by a continuous service officer on exchange out of India under regulations in force previous to the date of these rules

(g) Time spent on unemployed service on the half-pay list after completion of five years' service in the rank of regimental Lieutenant-Colonel, or on vacation of appointment in a higher rank, provided in either case that the officer at the date of being placed upon the half pay list was borne upon the Indian establishment.

Family Pension

IX. An officer, during his Indian service, will be allowed, on payment of the required donations, to subscribe for the benefits of the Indian Military Service Family Pension Regulations, and to continue to subscribe so long as he remains upon the Indian establishment. On reversion to the Imperial establishment such an officer cannot continue a subscriber, but he will be entitled to receive back such portion of his contributions as may be in excess of the risk borne during the term of his membership. In the event of an officer retiring while subscribing, he may continue to subscribe, provided that he has not less than 20 years' service for Indian pension, reckoned as in Rule VIII, at the date of his retirement, or provided that he retires on an Indian invalid pension; or he may withdraw, receiving back such portion of his contributions as may be in excess of the risk borne during the term of his membership

Cases III and VI. should be compared, also Cases III and IV.

EXAMPLE of the application of Rule III (b) (1), under which an officer of Royal Engineers in civil employment may be granted leave under civil leave rules.

Service of the officer:—

	Years.
At home	2½
In India, in military employment	3
In India, in civil employment	5½
Total	11

While in military employment he had six months' leave under the British service leave rules.

His "average salary" for the last three years was, say, 700 rupees per month.

His "active service" [Rule III. (b) (1) (i.)] is:—

	Years.
In military employment, three years less six months, or	2½
In civil employment	5½
Total	8

His furlough earned [Rule III. (b) (1) (ii)] is one-fourth of eight years, or two years, of which six months has already been taken.

His furlough at credit, therefore, is two years less six months, or 18 months; of which 1½ months (one-fourth of 2½ years, less six months), is on account of service in military employment, and 16½ months on account of service in civil employment

His leave allowance during the whole of the furlough at credit [under Rule III (b) (1) (iii.)] is one-half of 700 rupees, that is, 350 rupees per month, or 4,200 rupees per annum. The rate of exchange at which this allowance is payable in England may vary from time to time At the rate of 1*s*. 6*d* per rupee, at present in force, the allowance would be at the rate of 315*l* per annum

But during the 16½ months earned by service in civil employment, the half-salary rate of 315*l* per annum is subject as a minimum to the rate of 125*l*. per quarter, or 500*l* per annum, which is greater than the half-salary rate, and during these 16½ months the officer would accordingly draw allowances at the rate of 500*l*. per annum.

Also, during the 1½ months earned by service in military employment, the half-salary rate of 315*l* per annum is subject as a minimum to the rate that would be admissible to the officer had he been granted leave under the Indian Army leave rules. The officer in this case having 8½ years' service, counting for leave allowance under Rule III. (a) (1) (i), would be entitled to a rate of 250*l*. per annum This rate, however, being less than the half-salary rate, the officer would actually draw the latter rate, or 315*l* per annum, during the 1½ months in question.

EXAMPLES of the calculation of pension under Rule VII.

Case I.—An officer retires after 34 years' total service, of which, under Rule VIII, he can reckon 28 years as service for Indian pension

Pension admissible under Royal Warrant	£ 450
Indian Army pension to an officer who has 34 years' total service	„ 700
Difference between Royal Warrant and Indian Army pensions for 34 years service (700*l* — 450*l*)	„ 250
Minimum service by which the Indian Army pension of 700*l* can be earned	32 years

Pension payable =450*l* +28/32 of 250*l*
=450*l* +218*l* 15*s*
=668*l* 15*s*

Case II—An officer retires after 31 years' total service, all of which, under Rule VIII., he can reckon as service for Indian pension.

Pension admissible under Royal Warrant	£ 450
Indian Army pension to an officer who has 31 years' total service	„ 500
Minimum service by which the Indian Army pension of 500*l* can be earned	28 years

The officer, having more service for Indian pension than the minimum of 28 years required to earn the Indian Army rate of 500*l*, would receive 500*l* a year as his pension.

No. 5—The following decisions are promulgated for general information, with the concurrence of the Secretary of State for India in Council and of the Secretary of State for War:—

I All officers of the Royal Engineers of the Military Works Services who have elected, or may be permitted to elect, for continuous service in India shall be allowed the option between,—

(a) Continuous employment to the age of 55 years, with final removal therefrom at that age, and,

(b) Removal from employment on being placed upon the half-pay list on completion of five years' service in the rank of regimental Lieutenant-Colonel, with eligibility for re-employment to the age of 57 years in the substantive rank of Colonel

This option is to be exercised within six months of the date of this order, or of the officer's election for continuous service in India.

II. An officer of the Royal Engineers who has elected, or who may be permitted to elect, for continuous service in India shall, on being removed from employment in the rank of Colonel or Lieutenant-Colonel either on account of age or of being placed upon the half-pay list, receive, until re-employment or retirement,—

If residing in India, the Indian pay and allowances of a Lieutenant-Colonel of Royal Engineers, namely, R1,002-4-0 a month; and,

If residing out of India, the leave pay to which he may be entitled under the leave rules for the Indian Army, subject to a minimum of £600 a year.

Attention is drawn to the fact that an officer who joined the service after the 20th February 1886, and elected for continuous Indian service, draws his pension under Article 9, and not under Article 11, of India Office Royal Warrant of the 20th February 1886.

(3) In cases where the sale of trees for building purposes has been sanctioned by the Deputy Commissioner, he should proceed to mark the trees with the guzara agency mark.

(4) While inspecting a village in this way, he should see as many as possible of the stumps of the trees which have been felled since his previous visit and ascertain whether the provisions of the rules regarding the use of the wood, etc., have been observed. He should record a note in the register showing the result of his investigation; and if any of the rules have been infringed, he should take the necessary action.

(5) On the occasions of his periodical visits and whenever he passes through a guzara of any kind on his tours, he should inspect as much of the waste as possible, and if he notices that any trees have been cut illicitly or that any other offence against the provisions of the Hazara Forest Regulation, such as unauthorized extension of cultivation, has been committed, he should enquire into and report the matter at once.

(6) He may also make suggestions for the improvement of the guzaras by sowing seed, planting out seedlings, and for otherwise encouraging reproduction by closing certain areas to grazing generally, or to the grazing of goats and in particular of goats from outside, but no restrictions shall be imposed without the special sanction of the Deputy Commissioner.

(7) He shall discharge all the other duties imposed on a village forest officer under the Hazara Forest Regulation and carry out generally the orders of the Deputy Commissioner relating to the management of the guzaras and the investigation of offences punishable under the said Regulation.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the eight days ending at 8 a.m. on Thursday, the 31st December 1903, based on the India Daily Weather Reports of the period.

During the the week under review the weather has been unsettled over the north-western and south-eastern divisions of India.

The unsettled weather and conditions noticed over Persia and Baluchistan last week have advanced eastward over North-West India. A shallow depression appeared over the Western Desert on the 24th and about twenty cents of rain were reported from Chaman and Quetta. The depression moved eastward during the day and on the morning of the 25th light snow was reported from Kashmir and from the hill stations on the North-West Himalaya. Rain had at the same time fallen on the plains, the principal amounts having been 0·85" at Peshawar, 0·74" at Rawalpindi and 0·50" at Cherat. The reports of the 26th showed that the precipitation had diminished though snow had continued to fall in Kashmir and showers in the sub-montane district of the north-west. The largest amounts reported were.—1·60" at Sonemarg, 0·75" at Srinagar, 0·36" at Cherat and 0·31" at Rawalpindi. On the 27th the precipitation increased again but was generally confined to the Kumaon Himalayas and adjacent sub-montane districts, Srinagar reported 1·38", Simla 0·75", Chakrata 0·55" and Ludhiana 0·40". During the 27th snow fell heavily over the Kumaon Himalayas, but rain ceased on the plains and on the morning of the 28th Simla reported 1·18" (equivalent to about 12 inches of snow), Chakrata 1·62" (equivalent to about 16 inches snow) and Mussooree 0·80". The weather cleared in the north-west on the morning of the 28th and was fine till the 31st when the sky again became overcast and a light shower of rain was reported from Ludhiana and of snow from Minimarg.

On the 29th when the weather cleared in the north-west it became unsettled in the south-east A small but moderately severe storm formed over the south-west of the Bay on this day and during the 29th, 30th and 31st advanced northward along the Coromandel Coast giving equally rainy and unsettled weather to the Madras Coast districts The principal falls of rain were reported as follows —on the 29th Negapatam 2·95", Trincomalee 0·78" and Trichinopoly 0 58", on the 30th Madras 5 72", Negapatam 4·54", Cuddalore 2·49", Kodaikanal 1 93" and Trichinopoly 1·17", and on the 31st Madras 6 18", Madura 2 28" and Nellore 2·09".

At the close of the week the storm in the south was filling up and the rainfall showed signs of decreasing but light rain was spreading northward along the Madras coast and may not improbably extend to the head of the Bay In the north-west the weather was unsettled, pressure was falling fast in Persia and was very unsteady over North-West India. Snow had recommenced lightly in the Kashmir and Kumaon-Himalayas and there appeared every prospect of further snow and rain over Upper India

The rainfall table shows that effective rain was received during the week in the West Himalayas and Sub-Himalayas, the Lahore sub-division, the North-West Dry Area, Baluchistan, the Bellary sub-division, the Madura sub division, and the south of the East Coast, and in these divisions and sub-divisions the rainfall was generally heavier than usual. Elsewhere throughout India there was actually or practically no rain

The seasonal rainfall is normal or in excess in the south of the Peninsula and in the extreme North-West India.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Home Department (Public) under date Calcutta, the 8th December 1899

RESOLUTION

The Secretary of State for India has brought to the notice of the Government of India that it not infrequently happens that natives of India, students or others, who have proceeded to England, desire to obtain passports to enable them to travel to foreign countries in which the possession of the passport is necessary or desirable, and that difficulty often arises from want of evidence to show that the applicant is a British subject and therefore entitled to a passport Appeals for assistance are also frequently addressed to His Lordship by destitute Indians who desire to return to their country and by students who, owing to embarrassed circumstances, are unable to complete their course of education

2 In order to enable the Secretary of State to deal with such cases satisfactorily, the Governor General in Council has decided that it is necessary to press upon Indian students and others visiting England the desirability of providing themselves, before their departure from India, with an authoritative certificate of identity in the form appended to this Resolution, signed by the head of the district (in a Presidency Town the Commissioner of Police) in the case of residents of British India and by the Political Officer in that of residents of Native States For a student the certificate should be signed by the head of his last school or college and countersigned by the District Officer (in a Presidency Town the Commissioner of Police) or Political Officer, as the case may be

Calcutta, December 29, 1903

FIRST GENERAL MEMORANDUM ON THE WHEAT CROP OF THE SEASON 1903-04.

The reports from the chief wheat-growing provinces are all favourable The area sown in Upper India is likely to exceed last year's area by 10 per cent, and in the Panjab may equal the record area of 1900-01 The increase in the Central Provinces is 10 per cent, in Berar 35 per cent, and in Sind 28 per cent In Bombay there is also an improvement, but the information is incomplete The prospects of the crop are dependent on the winter rainfall. If adequate showers are received, a bumper crop is expected in the Central Provinces and a good crop in the other provinces, except in parts of Bombay where damage is reported from locusts and want of moisture

The provincial reports are summarised below:

In the Panjab the district estimates show an area of 7,789,300 acres under wheat up to the end of November. This is 9 per cent above the area finally ascertained last year, the increase being 10 per cent for irrigated land and 8 per cent for unirrigated land These estimates would show sowings equal to those in the record year of 1900-01 The conditions at sowing time were distinctly favourable Good rain fell throughout the province except in Delhi, Gurgaon, and parts of Ferozpore on the 11th, 12th, and 13th September A few scattered showers also fell on the 17th and 18th of September and early in October. The crop is reported to be in good condition

In the North-West Frontier Province the area sown up to the end of November is estimated at 792,000 acres (irrigated 257,000 and unirrigated 535,000 acres), as against 822,900 acres finally returned last year, and if rain falls immediately a considerable area can still be sown Prospects of the crop are average so far on dry and good on irrigated lands, but its success will depend on the winter rains.

In the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh moisture was ample when the wheat crop was sown In low lands it was excessive and sowings were delayed in consequence No rain has fallen since the middle of October last, and the crop is now being irrigated. Germination was generally good and prospects are hopeful so far. In some places the plant is reported to be unhealthy owing to excessive moisture. The area sown with wheat is likely to exceed the last year's area by about 10 per cent

In the Central Provinces the preparation of land for wheat was somewhat interfered with owing to the heavy and continuous monsoon rainfall, sowings were consequently delayed, particularly in the northern districts In the Berar districts conditions were more favourable Although sowings were late, they were successfully carried out, and germination has been good The area devoted to wheat is estimated to be 10 per cent larger than last year's area of 2,272,500 acres in the Central Provinces, and nearly 35 per cent larger than last year's area of 217,000 acres in the Berar districts The crop is now generally in excellent condition, and if a few showers are received shortly, a bumper wheat harvest will be ensured

In Bombay the information is up to 5th December, and is incomplete as sowings were in progress at that date The total reported area for the whole Presidency including Sind is 1,811,000 acres, against 1,400,000 acres at the same period of last year, and the similarly estimated decennial average of 1,680,000 acres In Gujarat the area in the British districts is 243,000 acres and in the Native States 361,000 acres, or 8 and 41 per cent respectively over the average Cotton and other crops have taken the place of wheat in parts of Ahmadabad, Baroda, Kathiawar, and Cutch; but elsewhere larger sowings have been made under favourable late rains. The young crops have slightly been damaged by locusts in south Gujarat and Kathiawar, and have suffered from deficiency of moisture in the north. Elsewhere the condition is good In the Deccan the British districts report 377,000 acres, which is 14 per cent below average, and the Native States report 18,000 acres, but sowings are in progress, particularly in irrigated lands The seedlings have been eaten by locusts in parts of Khandesh, Nasik, Poona, and Satara. The unirrigated crop is suffering through deficiency of moisture in parts of Nasik, Ahmadnagar, and Poona. Elsewhere the crop is fairly good. In the Karnatak the area in the British districts is 212,000 acres, or 21 per cent below average, the Native States report 97,000 acres, or 24 per cent above average. The crop is generally in good condition In Sind the area in the British districts is 484,000 acres which is 28 per cent over average, and there are 19,000 acres in the Khairpur State. Sowings continue in Sukkur and Upper Sind Frontier. The water-supply is good and the crop generally healthy

Report on the Administration of the Meteorological Department of the Government of India, 1902-03

RESOLUTION

The Report referred to above describes in a concise form the work accomplished by the Meteorological Department during the year, and indicates the steady progress which is being made in each of the branches of work administered by the Meteorological Reporter It also marks an important stage in the history of the Department, in that it is the last Report which will be prepared by Sir John Eliot, K.C I E., F R S, who is about to retire after a service of 35 years, during the last half of which he has been responsible for the direction of meteorological observation and research in this country The Government of India desire to take advantage of this opportunity to review briefly the progress which has been made in the work and organization of the Department while under his charge

2 In the report of the Department for 1900-01 the progress of meteorology in India has been traced from the earliest measures taken by the East India Company in the eighteenth century to the present day. This interesting historical retrospect shows how isolated observations at selected places were gradually utilized for Provincial purposes as their value was recognized, and how, eventually, it was found necessary to co-ordinate the observations throughout India under the guidance of an Imperial Department. The first head of this Department was Mr Blanford, F.R S, who was appointed Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India in 1875, who held the post until his retirement in 1887, and who laid the foundation of the present methods of organized and systematic meteorological investigation in India. Since that time the scope of operations of the Department has been very greatly enlarged. When Sir John (then Mr) Eliot took charge of his appointment in 1887, the primary duty of the Department was the collation of observations and the collection of data from which sound conclusions could be deduced It was found necessary to devote special attention, first to ensuring greater accuracy and uniformity in the observations taken, and secondly to expanding the area of those observations With the first object more systematic inspection has been arranged for, the hours of reporting have been altered and made uniform, and instruments of accurate and uniform pattern have been provided In the second direction the number of observatories working under or in connection with the Department and furnishing information for inclusion in the Daily Weather Reports and Monthly Reviews has been increased from 135 to 240, including several trans-frontier and foreign stations, and the co-operation of the larger Native States in the work has been secured.

3. Important steps have also been taken for the wider diffusion of weather information, by the issue at Simla and various provincial centres of five daily weather reports with charts, and by the publication at head-quarters of weekly returns of rainfall The system of collecting marine observations from ships' logs has now been extended to the Bombay shipping. Much has been done too in the establishment and extension of systems of warnings to navigators regarding storms and to engineers and others regarding floods Charts of the normal conditions of currents and winds in the Bay of Bengal and the Arabian Sea were issued in 1889 by Messrs Dallas and Eliot, which are understood to be of great value to navigators, a Manual on cyclones in the Bay of Bengal was published by Mr Eliot in 1890 for the use of mariners, and has been largely purchased or distributed, storm warnings, confined in earlier years to the three ports of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay, have been extended to practically all ports on the Indian coasts, and have protected shipping interests against considerable loss, the whole storm warning system has been brought under general control and direction at head-quarters, and telegrams are issued by the Simla and Calcutta Meteorological Offices for the hoisting of storm signals, whenever and wherever required Warnings of floods and heavy rain were first issued in 1884 by Mr Blanford for some of the principal rivers In 1888-89 arrangements were made to give telegraphic warnings to all engineers on large works under construction, or in charge of railways, canals and bridges, etc., and these have, it is reported, saved the State from considerable loss.

4. As regards the more purely scientific side of the work of the Department, a new observatory has been established at Kodaikanal in the Palni Hills in Madras, where observations in solar physics are being conducted, while a magnetic survey of India has been added to the work of magnetic observation formerly carried on at Colaba At the present time further important proposals for the development of the meteorological and astronomical work of the Department are under consideration, which promise greatly to increase both its scientific value and its practical utility.

5 In collating and comparing the result of the observations recorded, Sir John Eliot has accomplished much excellent work which has been recognized as of the highest scientific value by meteorological experts, and which some years ago obtained for him the honour of election as a Fellow of the Royal Society. In particular he has determined the general features which mark the approach of the lesser and greater rains of the spring and summer as well as of the northern and southern winter rains, and has provided the first satisfactory explanation of the phenomenon known as the bursting of the monsoon Attempts have also been made to prepare forecasts of the coming weather, and although the data are still too few and too insufficiently collated to allow safe conclusions of substantial practical value to be drawn for any long period in advance, the scientific interest of these forecasts has long been recognized In the whole of the time during which he has administered the Department Sir J. Eliot has laboured steadily and successfully, and with the most careful regard to economy, to increase its efficiency, and he now retires having earned the sincere thanks of the Government of India for his long and meritorious services

ORDERED, that the above Resolution be communicated to the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India and Director General of Indian Observatories, and that it be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

Bills introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for making Laws and Regulations, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council, and Bills published under Rule 23.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for the regulation of the possession and sale of all poisons in certain local areas, and the importation, possession, and sale of white arsenic generally was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 8th January, 1904:—

WE, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to provide for the regulation of the possession and sale of all poisons in certain local areas, and the importation, possession and sale of white arsenic generally was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

From Registrar, High Court, Calcutta, No. 2789, dated 31st August, 1903 [Paper No 1].
From Chief Commissioner, Ajmer Merwara, No 1167—690, dated 30th September, 1903 [Paper No 2]

From Government, United Provinces, No 3313, dated 1st December, 1903 and enclosures [Papers No. 12].
From Government, Punjab, No. 1475, dated 16th December, 1903, and enclosures [Papers No 13].
Note by the Hon'ble Mr. Alexander Pedler, C I E, F.R.S, dated 17th December, 1903 [Paper No. 14].

2. Clause 2.—In order to prevent the question being raised as to what substances are poisons within the meaning of this clause, we have made it necessary for the rules to specify the particular poisons to which they relate, and we have added a new sub-clause (3) declaring that any substance specified in a rule under the clause shall be deemed to be a poison for the purposes of the Act.

We have further suggested the following alterations in the details of the matters for which rules may be made under sub-clause (2).

Sub-clause (2) (a).—Words have been added, in accordance with a suggestion from the Lieutenant-Governor of the United Provinces, enabling a fee to be charged for licenses, if thought desirable.

Sub-clause (2) (f) has been expanded so as to cover the safe custody of poisons and the labelling of all vessels, packages or coverings in which any poison may be kept.

Sub-clause (2) (g) is new and provides for the inspection and examination of stocks of poisons kept for sale by vendors.

3 Clause 3.—We have carefully considered the numerous suggestions in the papers, including those contained in a note, dated 17th December, 1903, by the Hon'ble Mr. Pedler (Paper No. 14), that the term "white arsenic" as used in this and the following provisions of the Bill should be defined, but we have come to the conclusion that it will be best not to attempt any such definition. The term "white arsenic" (or sankhiya) is, we believe, well understood in commerce and the arts and industries, and by the natives of India and we fear that the introduction in the Bill of any precise scientific definition, such as that suggested by the Hon'ble Mr. Pedler, might only lead to ingenious arguments as to whether any particular substance, which would popularly be described as white arsenic, was not, owing to some slight impurity in its composition, outside the scope of the definition prescribed by the law.

4. Clause 5.—Having regard to the fact that the provisions of this clause are only to be put in force in local areas in which murder or cattle poisoning by means of white arsenic is common, we think that the penalties for breach of rules thereunder should be such as to be deterrent. We have therefore suggested the raising of the term of imprisonment from three months to one year and the amount of fine from five hundred to one thousand rupees.

5. Clause 6.—In this clause, which provides for the extension to other poisons of the provisions of the proposed Act relating to white arsenic, we have suggested similar modifications to those noted above in the case of clause 2, sub-clauses (1) and (3).

6. Clause 7.—Though not agreeing in the view expressed in some of the papers that the penalties prescribed by this clause are ordinarily insufficient, we think that provision should be made for enhanced punishments on a second conviction, and we have accordingly made provision for this by an addition to sub-clause (1). The new words we have suggested in sub-clause (2) are intended to limit the confiscation of animals and conveyances used in carrying poison to cases in which the offence is connected with the wrongful importation of the poison, the only case in which, as it appears to us, such a penalty should follow on conviction.

7. Clause 8.—In addition to omitting the words "for sale" after the word "possessed" in sub-clause (1), we have altered sub-clause (2) so as to apply the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, relating to search-warrants, instead of the provisions of sections 47 to 49 of that Code, which appear to us inappropriate, to the execution of the search-warrants provided for by this clause.

8. Clause 9.—We have inserted a new sub-clause (1) conferring on the Governor General in Council, and the Local Government, subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, a general power to make rules to carry out the objects of the proposed Act, as it seems to us possible that the possession of such a power may hereafter be found necessary in order to insure the smooth working of the new law.

9. Clause 10.—Sub-clause (1) of this clause, which provides for the exemption of certain classes of persons from the proposed law, has been the subject of a good many criticisms, of which we would notice the following:—

Sub-clause (a).—We do not see our way to framing any satisfactory definition of the term "medical practitioner," and we consider that it will be safest to do as the Lieutenant-Governor of the United Provinces suggests and leave the meaning of the term to be decided with reference to individual cases. We think, however, that the case of veterinary surgeons should be specifically provided for and we have made the necessary addition to the sub-clause.

Sub-clause (c).—In accordance with a suggestion in the papers, we have provided for compounders as well as chemists and druggists in this sub-clause and included the prescriptions of veterinary as well as medical practitioners.

Sub-clause (d) (of the Bill as introduced) we propose to omit. The different suggestions which have been made for the amplification of this exemption have convinced us that it is practically impossible to extend this sub-clause so as to include every class of manufacturer who may fairly claim exemption. Under these circumstances we consider that the better course is to omit the sub-clause altogether and leave it to the Local Government to do what is required, as occasion may arise, by orders issued under sub-clauses (2) and (3).

Sub-clause (e) (of the Bill as introduced, now sub-clause (d)).—We consider that the exemption which this sub-clause confers on tanners and hide-merchants should not be allowed to continue where, owing to murder or cattle poisoning being common, the Local Government has considered it necessary to make rules under clause 5. We have, therefore, subjected the exemption to any such rules which may be for the time being in force. On the other hand, we do not think that it would be fair to deprive the better class of tanners and hide-merchants, such for example as the large and well-known firms which exist at Cawnpore, of the privilege of exemption from the law which is practically necessary for the prosecution of their business, simply because of the existence of crime, for which they are in no way responsible, in the area within which they conduct their business. We therefore propose to confer power to provide specially for such cases by a new sub-clause (3), which enables the authority making any rules under the proposed Act to exempt, by order, any person or class of persons from their operation The new sub-clause is also required in order to complete the power of exemption which the omission of sub-clause (d) of the Bill as introduced renders necessary.

10 In accordance with the opinions expressed by the Local Governments of Bombay and the United Provinces, we have added a clause to the Bill, providing for the repeal of Bombay Act VIII of 1866 (to regulate and restrict the sale of Poisons in the Bombay Presidency) and clause (l) of section 128 of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh Municipalities Act, 1900, but as the Government of Bombay request that the repeal of their Act shall not take effect until the expiry of one year from the commencement of the new law, and as it may be desirable also to give the Government of the United Provinces time to make new rules under the new law before abolishing the existing rules under their Municipal Act, we have provided that neither of these repeals shall take effect until such dates as the Local Governments concerned may notify in their Gazettes.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Civil Courts in the Central Provinces was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 8th January, 1904:—

We, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Civil Courts in the Central Provinces was referred, have considered the Bill and the paper noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

From the Hon'ble the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, No. 10322, dated 18th December, 1903. [Paper No. 1.]

2. It has been pointed out by Mr. Ismay, the present Judicial Commissioner, that it might be open to doubt whether under the Bill as introduced the Additional Judicial Commissioner would possess criminal powers. As it seems to us very desirable that he should be in a position to assist the Judicial Commissioner in the disposal of all classes of work, we have, with the approval of the Chief Commissioner, expanded the provisions of the Bill relating to the Court of the Judicial Commissioner, which (see clause 3 of our revised Bill) is now declared to be the highest Court of criminal appeal and revision as well as the highest Civil Court of appeal. This has necessitated certain consequential alterations in the language and in the arrangement of the provisions of the Bill, which, as amended by us, deals first (Chapter II) with the Court of the Judicial Commissioner and then (Chapter III) with the Subordinate Civil Courts.

3. Our Hon'ble Colleague, Mr. Bose, has also suggested certain alterations in the Bill, which we have adopted. They will be found in clause 8, sub-clauses (1) (b) and (c), clause 14 and clause 28 of our revised Bill and, as they are all concerned with matters of minor importance or of form, it does not seem necessary for us to notice them further.

4. In the absence of any information as to the date which should be entered in clause 1, sub-clause (3), we have thought it best to leave it to the Chief Commissioner to fix the exact date on which the new Act is to come into force and have altered the sub-clause accordingly.

5. The publication ordered by the Council has been made as follows:—

In English.

Gazette.	Date
Gazette of India	5th December, 1903
Central Provinces Gazette	12th December, 1903

6. We think that the Bill has not been so altered as to require re-publication, and we recommend that it be passed as now amended.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 a.m. on Thursday, the 7th January 1904, based on the India Daily Weather Reports of the period.

There has been no change in the general weather conditions during the week under review and unsettled conditions have prevailed at different times over North-Western and South-Eastern India, while over the whole of the intervening area the weather has been fine

At the close of the last week the storm on the south was filling up and the rainfall decreasing, but on the 1st January showers were still very prevalent over the south of the Peninsula, Nellore reporting a rainfall of 3 32" and Madras of 1 24". The reports of the 2nd showed that rain in the south had increased both in amount and extent, Negapatam reporting 5·12", Wellington 2·05", Kodaikanal 2·33" and Trichinopoly 1 85". On the following day, the 3rd, the weather was clearing and though showers were still reported from several stations the amounts were small During this day the rainfall in this area ceased and the weather remained fine till the close of the week

Light snow and rain were reported from the Western and Kashmir Himalayas on the 1st and 2nd, but on the 3rd the weather cleared and the light precipitation ceased. On the 4th a storm was shown at the foot of the Punjab Himalayas and the barometer was falling fast at the hill stations. Rain had fallen in Baluchistan and the North-West Dry Area, and snow in Kashmir, the principal amounts having been 0 51" at Quetta, 0·50" at Murree, 0·33" at Rawalpindi, 0 28" at Peshawar and 0·24" at Jacobabad. Snow continued in Kashmir during this day and rain extended eastward and was reported from all stations in the West Sub-Himalayas on the morning of the 5th. On the 6th the weather was again clear, but the reports of the 7th showed that fresh snow was falling over Kashmir.

At the close of the week there was still no change in the general conditions in the Madras Coast districts, and over the south of the Bay the weather was unsettled and promised further rain, while in the north-west the barometer was falling and apparently further disturbed weather was advancing into North-West India from the westward

The rainfall table shows that light rain has fallen over Baluchistan and North-West India, very light rain in the north division of the East Coast and parts of the Deccan and South India, and moderate to heavy rain in the south division of the East Coast and the Madura sub-division of South India, in both of which areas the normal rainfall has been considerably exceeded

The winter rains up to date have been heavier than usual in the Simla sub-division and normal in the North-West Dry Area, but have been lighter than usual elsewhere, while abnormally heavy rain has been received over the more southern divisions of India.

POISONS BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR DENZIL IBBETSON presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for the regulation of the possession and sale of all poisons in certain local areas, and the importation, possession and sale of white arsenic generally. He said that he had no remarks to offer at the present stage of the Bill

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR DENZIL IBBETSON moved that the Bill further to amend the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Raleigh, the Hon'ble Rai Sri Ram Bahadur, the Hon'ble Mr. Adamson, the Hon'ble Dr. Asutosh Mukhopadhyaya and the mover.

The Hon'ble DR. ASUTOSH MUKHOPADHYAYA said:—"My Lord, I trust I may be permitted to offer a few observations upon the Bill which is now before the Council, for there can be no reasonable doubt as to its importance or far-reaching consequences, though it has not attracted much public attention, possibly because it has not been regarded as legislation of a sensational character

"The principle which lies at the foundation of the Bill involves a recognition of the doctrine that transfers of interests in land should be effected, as far as possible, by means of written and registered instruments If we examine the history of legislation in this country we shall find that the doctrine in question had always been steadily recognised, even before the Transfer of Property Act was passed I am entirely in favour of the principle which underlies the Bill, but I cannot conceal my regret that the Bill does not go far enough in two directions, at any rate so far as mortgages are concerned. Under the Transfer of Property Act, as it now stands, a mortgage can be effected only by a registered instrument if the principal secured is one hundred rupees or upwards; if the principal amount is less than one hundred rupees, registration is entirely optional, and if the mortgage is other than a simple mortgage the law goes further, and provides that no document of any kind is necessary, and the mortgage may be effected by delivery of the property. In the Bill which is now before us, it is proposed that, where the principal money is less than one hundred rupees, a mortgage may be effected by a registered instrument or, except in the case of a simple mortgage, by delivery of the property. To put the matter in another way, the only change which it is proposed to introduce into the law is that, whenever a mortgage is created by a written instrument, it must also be registered, but it is left open to people to create a mortgage, other than a simple mortgage, by mere delivery of the property and without any written instrument. To my mind this does not appear to be either satisfactory or defensible in principle. I venture to think that if we determine whether a particular mortgage transaction can be effected only by a registered instrument, with reference solely to the amount of the principal money secured, we may be rightly charged with taking a narrow and restricted view of things. The position will be made absolutely clear by means of a concrete illustration: A borrows Rs. 50 from B, whom he places in possession of the property, and agrees to pay compound interest at 3 per cent per month with quarterly rests; if he seeks to redeem the security, say, at the end of ten years, he has to pay to B Rs. 1,570 less the profits received by B during his occupation; such a mortgage as this may, if the Bill is passed as it stands, be effected without any document embodying the terms of the contract, if, however, A borrowed Rs. 340 from B and agreed to pay simple interest at 3 per cent per month, the law says that the terms of the transaction must be embodied in a registered instrument, although the amount upon payment of which the security can be redeemed at the end of ten years is practically the same as in the case of the previous illustration. In other words, the amount of the principal money secured by a mortgage, which is taken as the sole determining factor, may, and often does, prove to be the least important element in calculating the extent of the liability created by the transaction.

"I therefore venture to point out that the distinction drawn is not well founded in principle, nor do I think is it satisfactory in its working. I take it, the object of all legislation is to minimise the possibility of speculative and mischievous litigation; there can hardly be room for any reasonable doubt that, if registration is made compulsory in the case of all mortgages, whatever be the amount secured, and whether accompanied by delivery of possession or not, a great deal of unnecessary litigation would be rendered impossible, as soon as the document is proved and the payment of the consideration established, the terms of the contract would be ascertained beyond the possibility of a doubt, and there would be left little scope for the manufacture and application of perjured evidence. Moreover, an exact description of the terms of agreement between the parties, when they are embodied in a registered instrument, is not only beneficial to the mortgagor and mortgagee, but is of the utmost importance to strangers who may have occasion to deal with the property or may acquire any interest therein. The only objection which may, with any plausibility, be urged against the compulsory registration of all mortgages, is that such a provision may, in practice, cause hardship to poor and ignorant borrowers; but I venture to observe that these are precisely the people who stand most in need of protection. They may find it cheap in the beginning to be relieved from the payment of the stamp duty and the registration fee, but in the end they may discover, when too late, that the advantage they have gained is of an unsubstantial character, and that the uncertainties of oral evidence and the costs of speculative litigation have proved ruinous to them.

"I would therefore submit that registration may, with advantage, be made compulsory in the case of all mortgages.

"The second point to which I desire to invite attention relates to what I may describe as legislation by notification. The Bill authorises the Local Government, by previous notification in the official Gazette, to direct that all or any mortgages, made within the territories under its administration or any part thereof, shall be effected only by registered instruments. This principle of legislation by notification is already, to some extent, recognised in the Transfer of Property Act, but I am unable to advocate its further extension. I am fortified in my views by the opinion of Mr. Justice Benson of the High Court of Madras, who has pointed out that the provisions of this branch of the law should be simple, widely known, easily ascertainable and little liable to alteration—conditions which can hardly be realised if we have recourse to legislation by notification. Indeed, if I may say so without impropriety, recourse to this process is an admission of ignorance on our part; it is in reality an attempt to throw upon the Local Government the responsibility which rightly attaches to us. If, at the present moment, we are not in possession of the necessary information, by all means let the materials requisite for our guidance be collected. If, at any future time, upon further enquiry and fuller materials, the law has to be changed as to the local extent of its application, let it be done after the fullest public discussion of the proposed changes in this Council.

"I am therefore unable to accept a further extension of the doctrine of legislation by notification."

The Hon'ble SIR DENZIL IBBETSON said:—"My Lord, I believe, although it is really a matter for lawyers rather than for Executive officers, that there is a good deal that is capable of improvement and amendment in the law of registration in India as contained in the Registration Act and in the Transfer of Property Act. But the Bill that is before us now is a Bill in which we are dealing with one specific point. That point alone has been referred to Local Governments and to the Secretary of State, and it was our desire to effect the particular change that we had in view with as little alteration in the existing law as possible. That is to say, we wished to remove the possibility of a registered document taking precedence of a previous unregistered document, but not to alter any other provisions of the substantive law. Of course, as the Hon'ble Member has just pointed out, a money criterion such as the present law provides is open to objections, but any hard and fast line that is drawn must be open to objections, and the only way to avoid them is to abolish all distinctions.

"But I am not quite sure that the Hon'ble Member is really quite in order in discussing this point at this present stage. He entirely approves of the principle on which the Bill is founded. He wishes even to carry it further, but the point on which he wishes to carry it further is a question of detail. He himself is on the Select Committee, and will therefore have the fullest opportunity of expressing his views, which I am quite sure will have the most careful consideration from the Committee."

The motion was put and agreed to.

INDIAN UNIVERSITIES BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. RALEIGH moved that the Hon'ble Dr. Asutosh Mukhopadhyaya be added to the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the law relating to the Universities of British India.

The motion was put and agreed to.

CENTRAL PROVINCES CIVIL COURTS BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR ARUNDEL ARUNDEL presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Civil Courts in the Central Provinces. He said :—"My Lord, in presenting the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate the law relating to Civil Courts in the Central Provinces, I may say that we have had the advantage of consulting the Chief Commissioner on the principal modifications made in the Bill, and of obtaining his approval thereto. As explained in paragraph 2 of the Report, the Bill now makes it clear that the Additional Judicial Commissioner will possess jurisdiction in criminal cases, and the Court of the Judicial Commissioner will be the highest Court of criminal appeal and revision as well as the highest Civil Court of appeal. The other alterations are of a minor character but add to the efficiency of the legal provisions.

"I trust that the Council may be able to consent to pass the Bill at an early date."

The Council adjourned to Friday, the 22nd January, 1904.

RESOLUTION.

Calcutta, the 14th January 1904.

READ—

Despatch from Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, No. 9 Financial (Funds), dated the 25th October 1900

Despatch to His Majesty's Secretary of State for India, No. 172, dated the 30th May 1901.

Despatch from His Majesty's Secretary of State for India, No. 7 Financial (Funds), dated the 26th July 1901

Despatch to His Majesty's Secretary of State for India, No. 245, dated the 21st August 1902.

Despatch to His Majesty's Secretary of State for India, No. 55, dated the 12th March 1903.

Despatch from His Majesty's Secretary of State for India, No. 2 Financial (Funds), dated the 1st May 1903

RESOLUTION—The Government of India and the Secretary of State have had under consideration the question of the measure and form of assistance that may suitably be given, in respect of their family pensions, to those Government servants who have been eligible to subscribe to the Bengal and Bombay Uncovenanted Service Family Pension Funds and whose subscriptions are not entitled to the privileged rate of interest, viz, 6 per cent, formerly allowed.

2. The Secretary of State was of opinion that it would probably tend to efficiency and economy if a single Fund were established, to embrace all eligible Government servants throughout India, especially if its management were entrusted to a single Board established at Calcutta. This plan has, however, been found impossible of attainment The Managers of the Bombay Fund considered that there were strong objections to the formation of a new Fund and the closing of their Fund to new subscribers. The Directors of the Bengal Fund, on the other hand, were unwilling to admit new subscribers to their Fund under its altered conditions or to co-operate in the management of a new Fund.

3. It has, therefore, been necessary to abandon the idea of forming a single new Fund. In the Bombay Presidency sufficient provision is made for new subscribers, who are permitted to join the existing Fund as a separate class But the Bengal Fund has been closed to new subscribers for more than two years, and there are now upwards of 150 candidates awaiting admission. It is urgently necessary to make some provision for them and for fresh applicants without further delay

4. The Governor General in Council has accordingly come to the conclusion that the only practical step will be to start a new Fund which, at the outset, must be under Government management It is contemplated that this arrangement shall only be temporary As soon as a body of subscribers shall have grown up sufficiently strong to undertake the management, Government proposes to surrender the business to them, leaving the conduct of and responsibility for the affairs of the new Fund in the hands of its owners, as is the case with the two existing Funds The Rules of the new Fund will be framed with a view to facilitate and lead up to this intended transfer, which will, it is hoped, be capable of being effected at no very remote date.

Having regard to the circumstances which have led to the formation of the new Fund, it is considered desirable to conform as nearly as possible to the constitution of the present Bengal Fund. The classes of officers eligible to subscribe will therefore be the same except that non-Christians will be eligible to subscribe the benefits to be secured will be of similar character, subject to what is stated in paragraph 6 below and the Bengal tables of subscriptions will be provisionally adopted. Any modifications that experience may show to be necessary or desirable will be introduced from time to time.

5. The Rules regulating the constitution of the new Fund are attached herewith. The main features of the scheme are that the Comptroller, India Treasuries, who is ex-officio Examiner of Funds, will be entrusted with the management of the Fund. He will conduct all detailed work in connection therewith, subject to the general control and supervision of the Comptroller General. He will be assisted by a Committee of three selected subscribers to the Fund and will attend their periodical meetings The duties of this Committee will be purely consultative, and the decision of the Comptroller General will be final on all matters coming before them. After the first year the consultative members of the Committee will be selected by the general body of the subscribers. Government will advance the money required to meet preliminary expenses and claims in excess of available assets during the early years of the existence of the Fund But Government management will be limited only to such a term of years as may be necessary for the repayment of the advances and for the accumulation of a reserve calculated to meet contingent claims then subsisting

6. The rate of interest allowed on the balances of the new Fund will be 4 per cent for the present. It should be clearly understood that this rate is not guaranteed permanently, or for any fixed number of years The Secretary of State reserves to himself the right to alter the rate at any future time, should circumstances (such as a decline in the market rate of interest) so require. The 4 per cent rate is, however, guaranteed to all who enter the new Fund while it is in force and should the rate be altered hereafter at any time, the alteration will apply only to those entrants who join the Fund thereafter.

7. Pending the receipt of the necessary actuarial calculations it will be necessary to fix provisional rates of subscriptions. The existing rates of the Bengal Uncovenanted Service Family Pension Fund have been adopted, the corresponding benefits being reduced by 25 per cent. The Government of India undertake to increase all pensions secured by these payments by 25 per cent pending the preparation of new tables. These rates of subscription are only provisional and will be liable to revision when the new tables have been framed, but no recovery will be made of any amounts by which the provisional rates actually paid may fall below the rates finally fixed. The Government of India also reserve to themselves the right to reduce the addition of 25 per cent referred to above, either when the new tables are introduced or at any subsequent time for new entrants, and in no case will an addition be made more than sufficient to raise the pensionary benefits to the full amount of those secured by the old Fund.

8. At present Government servants in Madras, not belonging to an Imperial Department, are not eligible for admission to any Family Pension Fund. They have been admitted to the advantages of the new Fund on the condition that the management of the Fund shall remain at Calcutta

The weather has again been disturbed in the extreme north-west and south-east of the Indian area.

In the latter region there has been no storm as distinct and well defined as that which affected the weather during the previous week, but conditions have been disturbed over the south of the Bay and Ceylon, and squally, showery weather has extended northward over the south of the Peninsula. Rain has been received daily during the week at Trincomalee on the east coast of Ceylon and from the 10th onward to the close of the week showers were reported over the south division of the East Coast and South India, the only important falls of rain in 24 hours were 1·36" at Negapatam on the 11th and 1·33" at Nellore on the 13th.

In the north-west the disturbed weather has been more pronounced than in the south. Showery, unsettled weather prevailed over Persia and Baluchistan throughout the earlier part of the week and on the 13th and 14th a large double disturbance appeared over North West India giving widespread rain over North-West India and neighbouring regions. On the 13th Rawalpindi reported a fall of 1·31" of rain in the preceding 24 hours, Murree and Cherat 1·00", Quetta 0·80", and Sialkot, Peshawar, Khushab and Kurrachee 0·25" or more. On the 14th the rainfall was heavier and more extensive—Rawalpindi, Cherat, Peshawar, Dera Ismail Khan and Kurrachee all reported over 1·00" of rain and Quetta, Sialkot, Murree, Khushab, Montgomery, Mooltan and Hyderabad (Sind) between 0·50" and 1·00," while numerous stations reported showers. From Kashmir no reports were received on the 14th, probably indicating that over that country the storm has been very severe and that the snowfall has interrupted telegraphic communication.

The weather remained very disturbed in the north-west on the 14th and rain promised to both continue and extend.

The rainfall table shows that effective rain was received during the week in the West Himalayas, in the Lahore sub division of the West Gangetic Plain, in the North-West Dry Area, in Baluchistan, in the Calicut sub division of the West Coast, in the Madura sub-division of South India and in the East Coast (South) and that in most of these divisions and sub-divisions the week's rainfall was above the normal.

Over the remainder of India and over Burma the weather during the week was fine and rainless

The seasonal rainfall exceeds the normal over the south of the Peninsula, over Baluchistan and over the North West Dry Area and is normal over the West Himalayas and Sub-Himalayas, elsewhere it is more or less in defect.

RESOLUTION.

READ—

Report of the Committee on Industrial Schools in India

In the course of a general review of the subject of technical education the Government of India arrived at the conclusion that industrial schools in India have been wanting in definiteness both of methods and objects, that there has been in them, no clear differentiation between general and technical studies, that they have depended for support upon the casual efforts of local bodies rather than upon any sustained policy on the part of the Provincial Governments, that they have been insufficiently co-ordinated with particular local industries or trades, and that the impression produced by them either upon industrial development or upon industrial education, has been relatively small.

2 In order to bring these views to the test, the Government of India decided in December 1901 to appoint a Committee* to visit the different provinces in connection with the institution of industrial schools, to examine into what had already been done, and with what measure of success, and to confer with local educational officers and others as to the best means of establishing such schools The Committee were instructed that the views which the Government of India were inclined to hold upon the subject, were as follows.—

(a) That the instruction given in such schools should be technical in preference to general, specialised instead of diffuse

(b) That the most useful form of industrial school is a local trade or crafts school, directed to the furtherance or development of a local industry, which appears to be capable of expansion by the application of superior methods or implements

(c) That such schools may be either rural or urban, according as the industry in question is practised in the country or in towns.

(d) That in country districts such schools will best be devoted to the study and development of single indigenous products, in towns to the development of manufactures. and that in towns it may be possible to collect several industries in a single building and to give instruction in diverse branches of industry or manufacture.

(e) That such schools, whether country or urban, should be primarily educational, and not commercial institutions, that they should be, as far as possible, self-supporting, but should not compete with established private trades.

(f) That only such pupils should be admitted as will proceed to practise the industry taught.

(g) That the levy of fees is a proper feature of industrial schools, but that it must be dependent upon the position and means of the pupil and the stability and popularity of the institution, and cannot everywhere be enforced in the early stages.

(h) That it will be a necessary preliminary to the institution of such schools to ascertain what are the industries or manufactures to which they may be applied, in the light of the industrial surveys already made.

(i) That, where it is considered possible to open new or extended markets for the produce of the industry or manufacture thus developed, it will probably be found desirable to connect them with commercial museums, both in and outside of India.

(j) That for the present the best available teachers, overseers, and foremen for these schools should be procured either in India or from abroad, but that in time it is hoped that they may be produced in larger numbers by institutions at suitable centres in India, where the investigations of products and industries can be carried on.

(k) That in provinces where the suggested developments admit of wide or rapid growth, it should be for the consideration of the local Governments whether a separate Technological Department of Government may in time be instituted, for their special supervision and control.

3. The recommendations of the Committee will be found summarised at the beginning of their Report* Many of these recommendations travel far beyond the terms of their instructions, and deal with matters bearing upon general industrial development and research, the regulation of factories, and other miscellaneous questions into the discussion of which the Government of India do not now propose to enter. Upon the subject of industrial education, the Committee have not submitted definite proposals for carrying out the principles commended to them, and applying them to particular schools. They state in the last paragraph of the Report, Part I, that in the absence of a complete survey of industries they have found it impossible to make detailed recommendations as to particular industries and the methods of instruction that may with advantage be applied to each. But they have put forward a series of proposals which, instead of applying the principles set forth above, suggest the creation of a new system resting upon an entirely different basis.

4 The central recommendation of the Committee is that industrial instruction in India should be organised upon the model of the Casanova boy artisan school at Naples This institution aims at giving the boys belonging to the poorer classes of a notoriously vicious population such mental, moral, and manual training as will turn them into good citizens, honest men, and skilful artisans It is a day school at which attendance is enforced for long hours throughout the year, including Sundays and holidays, in order to withdraw the boys as much as possible from evil home influences The course is one of 7 or 8 years from the age of 8 to 15, the hours of weekly attendance ranging from 31¾ to 67 For the first three years the boys receive elementary instruction, including drawing and modelling, and at the age of eleven they enter one of the workshops attached to the school From that time forward they spend their time partly in the workshops—for from 34½ to 39 hours a week—and partly in school The workshops are attached to the school, and are occupied by master artisans who are permitted to occupy them rent free upon undertaking to conduct their trade there, to employ none but boys of the school as apprentices, and to be in all matters obedient to the principal of the school The master artisans work upon their own account for the market, and the school is not financially interested in their transactions Fourteen master artisans are thus concentrated within the school building, who follow fourteen trades varying from bronze-founding to watch-making. The workshops are patrolled by the school teachers, whose duty it is said to be to see that the boys are taught in the best possible way and that strict discipline is maintained Besides working in the workships, the boys learn drawing and modelling in the school, and also receive other instruction compendiously described as desk-work, of which no particulars are given As soon as their work begins to be of value in the workshops, the boys receive wages, and upon leaving school they have no difficulty in obtaining well-paid work as artisans. The cost of the teaching of each boy is stated to be R80 per annum

5. The views of the Committee as to the adaptation of this system to India are contained in their Recommendations, Nos 5,16 to 31 and 41 to 47, which precede the report It is proposed that in the first instance selected factories, workshops, and craftsmen's shops should be registered for the training of apprentices under Government supervision, and that eventually the craftsmen should be induced to gather together under one roof or in one group of adjoining workshops. The inducement offered to them to do so would be monetary rewards, loans, expert advice free of charge, and the other advantages detailed in paragraph 26 of the report. The monetary rewards to the master craftsmen for the progress of the apprentices would take the shape of a system of payment by the result of examinations The apprentices would be housed in hostels and would receive rewards and certificates on the results of the test examinations, and would be given facilities for being indentured to large factories So far the proposals do not provide for giving the apprentices any school instruction. The Committee (paragraph 11) regard the "class system" as generally inefficient, costly, and unsuited to institutions supported out of public funds, but they propose (paragraph 44) that opportunities should be given for the apprentices, as well as for working artisans, to attend voluntarily at classes held at night schools out of working hours Existing industrial schools should, the Committee think, either be converted into supervised workshops working for a profit, and supplemented by night classes for other instruction, or else classified, not as industrial schools, but as schools of general instruction in which manual training forms part of the curriculum

6 The scheme thus sketched by the Committee is one which has for its end the abolition of the industrial schools and the substitution for them of a system of supervision of workshops The arguments drawn from the existing defects of Indian industrial schools (stated in Chapter I) which have led the Committee to the conclusion that the class system is inefficient and unsuitable, appear to the Government of India to be unconvincing In support of the proposition that industrial education should not be imparted in industrial schools an appeal is made (paragraph 15) to the practice of other countries. The educational conditions of India are so different from those of European countries that the argument from foreign precedents must in any case be received with caution. But the Government of India believe that in fact foreign educational methods show no tendency to substitute teaching by apprenticeship for teaching in schools, but that on the contrary industrial

* Copies of the Report have been circulated to local Governments and a limited number are available for purchase with the Superintendent, Government Printing, Calcutta, schools have been, and are being, called into existence in order to supply the defects of the apprentice system, which not only fails to give proper technical instruction but also in many cases cannot even provide economically for the complete training of the apprentices in manual dexterity. Paragraph 11 of the Report claims that the proposal to substitute the apprentice system for industrial schools in India is supported by the general opinion of the authorities consulted. The Government of India are unable to agree in this conclusion it appears to them that the proposal is contrary to the weight of the evidence recorded in Part II of the Report. Reference to the joint report of Mr Giles, Dr. Thomson, and Mr Burns (page 113), and to the opinions expressed by Mr. Giles (page 118), Dr. Thomson (pages 121 and 123), Mr. Burns (pages 126 and 127), Mr Chatterton (pages 166-167), Mr. Bell (page 47), Mr. Lewis (page 26), and Mr. Sly (page 83), and also to the scheme put forward by Mr Pedler (pages 21-23), shows that none of these authorities can be quoted as favouring the substitution of the apprentice system for the system of industrial schools Mention is made (paragraph 7) of an attempt to conduct the Lucknow Industrial School in accordance with the scheme recommended by the Committee That experiment has now been tried and has proved a complete failure, and it has been found necessary to abandon the experiment and to reconstruct the school. The Government of India are therefore unable to find in the arguments advanced by the Committee, in the example of other countries, in the opinions of the expert witnesses, or in practical experience in India, any reasons which would justify them in sweeping away the present industrial schools and substituting the system described in this Report

7 The proposals of the Committee appear, moreover, to the Government of India to be open to certain serious objections—

(i) The principles accepted by the Government of India in respect of technical education are that all such education should rest upon the basis of some preliminary education of a simple but practical nature, that this preliminary education is better communicated as a part of ordinary primary education than in industrial schools, and that the instruction given in industrial schools should be technical rather than general But in the school recommended by the Committee for imitation, there is no such separation. Both general and technical education are given in the same institution and under the same supervision.

(ii) It appears to the Government of India that the value of instruction in the principles underlying processes upon which industries depend is insufficiently appreciated by the Committee In their report, all teaching, other than actual workshop practice, is relegated to a subordinate place, and is to be given voluntarily in night schools And so little importance do the Committee attach to the matter, that they have indicated only in the merest outline the manner in which such schools should be conducted or the courses of study which they should offer Judging from previous experience, however, the Governor-General in Council has little expectation that youths who spend the entire working-day in workshops will voluntarily attend a night school with any regularity, and he has no doubt whatever that systematic instruction in principles is essential to the success of any system of industrial training

(iii) When they come to discuss the practical instruction to be imparted to pupils, the Committee dwell with emphasis upon the marketable value of the work to be done In the judgment of the Government of India, this position is based upon a failure to distinguish sufficiently between a school and a commercial undertaking In communicating their views to the Committee the Government of India expressed their conviction that industrial schools should be primarily educational, and not commercial enterprises The Committee, on the other hand (Recommendation No 43), maintain that such institutions should aim at financial profit. The Government of India agree with the Committee in thinking that industrial schools as at present conducted frequently fail to train their pupils up to the standard of manual skill required for the market, and pursue unpractical methods. It is most wholesome, therefore, that they should be brought to the test of producing saleable articles But this is a very different thing from requiring progressive and methodical industrial training to be sacrificed to the necessity of showing a profit on the work done by the boys, and in so far as the two objects are incompatible with one another the Government of India desire to give precedence to the former.

(iv) Finally, it appears to the Government of India, as also to several of the witnesses examined by the Committee, extremely improbable that in India artisans could be concentrated round a school in the manner proposed, and subjected to control of the kind contemplated by the Committee. Here and there under very special conditions such an experiment might succeed, but it cannot be regarded as offering a solution of the general problem of industrial education

8. While they have felt bound to point out the defects in the Report, the Government of India desire at the same time to acknowledge the useful work that the Committee have done They have collected information, which was nowhere else available, as to the number of the existing industrial schools, with particulars of the trades taught, the qualifications of the teachers, the numbers of the pupils, and the cost of the undertakings Their Report gives a valuable account of the conditions of certain trades, and of the prospects of their development, with suggestions as to the points to which inquiry should be directed The native system of apprenticeship and the working of trade guilds are explained and illustrated in an interesting and suggestive manner. They have emphasised the important principle that the object and justification of the schools must be to impart skill in a specialised manner, and to aim at improving a trade, and not merely at perpetuating existing routine methods. And they rightly point out that these objects can be attained only by the employment of skilled teachers, and of well qualified inspectors having a practical acquaintance with the processes that are taught.

9 As matters now stand, two entirely different sets of principles have been put forward, and nothing has been done to bring either of them to the test of practice In commending the question to the attention of local Governments, the Government of India have no desire to restrict them unduly in their choice of methods They endorse the opinions expressed by several witnesses that it is impracticable to build up rapidly a great fabric of technical education in India at the present time The matter has not yet passed the stage at which many experiments must be tried, and a proportion of failures must be expected At the same time, there are certain broad principles which they think should govern the action to be taken

10 For practical purposes it is most necessary to distinguish between the kind of institutions which will be suitable in great industrial centres, such as Bombay, Howrah, or Cawnpore, where capital is employed in the organization of industries on a large scale, and those suitable for towns in which the local industries are practiced, as handicrafts in small private establishments In the former case action may proceed on bolder and more advanced lines than in the latter, for where there are organization and capital, there must also be intelligence sufficient to appreciate the value of properly trained workers In such places the employers are already convinced, a demand exists which it is the object of Government to supply, and the bonds of caste and trade guilds are generally speaking less strict than elsewhere But even in these cases it will still be necessary to convince the employés of the value of the training which industrial schools offer It is of the first importance therefore to enlist the active co-operation of employers of labour in the scheme, for if the employés see that employers attach importance to the training which it offers, they will be far more ready to believe in its value Moreover, there are signs that an era is approaching of a considerable expansion in the industrial employment of native capital, and this prospect may justly be taken into account as offering a probable opening for more highly trained men In such centres of industry as those which have been named, it seems to the Government of India that it should be possible to set up whole-time schools to which pupils will be admitted after reaching as high a standard of general education as can be exacted The school would be fitted with the plant appropriate to some one trade, and the pupils would receive a course of instruction fairly divided between actual workshop practice and the study of the principles and scientific processes on which the trade depends An instance of such a school is provided by the Victoria Jubilee Technical Institute in Bombay. Numerous examples are to be found in other countries, and where Indian come into competition with foreign manufactures, the object should be, as far as possible, to produce an Indian workman as well trained as his foreign competitor The technical scholarships which Government have instituted, and regarding which local Governments have been separately addressed, will be of great importance in developing such schools, and in enabling the Indian student to study foreign examples of technical training and to adapt them to Indian conditions In the first instance, however, it will probably be necessary to offer scholarships to the pupils in such schools until the commercial value of the training has been established.

11 In the case of local handicrafts, the problem is at once more important and more difficult It is more important, because it is only through the small industries that any real impression can be made upon the industrial classes of India. It is more difficult, because in this case the employers no less than the employés require to be convinced of the value of systematic training as the basis for manual skill. The trades are ordinarily in the hands of guilds constituted on a caste basis; and, in order to succeed, the system of instruction must secure their co-operation. The age at which children begin to work in India is very young, and it is not to be expected that parents of the artisan class will agree to keep their children unremuneratively occupied until they have first secured a good grounding in general education and have then passed through a course of industrial instruction These considerations were doubtless present to the minds of Colonel Clibborn's Committee, and may have led them to their conclusion in favour of supervised workshops. But it is not possible for the State to undertake anything approaching to universal industrial education administered by artisans in private workshops under State inspection. Effort must be confined to producing artisans who will rise to a distinctly higher standard both of general intelligence and of manual skill than can be obtained by the ordinary traditional routine. The supply of pupils for such instruction implies some self-sacrifice on the part of parents, and this must be met by scholarships which will suffice for the maintenance of the pupils while they are being trained.

12 It remains to examine the lines on which a practical beginning should be made. It appears to the Government of India that the two important objects (1) of keeping up and developing a boy's inherited manual skill, and (2) of giving him a general education which will enlarge his prospects as a craftsman while preventing him from falling into the clerical groove—might be attained by starting in selected places half-time industrial primary and higher primary schools, the course of studies in which should be designed with special reference to teaching that accuracy of workmanship in which Indian artisans are conspicuously deficient, and to familiarising the pupils with the best designs and processes as applied to their hereditary trade. Geometrical drawing and designing would therefore form an essential part of the course, and the general education given would be determined with reference to the trade. The boys would spend half the day at the primary school, and the other half in working as registered and supervised apprentices under approved artisans, who would receive a monetary reward for each apprentice on the conditions, (1) that they taught them the trade thoroughly and not merely the elementary processes, (2) that they accepted supervision and control by a Government expert

13. If such a scheme be attempted there are certain conditions which should be strictly enforced. In the first place admission should be strictly limited to pupils whose caste occupation is the industry which the school is intended to develop. The obligation to work in the workshop would probably effect this automatically Secondly, the education given in the primary school should be so ordered as not to fit the pupil for clerical employment. No English should be taught, and the reading should be limited to the vernacular. Thirdly, as mentioned above, scholarships for all the pupils should be provided at any rate for some time to come, and this condition alone will greatly limit the scope of possible effort. Further, if any progress is to be made with such a scheme, an inspector will be required who knows more than the teachers whose work he is to inspect, including the teachers in the workshop.

14 The appointment of such an inspector presents great difficulty. The statement of his qualifications implies that he could only efficiently supervise one industry A single province will not at first find sufficient employment for such an officer, and the diversity of languages will be a great obstacle to his employment in more than one. The Government of India have sought the advice of local Governments and Administrations as to how this difficulty may best be overcome It may be that the experiment should at first be confined to a single industry, and, if so, it would probably be well to give the preference to weaving The Government of India are inclined to think that, if one or more expert inspectors of this industry can be found qualified to promote such a system of teaching, they should be provincial officers attached to one or more provinces rather than imperial officers.

15. Such a scheme as has been sketched above, both for the larger industrial enterprises and for smaller handicrafts must, the Governor-General in Council thinks, in the main depend upon Government and not upon private management. It is essential that the trade and the subjects of instruction should be properly selected, and this cannot safely be left to the chance of private enterprise in the same way as the establishment of ordinary schools where the curriculum is of a defined type. The function of a teacher of an industrial school is far more specialised than that of an ordinary school teacher, and the Government is better able than private individuals to offer secure employment to such a man.

16. Meanwhile, grants-in-aid should still be made for efficient industrial instruction in schools under private management The organization of the existing schools should, however, be carefully reviewed in the light of the criticisms which have been passed upon them Their object being to produce intelligent artisans, the extent to which they attain that object should be scrutinised, inappropriate trades should be discarded, and specialised instruction should be given in one or a few industries, the course of instruction in the school workshops should be supplemented by appropriate lessons in class, which should be differentiated according to the particular industry for which the pupil is intended Where it is found that the passed pupils do not follow the trades that they have been taught, the remedy will be to take the necessary measures to restrict admission to the pupils who are likely to follow the industry, to direct the instruction specially and closely to a preparation for it, and to study all means of providing an easy passage from the school to the workshop

17 The solution of the problem must rest mainly with local Governments, and must be approached by them with reference to the general considerations above presented. They have been asked to be good enough, after consideration of the Committee's Report and the foregoing suggestions, to inform the Government of India of the action which they would propose to adopt and to state the industry or industries with which experiment should be commenced

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Home Department

No. 41.—The following correspondence regarding the institution of State technical scholarships to enable natives of India to pursue a course of study in Great Britain or other Western countries is published for general information —

No. 8, dated Simla, the 9th October 1902.

From—The Government of India, Home Department,

To—The Right Hon'ble LORD GEORGE FRANCIS HAMILTON, His Majesty's Secretary of State for India

We have the honour to advert to Your Lordship's Despatch No 105-Public (Educational), dated the 2nd August 1901, with which you forwarded a question asked in the House of Commons by Sir M M Bhownaggree and the answer given thereto on the subject of founding additional Government scholarships for natives of India who might desire to pursue technical studies in Great Britain or other countries of Europe.

Your Lordship at the same time expressed a wish to be informed of the result of our deliberations in the matter.

2. The question of the institution of State technical scholarships formed one of the subjects which came up for discussion before the Educational Conference held at Simla in September 1901, and the following resolution was then passed :—

"That it is desirable that the Government of India should institute a number of State technical scholarships, perhaps ten in number, with an approximate allowance of £100 a year, in addition to travelling expenses and fees, to be awarded annually in fixed proportions by the Local Governments subject to the sanction of the Government of India, to selected candidates, who should be sent abroad to undertake definite courses of study in subjects connected with industrial science or research That these scholarships might be held for an average duration of two years."

3. In our letter * addressed to Local Governments and Administrations on the 20th November 1901, relating to the subject of practical and technical education, we informed them that the Government of India accepted the recommendation of the Conference as to the institution of ten State technical scholarships, and that they proposed to give two of them to the Madras Presidency, two to the Bombay Presidency, and two to Bengal, and to distribute the remaining four among the other provinces, where technical instruction had not yet advanced so far as in the three provinces mentioned. It was suggested that the selection of the students to hold these scholarships should be made by the Local Governments subject to the approval of the Government of India, that the Universities should have no power of nominating to them, and that no candidate should be considered qualified unless he had displayed in his educational career an aptitude for technical study Subject to these conditions, it was considered that a wide discretion should be left to the Local Governments in selecting candidates for the award of these scholarships We stated our opinion that in ordinary circumstances the period for which the scholarships might be held should be two years, but that in special cases it might be increased to a third year or even reduced below two years; and that the scholarships should be tenable in foreign countries as well as in Great Britain. The Local Governments and Administrations were asked to submit their views as to the details for working out the scheme

4. The replies of the Local Governments and Administrations to our communication have received careful consideration at our hands, and we have now the honour to enclose a copy of them for Your Lordship's information It will be seen that the outlines of the scheme sketched out by us have been generally accepted, but that there is a divergence of views in connection with the details The scholarships are to be given for the purpose of providing for natives of India the higher technical education which may qualify them to assist in promoting the improvement of existing native industries and the development of new industries, wherever this may be possible Technical education for this purpose may be defined as (a) the study of the scientific methods and principles underlying the practice of any handicraft, industry, or profession, (b) the application of these methods and principles to the practice of the handicraft, industry, or profession in question Law, Medicine, Forestry and Veterinary science being already provided for, are not included among the subjects to be studied by the holders of these technical scholarships, and Agriculture does not fall within the scope of the present scheme The scholarships will be awarded by the Government of India upon the recommendation of the Local Governments, and will for the present, as already stated, be distributed as follows — Two annually to the Madras Presidency, two to the Bombay Presidency, two to Bengal, and the remaining four among other Local Governments and Administrations

5. We do not propose to prescribe the particular industries for the encouragement of which particular provinces should give scholarships The Local Government or Administration which is asked to recommend a candidate, will consider what industries are of importance in the province, and which of them may best be encouraged by scholarships, taking care to connect the scholarship scheme with the system of technical and industrial education in the province In determining the choice of an industry Local Governments should in our opinion obtain assistance from the mercantile and industrial public, and take all measures that appear to them to be possible and expedient for interesting the influential sections of that public in the scheme. Industries in which native capital and enterprise are engaged or likely to be engaged, will be particularly appropriate for selection It should be borne in mind that men who have received an expensive European training can be employed only upon such industries as are susceptible of being organized upon a considerable scale

6. In each case in which a Local Government recommends a scholarship, it will be necessary for it to support its selection by giving the Government of India some account of the state of the particular industry which it is intended to promote and some comparison with other industries which might be considered eligible for encouragement. In determining the industry to be studied and choosing the man recommended for the scholarship, the Local Governments and Administrations will be required to bear in mind the importance of ensuring that the returned scholar shall find scope for his skill and ability. It has been proposed on the one hand that such scholars before they are appointed should be placed under engagement to serve Government on their return. On the other hand, it has been suggested that private firms should be asked to guarantee their employment, and that the scholars should be reciprocally bound by engagement to such firms. We consider that the holder of one of these scholarships should not be bound by any such engagements, but that the prospect of his chances of employment after the completion of his studies should be well weighed when he is selected, and that upon his return the choice of his career should be in the first instance determined by his own inclination. If the early results of the scheme are successful, we think that the services of the returned scholars are sure to be in good demand, and that, failing private employment, Government will be glad to turn their abilities to account as teachers in industrial schools or in other capacities connected with the improvement of local industries.

7 It is our intention to make it a condition of the grant of these scholarships that no candidate is to be selected for recommendation to one of them on the result of competitive examination either open or limited It is desirable that, in selecting the industry to which they are to be directed, Local Governments should give the widest possible publicity, through such channels as they think fit, to their intention to nominate scholars, and that they should take such advice as they need from persons cognizant of the industry and from officers and others connected with technical education In making the selection they should bear in mind the fact that it will be necessary for the student to have a competent knowledge of English, or of the language of any other country to which he is to be sent, and they should also be guided by considerations of his capacity, intelligence, practical interest in the industry, and the assurance which they feel that he will continue to devote himself to it on his return to India These are matters which cannot be decided by competition, and we intend that it should be made clear from the beginning that these scholarships are not to be regarded as prizes, for which everyone has a right to claim an equal opportunity of competing It is not necessary to lay down more precise rules as to the kind of general education which the scholar is to have received. Governments will act on their own discretion, having regard to the above considerations As a general rule a scholar before being nominated should have received the best technical education available in the province in the particular industry which he has to study. The standard of this education differs in different industries, and each may be considered on its own merits. Even if the standard of technical education in a particular industry in a province is low, the scholar may be nominated if he has availed himself of the best facilities obtainable, and shows an interest in the industry No age limit will be laid down for scholars and none should be generally laid down by the Governments, but an age limit may at the discretion of a Local Government be fixed for any particular scholarship for which they invite applications The particular industry to be studied will, as is stated above, be specified by the Local Governments in nominating a scholar, but they will hardly be in a position to define minutely the course of study to be pursued nor will they ordinarily be in possession of the most recent information as to the facilities for such studies existing in England and elsewhere We are inclined to think therefore that the best plan will be to leave these matters to be settled by Your Lordship when the scholar arrives in England, and if this view is accepted we will arrange that timely information shall be submitted to you as to the probable date of each scholar's arrival and the subject which he is required to study We propose that those scholars who study in England should be under Your Lordship's control and we trust that in the case of those who elect to pursue their studies on the Continent or in America Your Lordship may be able to make suitable arrangements for their supervision. The conditions under which they will hold their scholarships will be similar to those laid down for Government of India scholarships Progress reports will be required upon them from time to time, and power will be retained to cancel a scholarship and to send the scholar back to India if his progress is not satisfactory.

8. Should the principles which we have advocated in connection with the institution of these technical scholarships meet with Your Lordship's acceptance, we trust the scheme for the establishment of ten scholarships of £100 a year may receive Your Lordship's early sanction.

Public, No. 65.

India Office, London, 29th May 1903.

To His Excellency the Right Honourable the Governor General of India in Council.

My Lord,

Proposed Technical Scholarships for Natives of India studying in Great Britain or other Western countries.

On receipt of the letter of your Excellency in Council No 8 (Education), dated the 9th October last, in which you proposed the establishment of ten State technical scholarships, to be awarded annually to natives of India studying in Great Britain or other Western countries, I thought it desirable to obtain the opinion on the scheme of the Board of Education.

2. I enclose a copy of the letter addressed to the Board, and of their reply thereto.

3. It is not necessary for me to assure your Excellency that the principle of the scheme, which applies to India a system which has, I understand, proved very successful in the case of Japan, and more recently in that of Siam, meets with my full approval, and that I cordially sympathise with the desire of your Government to further the development of Indian industries by providing promising young men with the means of studying the progress which has been made in industries and arts in the most advanced countries of the West. It appears to me, however, that before the details of the scheme can be finally settled there are some points which call for further examination.

4. Your Excellency will observe that the Board of Education express a doubt, which I share, whether a scholarship of 100*l* a year, in addition to fees and travelling expenses, will fully meet the expenses of a student in this country I observe that in 1887, when dealing with the existing Government scholarships of 200*l* a year, the Government of India found it necessary to issue a public warning* that "while the scholarship allowance of 200*l*. a year is sufficient to cover the necessary expenses of college life at Oxford or Cambridge, it is very desirable, if not absolutely necessary, that the scholars should have some small private resources of their own to meet expenses in the vacation and other general expenses which are scarcely avoidable." And it appears to me that the holders of the proposed technical scholarships will be in the same case. I would therefore ask you to consider whether it is not necessary to fix some higher limit to the scholarship allowance

* See Home Department Education Proceedings, March 1887, p. 60.

5 I observe from your fifth paragraph that it is proposed to connect the scholarship scheme with the system of technical and industrial education in the various Provinces, which will no doubt be established as the result of your deliberations on the report of the Industrial Schools Committee I do not gather from the replies of the various Local Governments which you forward that there is any large supply of qualified candidates for the scholarships as yet forthcoming, at any rate in the two Provinces which are believed to be industrially most advanced, Bombay and Bengal, and I should suppose that it would take some time to bring into existence a class of students, trained in properly equipped technical schools in India, who would be ready to take up the scholarships when established Before, therefore, sanctioning any definite annual number of scholarships to be awarded, I think it would suffice to announce the readiness of Government to give a scholarship or scholarships if promising and well-qualified candidates present themselves in some particular branch of industry In other words, it appears to me that the scheme should for the present be worked experimentally, its further development being left for consideration when your technical institutions in India have begun to produce a class of students who might be expected to profit by its extension

6 I notice that you exclude from the scope of the scheme Law, Medicine, Forestry and Veterinary Science, as being already provided for, and certainly there is no lack of Indian students who, without the inducement of a scholarship, visit this country in order to study the first two of these subjects Engineering is not mentioned among the excluded subjects, you are, however, aware that Indian candidates present themselves in considerable numbers for entry to the Coopers Hill College, while the Engineering Colleges in India are, I presume, capable of giving instruction of a high class in that subject

7 I shall be ready, with the advice of the Board of Education, to undertake the selection of the course of technological study best fitted to the needs of any particular scholar. Your Excellency will observe that the Board, in the concluding paragraph of their letter, ask that they may, in any case in which their advice is desired, be furnished with full particulars as to the past educational experience and future requirements of each scholarship holder Should any student elect to pursue his studies on the Continent or in America, it would probably be found possible to obtain from the head of the institution where he is studying a periodical report on his progress and conduct, but no more extended supervision by this Office would in such a case be practicable, and I should hope that the persons selected for the scholarships would ordinarily be of such formed character and habits, and of such an age, that detailed tutelage would in their case be unnecessary.

I have the honour to be,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's most obedient, humble Servant,

GEORGE HAMILTON

ENCLOSURES.

Enclosure No 1

India Office to Board of Education

J and P. 2392/02 India Office,

Sir, 25th February 1903

I am directed by Lord George Hamilton to enclose, for the information of the Board of Education, a copy of a Despatch* which has been received from the Government of India, proposing the establishment of ten scholarships annually for natives of India who may desire to pursue technical studies in Great Britain or other European countries.

* No 8 dated the 9th October 1902, with enclosures

It will be seen that the Government of India, while contemplating that the particular industry to be studied by a scholarship holder shall be determined in India by the Local Government before he is nominated, propose to leave to this Office the prescription of a course of study, with reference to the facilities for such studies existing in England and elsewhere They propose also that special arrangements should be made for the supervision of any students who may elect to pursue their studies on the Continent or in America. The value of the scholarships is fixed at 100*l* a year, in addition to the fees payable to the institutions where the scholars will study, and travelling expenses

Lord George Hamilton would be much obliged if the Board of Education would favour him with their advice on the proposed scheme, and in particular in regard to those points in it which are enumerated in the preceding paragraph There is not at present in this Department any official who could be made responsible for selecting a course of study for an Indian holding a technical scholarship, and his Lordship hopes that if the scheme is brought into operation he may count on the assistance of the Board of Education especially in this respect.

It is understood that the system of deputing students to Europe for technical study has been adopted with much success by the Government of Japan and more recently by that of Siam; and it is probable that the experience gained in these cases (if known to the Board of Education) would afford some criterion of the results which may be expected from the establishment of a similar scheme for natives of India

Lord George Hamilton would be glad to learn whether, in the opinion of the Board, an allowance of 100*l* annually (in addition to fees and travelling expenses) is likely to suffice for the support of an Indian in this country while undergoing a course of study.

I have, etc.,
HORACE WALPOLE.

The Secretary,
Board of Education.

Enclosure No 2.
Board of Education to India Office.

Whitehall, London, S. W.
21st April 1903

SIR,

In reply to Sir H. Walpole's letter of February 25th, I am directed by the Board of Education to state that they regard the proposed establishment of ten annual travelling scholarships for natives of India who shall pursue technological studies in Great Britain or some other Western country as likely to prove of benefit to Indian Industry and Education.

The Board note that the Government of India in their Despatch of October 1902 contemplate cases in which the scholar will elect to pursue his studies in America, while in your letter of 25th February last the sphere of study is limited to Great Britain or other European countries If this discrepancy is due to inadvertence, the Board would take this opportunity of saying that in their opinion some of the scholars might derive special advantage from a course of study in America supplementing a period of residence in Europe

If requested by the Secretary of State for India, the Board of Education, though unable to undertake responsibility for the personal supervision of the students, will be happy to give such advice as is within their competence, from time to time, as to the course of technological study best fitted to the needs of any particular scholar

In reply to the question of the Secretary of State as to the sufficiency of the proposed annual allowance, the Board are of opinion that 100*l* annually (in addition to fees and travelling expenses) would not be adequate to the student's needs, and they believe that this view is confirmed by the experience of those who have organised similar scholarship-systems for the Governments of Japan and Siam, but, of course, much would depend on the social status of the scholars and on the country to which they were sent

In this connection the Board of Education would be glad to receive more precise information as to the exact educational standing of the proposed scholarship holders The Board are at present not clear whether it is contemplated that these scholars should pursue technical studies of the highest grade, or of an intermediate character, or whether they might even be of artizan rank, but it is presumed that the reference is to the needs of the first two classes In any case in which the Board might be called upon to advise with regard to any student they would desire to be furnished with a statement of his past educational experience and future requirements.

I have, etc,
ROBERT L. MORANT.

The Under Secretary of State for India.

No. 565-572, dated Simla, the 21st September 1903

From—W. S. MARRIS, Esq, Under Secretary to the Government of India,
To—Local Governments and Administrations

I am directed to forward, for the information of — the Governor in Council / His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, / your information — a copy of the papers noted on the margin, regarding the institution of State technical scholarships to enable natives of India to pursue a course of study in Great Britain or other Western countries.

Despatch to the Secretary of State, No. 8, dated the 9th October 1902
Despatch from the Secretary of State, No. 65, dated the 29th May 1903, and enclosure.

2. In view of the doubts expressed by the Board of Education and the Secretary of State as to the sufficiency of the proposed amount of the scholarships, the Government of India think that it would be well to fix their value at £150 a year. As has been pointed out, however, the question depends largely upon the status of the scholar, and on the country to which he proceeds for study and if in any particular case the Local Government regards the sum now named as insufficient the Governor General in Council will be prepared to consider proposals for increasing it

3. Instead of announcing the intention to award a definite number of scholarships annually, the Government of India agree with the Secretary of State that it will for the present suffice to intimate the readiness of Government to give a scholarship or scholarships if promising and well-qualified candidates present themselves in some particular branch of industry. They further accept His Lordship's suggestion that Engineering should be excluded from the scope of the proposals

4. Subject to the foregoing modifications, the Despatch of 9th October 1902 to the Secretary of State indicates the conditions under which the Government of India desire to introduce experimentally a scheme of technical scholarships The information now before them suggests that the textile industry in Bombay and the mining industry in Bengal will be found to offer the most favourable fields for the initiation of the experiment.

The Government of India will, however, be glad to consider any suggestions which the Government of / you may have to offer for the establishment of a technical scholarship in any other branch of industry which can thereby be developed, if a suitable candidate can be found.

H. H. RISLEY,

Secretary to the Government of India.

ACT No. I OF 1904.

An Act to provide for the regulation of the possession and sale of all poisons in certain local areas, and the importation, possession and sale of white arsenic generally

WHEREAS it is expedient to make provision for regulating the possession and sale of all poisons in certain local areas, and the importation, possession and sale of white arsenic throughout the whole of British India; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Poisons Act, 1904; and

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

Poisons generally.

Power to regulate possession for sale and sale of any poison in certain areas.

2. (1) Subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, the Local Government may, by rule, regulate within the limits of any municipality or cantonment the possession for sale and the sale, whether wholesale or by retail, of any specified poison.

(2) In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the power conferred by sub-section (1), rules made thereunder may provide for, amongst other matters,—

(a) the grant of licenses to possess any specified poison for sale wholesale or by retail, and the fixing of the fee (if any) to be charged for such licenses;

(b) the classes of persons to whom alone such licenses may be granted;

(c) the classes of persons to whom alone any such poison may be sold;

(d) the maximum quantity of any such poison which may be sold to any one person;

(e) the maintenance by vendors of any such poison of registers of sales, the particulars to be entered in such registers, and the inspection of the same;

(f) the safe custody of such poisons and the labelling of the vessels, packages or coverings in which any such poison is sold or possessed for sale; and

(g) the inspection and examination of any such poison when possessed for sale by any such vendor.

(3) Any substance specified as a poison in a rule made under this section shall be deemed to be a poison for the purposes of this Act.

White Arsenic.

Power to prohibit importation into British India of white arsenic except under license.

3. The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, prohibit, except under and in accordance with the conditions of a license, the importation of white arsenic into British India, and may, by rule, regulate the grant of licenses and prescribe the conditions to be imposed thereby under this section.

Power to regulate possession for sale and sale of white arsenic throughout province

4. (1) Subject to the control of the Governor General in Council, the Local Government may, by rule, regulate within the whole or any part of the territories under its administration the possession for sale and the sale, whether wholesale or by retail, of white arsenic.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the power conferred by sub-section (1), rules made thereunder may provide, amongst other matters, for all or any of the matters specified in section 2, sub-section (2).

(3) Rules made under sub-section (1) may further provide that no person shall sell any powdered white arsenic unless the same is, before the sale thereof, mixed with soot, indigo or Prussian blue in the proportion of half an ounce of soot, indigo or Prussian blue at least to one pound of the white arsenic, and so in proportion for any greater or less quantity:

Provided that, where such arsenic is stated by the purchaser to be required for some purpose for which such admixture would, according to the representation of the purchaser, render it unfit, such arsenic may be sold, without such admixture, in a quantity of not less than ten pounds at any one time.

Power to regulate possession of white arsenic in certain tracts

5. (1) The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, may further, by rule, regulate the possession of white arsenic in any local area in which murder by poisoning with that drug or the offence of mischief by poisoning cattle therewith appears to it to be of such frequent occurrence as to render restrictions on the possession thereof desirable.

(2) In making any rule under sub-section (1), the Local Government may direct that any breach thereof shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one year, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both, together with confiscation of the white arsenic in respect of which the breach has been committed, and of the vessels, packages or coverings in which the same is found.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Hon'ble RAI SRI RAM BAHADUR asked the following questions:—

"1. Will the Government be pleased to state why in the scheme published in the last Calcutta Gazette Japan is not included among the foreign countries to which Indian students proceeding to acquire proficiency in the higher technical education will be granted State scholarships?

"2. Taking into consideration the importance of agriculture in this country, will the Government be pleased to state why the study of Agricultural Science has been excluded from the scope of this scheme?

"3. Does the Government contemplate making any separate arrangement, for the acquisition of Agricultural Science by Indian students in foreign countries where that branch of science has made great advancements?

"4. Will the Government be pleased to state what other branches of industry besides mining will be open for study in foreign countries to the scholarship-holders?

"5. Will the Government be pleased to state whether the scope of the scheme will be so extended as to enable other Local Governments to award similar scholarships to Indian students of their respective Provinces?"

The Hon'ble SIR DENZIL IBBETSON replied as follows:—

"The Hon'ble Member has apparently failed to realise that the notification by the Director of Public Instruction Bengal to which he refers does not purport to set forth the whole scheme which has been sanctioned by the Government of India, but only so much of it as affects Bengal in the immediate present. The papers on the subject will be published in tomorrow's Gazette of India, which will set forth the whole scheme, and will in large part answer the Hon'ble Member's questions.

"The Government of India doubt whether the training which it is desired to impart can be obtained as well in Japan as in a Western country. Japan is herself still learning of the West; and it is desirable that our students should obtain their knowledge at first, rather than at second hand. The language difficulty would also place obstacles in the way of students from India. I may inform the Hon'ble Member that the Government have recently deputed some of their Educational officers to study on the spot the manner in which Japan has developed instruction in Western knowledge under Eastern conditions.

"Agriculture has been excluded from the present scheme for several reasons. In the first place, the primary object of the scheme is, by encouraging and facilitating the development of arts and industries other than agriculture, more especially by the aid of indigenous capital and enterprise, to provide diversity of employment for the natives of the country, and to relieve the pressure upon the land which results from their energies being almost wholly confined to agriculture. In the second place, the present scheme is far too narrrow, if agriculture is to be included among its objects. Moreover, it is believed that the science of agriculture will be studied by natives of India to greater advantage in their own country than in countries where the conditions differ widely from those obtaining here. As I explained in the course of the debate upon the last Budget, it is intended to create a high-class Agricultural College at Púsa; and we do not propose to extend the present scheme so as to include agriculture, at any rate until we know what Púsa will give us.

"It will be seen from the complete papers, when published, that the scheme is not limited either to mining or to Bengal."

The Hon'ble DR. ASUTOSH MUKHOPADHYAYA asked the following questions:—

"I. Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that in or about the year 1892, it was proposed to make over the Chittagong Division to the Assam Administration, and the proposal was subsequently dropped? If so, will the Government be pleased to publish all the papers relating to this matter, including the correspondence, if any, that passed between the Government of India, the Governments of Bengal and Assam and the Calcutta High Court?

"II. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that in or about the year 1896, the question of the transfer of the Chittagong Division to the Assam Administration was revived and referred by the Government of India to the then Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal and the then Chief Commissioner of Assam? If so, will the Government be pleased to direct that their reports be published or laid on the table?

"(b) Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is true that the Calcutta High Court and all the District Judges in the Chittagong Division were consulted on the subject of the proposed transfer in or about the year 1896? If so, will the Government be pleased to direct that their opinions be published or laid on the table?

"III. Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that Mr. (now Sir Henry) Cotton, when Chief Commissioner of Assam, opposed the project of transferring the Chittagong Division to the Assam Administration? If so, will the Government be pleased to direct that the opinion recorded or the report submitted by Mr. Cotton on this matter be published or laid on the table?

"IV. Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is true that in or about the year 1896, when the Chittagong Division was proposed to be transferred to the Assam Administration, Dacca and Mymensingh were not contemplated to be included in the scheme of transfer? If so, will the Government be pleased to state the specific reasons which have led them to change their views since 1896 and to propose their transfer in 1903?

"V. Will the Government be pleased to state whether the Government of Bengal, the Government of Assam and the Calcutta High Court were consulted before the scheme of transfer now under consideration was framed? If so, will the Government be pleased to publish the opinions submitted by them? If not, will the Government be pleased to consider the desirability of consulting the said authorities before further action is taken in the matter?

"VI. (a) Will the Government be pleased to state whether the financial effect of the proposed scheme of transfer of the Chittagong Division and of the Districts of Dacca and Mymensingh to the Assam Administration has been considered?

"(b) Will the Government be pleased to state what reduction will be effected in the expenditure annually incurred by the Government of Bengal if the scheme of transfer referred to in clause (a) be carried out?

"(c) Will the Government be pleased to state by what amount the gross annual receipts of the Government of Bengal would be reduced if the scheme of transfer referred to in clause (a) be carried out?

"(d) If the figures furnished in answer to clauses (b) and (c) show that the aforesaid scheme of transfer will result in a financial loss to the Government of Bengal, will the Government be pleased to state how it is proposed to recoup that loss?

"VII. Has the attention of the Government been drawn to a paragraph in the Amrita Bazar Patrika of the 14th January, 1904, in which it is stated that an alternative scheme of re-distribution of territory is under the consideration of the Government according to which, not only the Districts of Dacca and Mymensingh and the Chittagong Division are to be transferred to the Assam Administration, but also the Districts of Barisal, Faridpur, Jessore and Khoolna and the Rajshahi Division, excluding Darjiling, Jalpaiguri and Cooch Behar? If no such scheme is before the Government will the Government be pleased to contradict the statement referred to? If any alternative scheme is under the consideration of the Government will the Government be pleased to publish the details of such scheme and the reasons therefor?

"VIII. Will the Government be pleased to state whether it is intended that the portion of the Chota Nagpur Division which is proposed to be transferred to the Central Provinces Administration should, by such transfer, be placed out of the jurisdiction of the Calcutta High Court? If so, will the Government be pleased to state the reasons?"

The Hon'ble SIR DENZIL IBBETSON replied as follows:—

"The attention of the Government of India was directed, in 1892, to territorial re-adjustments on the Eastern frontier of Bengal, in connection with the administration of the Lushai Hills. The first proposal was to transfer the Chittagong district to Assam as soon as the revision of settlement then in progress was finished, and the Assam-Bengal railway was nearing completion. The transfer of the whole Chittagong division was also considered; and during the discussion which ensued, it was proposed to transfer the districts of Dacca and Mymensingh as well. Various authorities were consulted; and in 1897 the proposal was laid aside for the time being. The Government of India do not propose to publish the opinions then recorded, which were written for their information only, and not with a view to publication.

"If the Hon'ble Member will refer to the papers which have been published on the subject, he will see that the Governments of the provinces concerned have already been consulted. Their replies have not yet been received The Government of India do not propose for the present to consult the High Court.

"Any consideration of financial details, such as are referred to in Question VI, would be premature at the present stage. When a final decision has been arrived at, any adjustment that may be found necessary will be made in connection with the provincial settlements.

"The attention of the Government of India has only now been drawn to the article referred to in Question VII; but the proposal therein described has not been before them.

"The question whether the jurisdiction of the High Court should be continued in any portion of Chota Nagpur which it may eventually be decided to transfer to the Central Provinces has not yet been considered."

POISONS BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR DENZIL IBBETSON moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for the regulation of the possession and sale of all poisons in certain local areas, and the importation, possession and sale of white arsenic generally be taken into consideration.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR DENZIL IBBETSON moved that the Bill as amended be passed. He said —"My Lord, I think that, with the assistance of the opinions which we have received, we have been able to make material improvements in the Poisons Bill as introduced, though they are confined to points of detail, and in no way affect the principles of the Bill.

"There are, however, three matters upon which I would desire to say a few words before I ask the Council to pass the measure into law. It has been pointed out in many of the opinions that the exemption of "medical practitioners" and "chemists and druggists" which is contained in clause 10 is, in the absence of a definition, dangerously wide. We admit the truth of the criticism; but none of our critics have been good enough to favour us with suggestions for a definition, and we have been unable to frame one which, if it is to be more than a mere repetition of the expression in other words, would not be unjustly narrow. We have therefore left the meaning of the words to be determined by the Courts in view of the actual circumstances of each case. It has, indeed, been suggested by many that the individuals in question should be obliged to register themselves. The suggestion is one which it is quite impossible to accept in the present connection. If, at any future time, it should be thought desirable to consider the advisability of providing for the registration of those who practise the indigenous systems of medicine and surgery, it would be necessary to examine the subject separately, and with the greatest care and deliberation; and it is out of the question to introduce any such measure, as it were by a side-wind, in connection with a Bill for the control of poisons.

"The Council will notice that we have cut out altogether sub-clause 1 (d) of clause 10, which exempted from the provisions of the Bill the manufacturers o certain pharmaceutical and commercial preparations. In framing the sub-clause we were conscious that its enumeration was probably incomplete; and in introducing the Bill I specially drew attention to it, and invited suggestions for its enlargement. Many such suggestions have reached us, and have indeed continued to reach us, almost up to the present moment. Only within the last day or two, the Hon'ble Mr. Cable addressed me with regard to a new and growing industry which has lately sprung up in Calcutta, namely the manufacture of paints colours and disinfectants, into the composition of many of which poisons enter in large quantities. Of course, it is our object and intention to except such industries. But the suggestions which we received convinced us that it was hopeless, upon the information before us, to frame a list which should be even reasonably complete as regards either the European or the indigenous industries. Now an incomplete enumeration which is contained in a Statute is a very dangerous thing, for it excludes everything which it does not include. Moreover, it cannot be altered without an appeal to the Legislature; whereas an enumeration which is contained in a rule or notification can be altered or added to at any moment. Again, it is exceedingly improbable that, as regards the indigenous industries, any one list could be framed which would meet the needs of all parts of the country. We therefore abandoned the attempt to frame a list, and added to sub-clause (2) of clause 10 of the Bill as introduced, which empowers Local Governments to exempt substances from the operation of the law, a new sub-clause (3) which empowers them to similarly exempt persons. The two together give them absolutely complete powers of exemption; and it will be their duty, before they put the provisions of the law into force, to frame lists of exemptions with such completeness as they may find possible. I have especially noticed the point, lest those who were protected by the sub-clause as originally framed should think that by cutting it out we have left them without protection. On the contrary, we have made provision for a protection which will be at once more elastic and more complete.

"Finally, many of our critics have pointed out that so long as we do not attempt to control the possession of poisons otherwise than for sale, and so long as rural areas are excluded from the operation of the general provisions of the Bill, our object cannot be completely attained. I think that, when the provisions of the new law have been brought into active operation, it will be found that we do exercise a very considerable measure of control in those directions in which it is most needed. The two poisons which are, beyond all comparison, most commonly used for homicidal purposes in India, are opium and white arsenic—the former by suicides, and the latter by murderers. Over the sale of opium we already possess practically complete control through our Excise machinery. White arsenic, which is, owing to its physical properties, the favourite agent of the Indian poisoner, is not produced in India, and since the Bill gives us power to regulate its importation into the country, and its sale and possession for sale in all parts of the country, it gives us complete control over its distribution up to and including the final purchaser; and, what is very important, it enables us to obtain full information as to the nature and method of that distribution—information which is at present wholly non-existent, and the possession of which will very greatly facilitate further measures of regulation, should such measures at any future time seem advisable.

"At the same time, we fully recognise that the Bill, in its present shape, makes no provision for complete control over the sale of poisons throughout India. But, as I explained when introducing it, the Government of India have carefully considered the question, and have deliberately decided, for reasons which I then stated, that it is not advisable to go further for the present. The Bill is admittedly experimental. But I believe that it represents a very substantial advance in a direction in which all are agreed that action is desirable."

The motion was put and agreed to.

LOCAL AUTHORITIES LOAN BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR EDWARD LAW moved that the Bill to make further provision regarding the borrowing powers of certain local authorities be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Raleigh, His Highness the Raja of Sirmur, the Hon'ble Mr. Cable, the Hon'ble Mr. Lely, the Hon'ble Dr. Asutosh Mukhopadhyaya and the mover.

The motion was put and agreed to.

CENTRAL PROVINCES COURTS BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR ARUNDEL ARUNDEL moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to Civil Courts in the Central Provinces be taken into consideration.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR ARUNDEL ARUNDEL moved that the Bill as amended be passed. He said :—"We have received no comments or criticisms on the Report of the Select Committee on this Bill, and I have, therefore, nothing to add to the observations I made when presenting the Report."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Friday, the 5th February, 1904.

J. M. MACPHERSON,
Secretary to the Government of India,
Legislative Department.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 a.m. on Thursday, the 21st January 1904, based on the India Daily Weather Reports of the period.

The weather was quiet and rainless over the Peninsula during the week under review, but at the close of the week the barometer was falling, the sky clouding over and conditions promised to become unsettled again over that area.

In Northern India the weather has been very unsettled The depression noticed last week had reached the west of the United Provinces by the morning of the 15th, and rain had fallen over the Punjab and the adjacent districts of the United and Central Provinces—the heaviest falls having been 1 54" at Sialkot, 1 51" at Rawalpindi, 1 32" at Chakrata and 1 02" at Peshawar On the 16th the weather was more settled, but light showers were reported from the north of the North-West Frontier Province and of the Punjab and light snow from the Kumaon Himalayas There was no important change on the 17th and the light precipitation recorded was confined to the hill and submontane stations of Upper India The reports of the 18th showed that a deepish depression had appeared over the interior ranges of the North-West Himalayas and a shallow depression over Central India and the Central Provinces In consequence the weather was more disturbed Snow had fallen over the Kumaon Himalayas and showers of rain over the Central and United Provinces and the west of Bengal The reports of the next day, the 19th, showed that further showers had fallen over the United Provinces, Bihar and Chota Nagpur, while the snow on the Kumaon Himalayas (measured as rainfall) was 1·72" at Chakrata, 1·16" at Ranikhet and 1 14" at Mussooree On the 20th and 21st there was no rain in any part of India except some showers in the Assam Valley, but in Persia rain had fallen on both days and this unsettled weather was advancing eastward towards North-West India, so that at the close of the week conditions were unsettled and promised further rain and snow in the north-west.

The rainfall table shows that effective rain was received during the week over the Brahmaputra Valley, the East Himalayas and Sub-Himalayas, the West Himalayas and Sub-Himalayas, the Gangetic Plain, West, the North-West Dry Area and the East Coast South (due to rain in Ceylon) divisions and over the Patna, Jhansi, Jaipur and Calicut sub-divisions, but that elsewhere the fall was actually or practically nil Where rain was received it was generally heavier than usual and in the Simla sub-division the excess was nearly 2 00".

The seasonal rainfall exceeds the average over the Patna sub-division and over the West Himalayas, North-West Dry Area, Baluchistan, South India and East Coast South divisions.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 16th January 1904.

Madras.—There was no rain during the week in the Circars, the west coast districts, parts of the Deccan and central districts, elsewhere the fall was light. Irrigation supplies are sufficient. Ploughing, sowing, and transplanting are in progress in parts. The standing crops are generally good. Harvests continue with fair outturn. Pasture is sufficient. Fodder is procurable. The condition of cattle is good. Price of rice is almost stationary, but prices of dry grains have slightly risen in several districts.

Bombay.—There was slight rain during the week in parts of Sind and very slight in parts of Ahmednagar and Sholapur. The rainfall is generally sufficient, but more rain is needed for spring crops in parts of Khandesh, Nasik, and Poona. The standing crops have been damaged by locusts in parts of Colaba, Ratnagiri, and Satara, by rats in parts of Khandesh, Nasik, Sholapur, and Bijapur, by frost in parts of Larkana, Hyderabad, Ahmedabad, and Panch Mahals, and by blight in parts of Belgaum and Dharwar. They are also suffering from insufficient moisture in parts of Poona and Sholapur, and are generally in good condition elsewhere. Harvesting of autumn crops continues in parts of Sholapur, Satara, Carnatic, and Baroda. Threshing is completed in Larkana and Thana; is nearly over in Kolaba; and continues in parts of Nasik, Ahmednagar, Poona, and Satara. Cotton is slightly damaged by frost in parts of Hyderabad, Ahmedabad, and the Panch Mahals, and by rats or blight in parts of Bijapur and Dharwar, it is in fair condition in Broach and Surat and generally in good condition in Belgaum, Wadhwan, and Rajkot. Picking is completed in Khandesh, is nearly over in Hyderabad, and continues in parts of Ahmedabad, Ahmednagar, Poona, and Rajkot. The fodder supply is sufficient. Agricultural stock is generally sufficient and in good condition. The water-supply is generally adequate. Prices of food-grains have fallen in three districts, risen in two districts, and are stationary elsewhere.

Bengal.—Light showers are reported from the districts of Gaya, Saran, and Bhagalpur. The districts of Burdwan, Murshidabad, Champaran, Darbhanga, Malda, Sonthal Parganas, Hazaribagh, and Palamau are in need of rain It is reported that some damage has been caused to the spring crops by insects in Burdwan. Prospects are otherwise good Harvesting of winter rice is nearly finished. Pressing of sugarcane continues Fodder and water are sufficient. The price of common rice has risen in eight districts, has fallen in thirteen, and is stationary in the remainder.

United Provinces.—Slight rain has fallen in most districts in the provinces, Dehra Dun and Meerut having received over an inch. The weather continues cloudy. The rain has benefited the spring crops and prospects are generally good The irrigation and weeding of poppy continues. The extraction of opium has commenced in parts of Allahabad. Sugarcane is being pressed. Markets are amply stocked and food and fodder are sufficient Prices are stationary.

Punjab.—Good rain has fallen in all districts except Umballa, Delhi, and Hissar. Hissar wants more rain and Delhi has received very little. The price of wheat is rising in Hissar and Jullundur, and falling in Lahore, Mianwali, and Multan. The prices of other food-grain are fluctuating. Pressing of sugarcane is in progress in Jullundur, Lahore, Amritsar, and Sialkot. Sowing of spring crops is completed in Shahpur The condition of the standing crops is satisfactory except in Delhi and Hissar. The outturn of sugarcane and toria (Brassica campestris) in Sialkot and of cotton in Shahpur is said to be average. The rapeseed crop is being damaged by caterpillars in parts of Ferozepore and has suffered somewhat from frost in Sialkot. Cattle are generally in good condition. Fodder is sufficient in all districts.

North-West Frontier Province.—The rainfall has been unusually heavy and general—Hazara has had 5½ inches, Peshawar 3, Kohat 2½, Bandu 1, and Dera Ismail Khan 1¼ inches. The rainfall has much benefited the standing crops. A break is now required. Wheat and barley are still being sown on barani lands. Much snow has fallen on the hills. The stocks of food-grain and fodder are ample. Prices are falling in Peshawar, but are stationary in Dera Ismail Khan.

Burma.—No rain fell during the week in Lower Burma. Reaping of paddy is approaching completion in five districts and has been completed elsewhere. In Upper Burma wet weather paddy and other crops are being reaped. Cultivation of dry weather paddy is nearly completed in the Minhla township of the Thayetmyo district and is progressing in Katha and the Upper Chindwin. Picking of cotton is completed in Myingyan The outturn of wet weather paddy is reported to be bad in parts of the Wuntho sub-division of the Katha district. The price of paddy has risen slightly in Pegu, Tharrawaddy, and Minbu, and fallen in Monywa, Myaungmya, and Shwebo, elsewhere it is unchanged.

Central Provinces.—Very light showers have fallen in eleven districts. These showers have done some good, but more rain would be very beneficial. The spring crops on light soils are not progressing well owing to the dryness of the soil Slight damage has been caused in parts to linseed by cloudy weather. The general prospects of the spring crops point to about a normal outturn, but they would be improved by some rain. The harvesting of autumn crops and the picking of cotton has practically been completed Prices have risen in the Narsinghpur district; elsewhere they are fairly steady.

Assam.—Slight rain fell in Sibsagar during the week. Rain is wanted in the Surma Valley Harvesting of winter rice is nearly finished and the outturn is good. Tea pruning, sugarcane pressing, and gathering of pulse are in progress. All crops are doing well Ploughing for rice and jute have commenced. Fodder is insufficient in parts of Cachar and in the hills Water is insufficient in the Khasi and Jaintia Hills Prices—common rice—Sylhet 18; Silchar 17, Dhubri, Gauhati, and Nowgong 16, Tezpur 14; Sibsagar 13; and Dibrugarh 12 seers per rupee.

Mysore.—Prices are generally steady The standing crops are good. Paddy and ragi (Eleusine coracana) are being harvested. Prospects of the season are good. Cattle are healthy. Water and fodder are available

Coorg.—Reaping of rice and picking of coffee continue Prices of food-grains are stationary Public health is fair. Water and fodder are sufficient.

Hyderabad.—There was no rain during the week. The early rice harvest is nearing completion The spring crop is fair and weeding is in progress Late rice sowing continues. Prospects are good Prices—wheat 11, rice 10¾, and jowari 33 seers per halli rupee.

Rajputana.—There was slight rain in places during the week. Agricultural operations are satisfactory. The condition of the standing crops and cattle is good. Fodder is ample. Prices are favourable.

Central India.—Slight rain fell in Bundelkhand during the week, but none elsewhere. Agricultural operations are in progress Crops are good in Gwalior, Bhopal, Baghelkhand, Bundelkhand, and Bhopawar, and fair in Indore and Malwa, but have been slightly damaged by excessive cold in parts of Bhopawar Agricultural stock and pasturage are generally good Prices are normal in Gwalior, Indore, Bhopal, and Baghelkhand, and are steady in Bundelkhand, Malwa, and Bhopawar Opium is good in Gwalior, Bhopal, and Malwa, and ndifferent in Indore.

Kashmir.—The weather is snowy and very frosty and extremely cold Prices are stationary.

1. In the rule regarding "life-boats", the words "a life-jacket or belt for each oarsman, and one for the cockswain, shall also be provided," shall be omitted.

2. For the rules regarding "life-jackets" and "life-buoys" the following shall be substituted:—

Life-belts.

"Number.—Approved life-belts, or other similar approved articles of equal buoyancy suitable for being worn on the person, shall be carried. There shall be at least one such apparatus for each person on board the ship.

"Materials.—An approved life-belt means a belt which does not require to be inflated before use, and which is capable of floating in fresh water for 24 hours with 15 lbs. of iron suspended from it. Life-belts should be cut out 2 inches under the arm-pits, and fitted so as to remain securely in position when put on, and the emigrants should be instructed how to wear them. When any material other than solid cork is used, it must have been specially approved by Government.

"Position of life-belts.—All life-belts, or other approved articles as aforesaid, shall be placed to the satisfaction of the Marine Surveyor so as to be at all times readily accessible to the persons on board for whom they are intended. They shall preferably be carried on battens fitted between the deck beams overhead, the number in each separate compartment being equivalent to the number of persons to be accommodated in that compartment. In no case shall the life-belts be carried in the hold or below the deck on which the emigrants are accommodated, nor shall they be tied together in bundles.

Life-buoys.

"Number.—At least one approved life-buoy shall be carried for every boat placed under davits, but not less than six in all. Two of these shall be placed on the opposite sides of the vessel, and shall each be fitted with a life-line 15 fathoms long, a float signal, and a night signal.

"Materials.—No life-buoy shall be stuffed with rushes, or with cork or other shavings, granulated cork, or any loose material. All cork life-buoys shall be constructed of solid cork and fitted with suitable lines, becketted and securely seized to the life-buoys, and no life-buoy shall be approved that will not float for 24 hours in fresh water with 32 lbs. of iron suspended from it. If life-buoys are not made of solid cork, the pattern and material must have been specially approved by Government. No contrivance shall be approved as a life-buoy that requires inflation before use.

"Fastening.—Life-buoys shall be secured in place by a toggle and becket, or by other similar method allowing of their rapid release. They shall not be lashed or seized to the rail or any other part of the vessel, but shall be kept on both sides of the upper decks, in convenient places so as to be ready for use at a moment's notice in case of emergency.

"Examination.—In all cases the Marine Surveyor shall carefully examine the life-belts and life-buoys, and shall see that they meet requirements in every respect in regard to their construction, buoyancy, fittings, and material. He shall also satisfy himself that the position and manner in which they are carried are the best that can be secured.

"Penalties.—The Marine Surveyor shall call the attention of owners and masters to the penalties imposed under section 430 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, for omitting to provide the requisite life-saving appliances, or to keep them at all times in an efficient state and in constant readiness"

3 To the rules relating to "Signals," the following shall be added under the heading "Distress":—

"Two storm or danger signals (Holmes', or other similar make), and six smaller lights of the same description with means for attaching such signals or lights to the life-buoys."

OFFICIAL PAPERS

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 a.m. on Thursday, the 28th January 1904, based on the India Daily Weather Reports of the period.

The weather over India has been quieter than was anticipated during the week under review. The unsettled conditions which at the close of last week were apparently approaching the Peninsula from the Bay never developed to any importance and beyond giving showers to Ceylon did not affect the weather in the south to any extent worth recording. Similarly the unsettled weather which was giving rain to Persia on the 20th and 21st and was advancing eastward did not enter India and did not affect conditions over this country. Snow or rain fell in Baluchistan, at Cherat, at some of the hill stations in the North-West Himalayas and in Kashmir, but over the plains of North-West India the weather was generally fine and rainless. A very slight storm, however, appeared over Gujarat on the 22nd and light showers were reported from Gujarat and the Central India Plateau on the 23rd and 24th, while moderate showers were received over the extreme north-east of India on the 26th, 27th and 28th.

The rainfall table shows that effective rain was received during the week in the Brahmaputra Valley, the Dinajpur sub-division, the Simla sub-division, Baluchistan, the Jhansi sub-division, the Indore sub-division, the Calicut sub-division and the South division of the East Coast. Elsewhere the rainfall was actually or practically nil. The week's rainfall was considerably heavier than usual in Baluchistan and in trifling excess in the Indore and Rajkot sub-divisions, and the East Coast (South) division, while elsewhere it was more or less in defect. The absence of rain over North-West India has occasioned a decrease in the seasonal excess over the West Himalayas and the North-West Dry Area, but elsewhere the seasonal conditions are practically unchanged.

At the close of the week the barometer was falling everywhere but the weather in Persia and Baluchistan remains fine and gave no sign of an immediate change.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

PUBLIC.

COMMEMORATION OF HOUSES IN WHICH DISTINGUISHED MEN HAVE LIVED OR WHICH ARE OF HISTORICAL IMPORTANCE.

No. 234-45, dated Calcutta, the 29th January 1904.

RESOLUTION.

About three years ago the Government of India were led to consider the methods that might most advantageously be adopted for the preservation of historical relics and of interesting sites or buildings in India, and for the perpetuation of the surviving records of a past that is every day tending to disappear more and more from the public recollection. Among the objects that commended themselves to their notice from this point of view was the commemoration of the houses or dwellings which are notable for their historical associations, or in which distinguished public men, whether European or Indian, have resided at different portions of their careers. A good many of these are still standing, and are pointed out with certainty to the student or traveller. The antecedents and identity of others are already becoming matters of uncertainty, and authentic history is beginning to pass, in some cases into tradition, in others into legend. It seemed desirable, before this process has attained further dimensions, to arrest and crystallize as far as possible the definite knowledge that is still forthcoming of the former residences of men who have left an enduring mark upon the civil and military administration or upon the moral and intellectual development of India.

2. In England the Society of Arts has for some time past interested itself in a similar undertaking, by placing upon the facade of houses in London and elsewhere a Circular terracotta medallion with a simple inscription on its face, recording the fact that this or that famous personage lived there in such and such a year or years. In this way, a number of valuable historical memories have been revived or recovered, and a walk through some of the older London streets has been rendered not only interesting but instructive.

3. Accordingly, after careful consultation with the Local Governments concerned, the Government of India have determined to adopt a similar plan in this country. The buildings which they have decided to commemorate for historical reasons or as having been the residences of famous men are shown in the statements annexed to this Resolution which indicate the grounds for the decision in each case. The number is necessarily limited, and great care has been exercised in the selection of those buildings whose associations are mainly personal, so as to prevent that which should be an honour to the few from becoming the prerogative of the many. Some of these houses are the property of Government, and no difficulty arises in the placing of a memorial medallion upon them. Others belong to private persons; and the permission of the owner has been sought for its erection. It is understood that in all cases this has been readily given. It has not been found in England that any serious objection has been entertained by individual proprietors to the fulfilment of what is really a public trust, and the Government of India have not been disappointed in their expectation that the standard of public spirit in India would be found to be in no way lower than in Great Britain. The Governor General in Council trusts that the measures now adopted will have the effect of preserving those personal and local associations which in India are peculiarly liable to be forgotten, and that a direct stimulus will thus be given to the more intimate study of the history of the past. The example thus set may perhaps admit of being followed in places where distinguished Indian statesmen have rendered conspicuous service to Native States.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution (with enclosures) be forwarded to the Local Governments named on the margin and also to the Foreign, Public Works and Finance Departments for information [and further necessary action]. Ordered also that the Resolution be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

2. Clause 2.—We have added a definition of "civil affairs" to section 2 of the Act, which will have the effect of limiting the meaning of that term, when inserted in the Act as proposed by the Bill, to affairs of the particular classes there specified.

3. Clause 3.—We have omitted clause 2 (a) of the Bill as introduced, which proposed the substitution, in section 3 (1) (a) of the Act, of the words "without lawful authority or permission (the proof whereof shall be upon him)" for the words "for the purpose of wrongfully obtaining information", as we think that these latter words should be restored. The omission of sub-clause (b) (ii) and of sub-clause (c) of clause 2 of the Bill as introduced are consequential on the above.

We think that the reference to "office" in section 3 (1) (a) (i) of the Act, which deals with the mere entering or being in any place belonging to His Majesty, should be omitted, but we would insert the words "or in any office belonging to His Majesty" in clause (ii), which relates to the obtaining of documents or knowledge of anything which he is not entitled to obtain by any person who is in any such place

We have proposed the introduction of a new sub-section (2) in section 3 of the Act, providing that where a person commits any act specified in sub-head (a) of sub-section (1) without lawful authority or permission (the proof of which authority or permission shall be upon him), the Court may presume that he has committed such act for the purpose of wrongfully obtaining information.

4 Clause 4—We have suggested the recasting of the new section 5, which clause 3 of the Bill as introduced proposed to add to the Act, so as to make all offences under the Act bailable and to limit those which shall be deemed to be cognizable, to offences committed in relation to any fortress, arsenal, factory, dockyard, camp or ship belonging to His Majesty, or in relation to the naval or military affairs of His Majesty. We have, however, prescribed that the order for the release on bail of any person accused of any such last described offence should be passed by a Magistrate of the first class

As section 59 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, which permits a private person to arrest any person who in his view commits any offence which is cognizable and non-bailable will not now have any application, we have, in the new section 6 proposed by the Bill as introduced, suggested a special provision enabling any person, being a public servant as defined in the Indian Penal Code, to arrest any person who in his view commits any such offence as is described in section 5, sub-section (1). We have also provided that arrested persons shall in all cases be taken either to the officer in command or charge of the fortress, arsenal, factory, dockyard, camp, or ship, or of the nearest military station or before a Magistrate of the first class.

In the new section 7 proposed by the Bill as introduced we have inserted a new sub-section (1), prohibiting the trial of offenders against the Act by Magistrates of the second class, thus restricting jurisdiction to Magistrates of the first class, Presidency Magistrates and Courts of Session.

* Subject to dissent noted below.

We sign this Report, subject to dissent on the following points —

(1) We are of opinion that the words "or any other matters of State" should come out of sub-head (b) of the definition of "civil affairs". We are prepared to admit that the deletion of these words may, in certain exceptional cases, cause administrative inconvenience. But, on the other hand, their retention will confer too wide a power on the Government, in so far as it will enable them to set the law in motion in regard to the unauthorized publication of any "civil" information which they may desire to keep from the public. This is bound to create a feeling of insecurity, which, from every point of view, is to be deprecated.

(2) We further think that the provisions of section 3, sub-section 3 of the Act, as now proposed to be amended, should not apply to the disclosure of information relating to Native States by a newspaper, unless the same has been wrongfully obtained A Native State may, on occasions, find it necessary to supply information to some influential newspaper for the purpose of putting its case more effectively before the Government, and the publication of information, so supplied, should not, in our opinion, be made penal.

From Government, Punjab, No. 1429, dated 12th December, 1903 [Paper No 14].

2. Clause 2—We have inserted a saving of the provisions of section 25 of the Indian Paper Currency Act, 1882, as it has been suggested that the words "notwithstanding anything in any other enactment for the time being in force", with which the clause opens, might possibly be read as authorizing the borrowing of money by bill payable to bearer on demand in spite of the provisions of the Act referred to.

We have also expanded the last words of the clause and turned them into the form of a proviso so as to make their intention more clear.

3 Clause 3.—We have required the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council to be obtained before a local authority can borrow money to repay a previous loan, and we have added a proviso to the clause limiting the period for the repayment of a loan raised to repay a previous loan to what remains of the maximum period allowed by law for loans after deducting the period of the loan which is being repaid.

4. Clause 4—We have thought it desirable to confer power to regulate the conditions on which money may be repaid as well as borrowed under the proposed Act.

Application of Act to other bodies enrolled for service on frontier

19. The Local Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules—

Power to make rules

(b) regulating the classes and grades of, and the remuneration to be paid to the officers and men of, and the conditions of service in, the Border Military Police Force,

(c) fixing the period of service for Military Police-officers in any district or local area,

(d) regulating the award of minor punishments to Military Police-officers under the powers conferred by section 10, and providing for appeals from, or the revision of, orders under that section, and,

(e) generally, for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this Act

THE SCHEDULE

CONDITIONS OF SERVICE.

[See section 2, clause (a)]

AFTER you have served for (such period as the Local Government may have prescribed in this behalf) in the Border Military Police Force maintained under the North-West Border

Military Police Act, 1904, you may at any time, when not on active service, apply for your discharge, through the officer to whom you may be subordinate, to the Commandant or to the Deputy Commissioner of the district in which you may be serving, and you will be granted your discharge after three months from the date of your application, unless your discharge would cause the vacancies in the said Force to exceed one-tenth of the sanctioned strength, in which case you shall be bound to remain until this objection is waived by competent authority or removed. But when on active service you shall have no claim to a discharge and you shall be bound to remain to do your duty until the necessity for retaining you in the said Force ceases, when you may make your application in the manner hereinbefore prescribed. In the event of your re-enlistment after you have been discharged, you shall have no claim to reckon for pension or other purposes your service previous to your discharge:

Provided that, if you wish to withdraw from the said Force, you may resign at any time before the expiration of the first three months of your service, but not afterwards until the completion of the period prescribed as aforesaid:

Provided, also, that the Commandant or the Deputy Commissioner may, if he thinks fit, allow you to resign at any time on your giving three months' notice of your wish to do so.

Signature of Military Police-officer in acknowledgment of the above having been read to him. } ————

Signed in my presence after I had ascertained that A. B. understood the purport of what he signed. } ————

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

NOW that the Military Police maintained on the North-West Frontier have become a considerable force, the want of any code to govern the members and of any legal authority for enforcing discipline among them has made itself felt and been brought to the notice of the Government. The object of the present Bill is to remove these defects. The measure, which in the main follows the provisions of the Bengal Military Police Act, 1892 (V of 1892), has been drawn so as to apply in the first instance only to the Border Military Police, but it is proposed—see clause 18—to reserve power for the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, to extend it by notification to the Border Militia or to any persons for the time being enrolled for similar service on the external frontier of British India.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 a.m. on Thursday, the 4th February 1904, based on the India Daily Weather Reports of the period.

The weather has been disturbed with a considerable amount of rain over Persia during the past week, but these unsettled conditions have not advanced eastward, so that Baluchistan and the plains of North-West India have been actually or practically rainless during the week under review. On the 3rd February the barometer fell with great rapidity over Kashmir and unsettled, snowy and rainy weather set in over that area. This unsettled weather advanced eastward during the day and subsequent night when rain was received over the North-West Himalayas as far east as Dehra Dun. Rain also extended lightly to Peshawar and Montgomery. The principal amounts reported on these two days were 0·40" at Minimarg, 0·14" at Dras and 0·22" at Sonemarg on the 3rd, and 0·46" at Minimarg, 0·35" at Sonemarg, 0·20" at Srinagar, 0·22" at Simla and 0·32" at Chakrata on the 4th February.

The weather has been slightly disturbed in North-East India. At first the showers were confined to the Assam Valley, but on January 31st a shallow depression was developed over Bengal and on February 1st and 2nd showers fell over a considerable part of Bengal and Assam and at some stations in Burma. The principal amounts were 2·78" at Narayanganj, 1·35" at Cherra Poonjee, 0·79" at Silchar, 0·78" at Mymensingh, 0·73" at Jalpaiguri and 0·68" at Jessore on the 1st, and 0·86" at Chittagong, 0·73" at Tezpur and 0·62" at Sibsagar on the 2nd.

In other parts of the Indian region the weather was fine and rainless throughout the week. At the close of the week pressure was high and the weather promised to be fine generally, though showers are again becoming probable in North-East India.

The rainfall table shows that effective rain was received during the week over the Delta of Bengal, the Brahmaputra Valley, and the Dinajpur, Simla, and Cuttack sub-divisions. The average actual rainfall ranged from 1 42" in the Narayanganj sub-division to 0·17" in the Simla sub-division and was considerably heavier than usual over Assam, Bengal and Orissa

In other places the week's rainfall was actually or practically nil

The seasonal rainfall has been in excess of the normal over the Narayanganj and Simla sub-divisions and the North-West Dry, Baluchistan, South India and East Coast (South) divisions.

To—The Secretary to the Government of Madras, Revenue Department / Bengal, Financial Department,

The Revenue Secretary to the Government of Burma

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1221 / 5147 S.R / 812—26-7, dated the 30th November 1903 / 12th December 1903 / 15th December 1903, explaining the procedure adopted by the Customs authorities in dealing with imported articles which contain no silver, but which are marked as "German," "Potosi," "Nevada" or "Art" silver.

2. In reply, I am to say that the Government of India are of opinion that such goods, when marked as "German silver" or "Nickel silver," may be passed without objection These trade descriptions are well known to all classes likely to be affected; and they have been in use for a sufficiently long period to render it very improbable that any purchaser will be deceived thereby.

3. The Government of India are not prepared to extend this ruling, however, to articles not made of silver, which are marked as "Potosi silver," "Nevada silver," "Austral silver," "Art silver," etc They are of opinion that it would be unsafe to assume that descriptions of this nature would not deceive purchasers in India; and they consider that such goods, if marked in this manner, should be dealt with as bearing a false trade description within the meaning of the Indian Merchandise Marks Act, 1889 (IV of 1889)

4. I am to add that no objection should be taken to the use of such marks, provided that the word "silver" is omitted.

Customs Circular No. IV of 1904.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Finance and Commerce Department, No 399 S R, dated the 19th January 1904

The Government of India have recently had under consideration the question of defining the articles which may properly be passed free of customs duty as passenger's baggage

Collectors of Customs have at present absolute discretion under section 24 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878 VIII of 1878), to determine whether any particular goods shall be treated as baggage in actual use or as goods subject to duty. The practice consequently varies at the different ports, and cases have been brought to notice in which personal baggage has been taxed to an unnecessary extent. The Government of India consider it desirable to secure, as far as possible, uniformity of practice at all Customs ports, and at the same time to grant to bonâ fide passengers the most liberal treatment which is consistent with the safety of the Customs revenue. In their judgment all articles which are brought into the country by a passenger in reasonable quantity for his personal use may, with a few specified exceptions, be exempted from duty, and they consider that this concession may reasonably be extended to cases where the baggage either precedes or follows the passenger to the same or to another Customs port in India.

2 After consultation with the Maritime Local Governments, the rules appended to this resolution have been framed in order to give effect to this decision.

Rules for the exemption of passenger's baggage from Customs duty

1 Baggage includes all packages accompanying and imported by a passenger for his own use, or that of the members of his family travelling with him, which are not part of the cargo and are not entered in the manifest.

Provided that any package, whether entered in the manifest or not, may be treated as baggage if the Collector of Customs is satisfied that it really forms part of the bonâ fide baggage of a passenger

Provided also that any package which is landed within one month before or after the arrival or anticipated arrival of the passenger, either at the same port or otherwise, may be treated as baggage, if the Collector of Customs is satisfied that it may reasonably be deemed to form part of the passenger's bonâ fide baggage

2. Subject to the exceptions specified below, all baggage, of whatsoever articles it may consist, is exempt from duty, provided that it satisfies both of the following conditions, namely —

(a) that the number or quantity of each article is moderate and reasonable having regard to the status and occupation in life of the passenger, and

(b) that it is for his personal use or that of his family travelling with him, and not for sale

Exceptions—

The following articles are liable to duty whether included in bonâ fide baggage or not, namely —

(a) Arms and ammunition, and all articles enumerated in Schedule II of the Tariff Act (Act VIII of 1894)

(b) Alcoholic liquors exceeding two quarts in quantity, perfumed spirit exceeding one quart, and all other articles enumerated in Schedule III of the Tariff Act.

(c) Cigars exceeding 50 in number or in an unopened box, cigarettes exceeding 100 in number, and other tobacco exceeding 1 lb. in weight

(d) Petroleum

FOREIGN DEPARTMENT.

Fort William, the 6th February 1904.

The following modifications to the Brazilian Regulations respecting Consular Invoices which appeared in the Supplement to the Gazette of India, dated the 9th February 1901, are published for information .—

CONSULAR INVOICES FOR BRAZIL.

The attention of Shippers to Brazil is called to the following modifications of the Regulations respecting Consular Invoices for Brazil, which come into force in the Consulates in Europe on the 18th January 1904.

Consular Invoices will not be required for Parcels or Samples, of a value, in the place of exportation, not exceeding £10 or its equivalent, inclusive of freight, packing, commission, etc.

Three copies will form a set, and will be disposed of as follows :—

1st will be returned to the shipper to forward to the consignee in order to obtain delivery of the merchandise by the Custom House

2nd will be forwarded to the Department of Commercial Statistics by the Consulate.

3rd will remain in the archives of the Consulate.

Consular Invoices may henceforward be legalized in the Brazilian Consulate, either in the port of shipment, or in the place whence the merchandise proceeds.

The weight in kilogrammes will be declared as follows —

Gross of packages—The total gross weight

Real net weight—The weight of the merchandise only, exclusive of all packing and covers

Gross weight of merchandise—The weight of the merchandise with the covers such as Drums, Bags, Cases, Cardboard Boxes, etc , as mentioned in the Customs Tariff.

Thus, when the merchandise pays duty on the real net weight, it will be sufficient to give the gross weight of the Packages and net of the Articles, exclusive of all packing and covers

When the merchandise pays duty on the gross weight in the covers, as mentioned in the Tariff, this weight is to be given in the respective column

For merchandise such as essential oils or volatile oils and essences, the declaration of the gross weight in the packing immediately covering the merchandise is sufficient

When the merchandise pays duty other than by weight, such as by the dozen thousand, hundred, cubic metre, etc , the quantity is to be declared.

The net weight column may therefore be headed according to the weight or quantity declared, or a new column added as necessary

The section referring to the duties and obligations of Captains and other Carriers is entirely deleted

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS

Invoices may still be drawn up either in Portuguese or in the language of the country whence they proceed, and by hand or copying machine, but always in such manner that they are distinctly legible and in indelible ink.

The port of shipment to be declared is the port in which the goods are actually shipped for Brazil

The specification of the merchandise may still be made in accordance with the official nomenclature or the commerical usage , in the latter case, it is imperative that the material from which each separate article is made, shall be declared

The fee remains unaltered

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 a.m. on Thursday, the 11th February 1904, based on the India Daily Weather Reports of the period.

The weather has been rainless throughout the week under review over India. Showers fell over Persia on the 5th and 6th, and unsettled weather with rain appeared over Baluchistan on the 7th and 8th, while snow fell in Kashmir on the 8th and 9th. These unsettled conditions never penetrated into North-West India where the weather was dry throughout and where at the close of the week there was no sign of change.

Assam and North-East India have also had fine weather throughout the week, but on the 11th conditions were becoming slightly less settled and showers appeared probable in the Brahmaputra Valley.

Rain was falling over East Ceylon at the close of the week and the winds were cyclonic over the south-west of the Bay, so that showers were possible in this area also.

The rainfall table shows no rain except in Baluchistan and the East Coast (South). The seasonal returns exhibit a diminishing excess over the south of the Peninsula, normal rainfall over the Calicut, Simla and Narayanganj sub-divisions and the North-West Dry and Baluchistan divisions and deficient rain elsewhere.

FOREIGN DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

Fort William, the 13th February, 1904.

No. 513 E.-B.

The following communication addressed by His Majesty's Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs to the Right Hon'ble St. John Brodrick, His Majesty's Secretary of State for India, is published for general information and guidance :—

"His Majesty being fully determined to observe the duties of neutrality during the existing state of war between Russia and Japan, and being, moreover, resolved to prevent, as far as possible, the use of His Majesty's harbours, ports, and coasts and the waters within His Majesty's territorial jurisdiction in aid of the warlike purposes of either belligerent, has commanded me to communicate to you, for your guidance, the following rules which are to be treated and enforced as His Majesty's orders and directions :—

"RULE I.—During the continuance of the present state of war, all ships of war of either belligerent are prohibited from making use of any port or roadstead in the United Kingdom, the Isle of Man, or the Channel Islands, or in any of His Majesty's Colonies or Foreign possessions or dependencies or of any waters, subject to the territorial jurisdiction of the British Crown as a station or place of resort for any warlike purpose or for the purpose of obtaining any facilities for warlike equipment. And no ship of war of either belligerent shall hereafter be permitted to leave any such port, roadstead, or waters from which any vessel of the other belligerent (whether the same shall be a ship of war or a merchant ship) shall have previously departed until after the expiration of at least twenty-four hours from the departure of such last mentioned vessel beyond the territorial jurisdiction of His Majesty.

"RULE II.—If there is now in any such port, roadstead, or waters, subject to territorial jurisdiction of the British Crown, any ship of war of either belligerent, such ship of war shall leave such port, roadstead, or waters within such time, not less than twenty-four hours, as shall be reasonable, having regard to all circumstances and the conditions of such ship as to repairs, provisions, or things necessary for the subsistence of her crew. And, if after the date hereof any ship of war of either belligerent shall enter any such port, roadstead, or waters, subject to the territorial jurisdiction of the British Crown, such ship shall depart and put to sea within twenty-four hours after her entrance into any such port, roadstead, or waters, except in case of stress of weather, or of her requiring provisions or things necessary for the subsistence of her crew, or repairs, in either of which cases the authorities of the port or of the nearest port (as the case may be) shall require her to put to sea as soon as possible after the expiration of such period of twenty-four hours without permitting her to take in supplies beyond what may be necessary for her immediate use, and no such vessel, which may have been allowed to remain within British waters for the purpose of repair, shall continue in any such port, roadstead, or waters for a longer period than twenty-four hours after her necessary repairs shall have been completed. Provided, nevertheless, that, in all cases in which there shall be any vessels (whether ships of war or merchant ships) of both the said belligerent parties in the same port, roadstead, or waters within the territorial jurisdiction of His Majesty, there shall be an interval of not less than twenty-four hours between the departure therefrom of any such vessel (whether a ship of war or merchantman) of the one belligerent and the subsequent departure therefrom of any ship of war of the other belligerent. And the time hereby limited for the departure of such ships of war respectively shall always in case of necessity be extended so far as may be requisite for giving effect to this proviso, but no further or otherwise.

"RULE III.—No ship of war of either belligerent shall hereafter be permitted, while in any port, roadstead, or waters, subject to territorial jurisdiction of His Majesty, to take in any supplies except provisions and such other things as may be requisite for the subsistence of her crew and except so much coal only as may be sufficient to carry such vessel to the nearest port of her own country or to some nearer named, neutral destination; and no coal shall be again supplied to any such ship of war in the same or any other port, roadstead, or waters, subject to the territorial jurisdiction of His Majesty, without special permission until after the expiration of three months from the time when such coal may have been last supplied to her within British waters as aforesaid.

"RULE IV.—Armed ships of either belligerent are interdicted from carrying prizes made by them into the ports, harbours, roadsteads, or waters of the United Kingdom, the Isle of Man, the Channel Islands, or any of His Majesty's Colonies or possessions abroad.

"The Governor or other chief authority of each of His Majesty's territories or possessions beyond the seas shall forthwith notify and publish the above rules".

The Governor-General in Council is pleased to direct that the Orders and Directions of His Majesty the King, Emperor of India, as contained in the above communication, are to be obeyed by all persons within the limits of His Majesty's territories and possessions in India.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

His Highness THE AGHA KHAN asked:—

"I.—Will the Government be pleased to state the total number of troops other than Imperial Service troops maintained by all the Native States of India combined?

"II.—Will the Government be pleased to name the Native States that employ above 400 ordinary troops, and yet do not possess any Imperial Service Troops?

"III.—Will the Government be pleased to state whether there are any British Indian subjects serving as officers in the Imperial Service Troops, and, if so, by whom have they been appointed, and what qualifications ought a person to possess before being so appointed?

"IV.—Will the Government be pleased to state whether the guns of the Royal Artillery Batteries stationed in India are of the same calibre and utility as the guns given to the batteries stationed in the United Kingdom, and, if not so, what type are they, and in what essential points do they differ?"

The Hon'ble MAJOR-GENERAL SIR EDMOND ELLES replied —

"I.—According to the latest returns available, which are those for the year 1901, the total number of troops other than Imperial Service Troops maintained by all the Native States in India is 92,357.

"II.—The States that do not maintain Imperial Service Troops, but have local military forces of over 400 men, are the following:—

In Rajputana—Mewar, Tonk, Dholpur, Kota, Jhalawar, Karauli and Khetri,

In Central India—Rewa, Orchha, Datia, Panna, Samthar and Ajaigarh,

In Bombay—Baroda, Kolhapur, Cutch, Idar, Gondal and Palanpur,

In Baluchistan—Kalat and

In Madras—Travancore.

"III.—One of the main principles of the Imperial Service movement is that the different corps shall be composed only of subjects of the States to which they belong.

"In the ordinary course there would thus be no British Indian subjects serving as officers in Imperial Service Troops In the majority of instances, however, the nucleus of the existing bodies of Imperial Service Troops was provided by the ordinary troops of the States, in which many British Indian subjects (often retired native officers of the Indian Army) have from time to time been employed.

"There are thus a few such persons serving in the Imperial Service Troops, but they are being gradually eliminated. In 1903 the actual number was only 13.

"Appointments of officers in the Imperial Service Troops are made by the Native Chiefs themselves, who, in making their selections, generally consult the British Inspecting Officers.

"Owing to the varying conditions of different States, no definition can be given of the qualifications necessary for such appointments, but, generally speaking, the officers are either Sirdars of the States or are promoted for merit from the lower ranks of their own corps.

"IV.—The Royal Horse and Field Artillery are ordinarily armed with similar guns in all parts of the world, although it occasionally happens, at times when re-armament is in progress, that there is a temporary diversity of pattern. At the present moment, as a result of the war in South Africa, new patterns of field guns have just been adopted for use by Horse and Field Artillery, the re-armament will commence next year, and some time must necessarily elapse before all batteries, both at home and abroad, are equipped with the new armament."

The Hon'ble MR. CABLE asked —

"Will the Government be pleased to say what is the reason for which they have refrained from consulting the High Court regarding the territorial reconstitution of Bengal?"

The Hon'ble SIR DENZIL IBBETSON replied:—

"As it is not proposed to alter the limits of the High Court's jurisdiction, it does not seem to the Government of India necessary to consult the Hon'ble Judges at the present stage."

The Hon'ble RAI SRI RAM BAHADUR asked:—

"Will the Government be pleased to publish the Report of the Commission appointed under the presidency of Sir Lawrence Jenkins to enquire into the Malkowal plague inoculation mishap, as its non-publication has caused misgivings in the minds of many people respecting the utility of inoculation, and has thus prevented them from availing themselves of this prophylactic against plague?"

The Hon'ble SIR DENZIL IBBETSON replied:—

"The Report of the Malkowal Commission is still under the consideration of His Majesty's Secretary of State for India, with whom the decision as to publication rests.

"As regards the misgivings to which the Hon'ble Member alludes, I may say that the prophylactic fluid prepared by the process which was in general use before the cold weather of 1902-1903, and which is still supplied by the Parel Laboratory, was subjected to searching enquiry by the Plague Commission of 1898, who pronounced its employment to be free from danger, and that it has been used on a large scale in various parts of India during the past six years without producing injurious effecrs. There is nothing in the Report of the Malkowal Commission to cast doubt upon this conclusion, or upon the utility of inoculation."

The Hon'ble MR. LELY asked:—

"Has the attention of the Government of India been drawn to a leader which appeared in the Englishman of Wednesday, the 3rd instant, upon the subject of the reply made by Government to a recent memorial from the Bengal Chamber of Commerce?

"In that leader the following passage occurs:—

But an admission in Sir D. Ibbetson's apology for the Home Department last year, to the effect that telegrams had passed between the Department and the Chief Commissioner of Assam, while the question of subjecting Mr. Bain to a second trial was pending, on a point which was not discussed, and could only in such an offensive explanation have been concealed because its disclosure would not strengthen the Government case, amounted, and justifiably amounted, in public estimation to corroborative evidence of their belief. The belief being that, besides the brief official correspondence which was all that was needed to set the law in motion in a particular case, telegraphic messages had passed, which would weight the scale on one side of a pending question, what was better proof, what more proof could be obtained in the circumstances, that such communication had actually passed, than an accidental confession on high authority that it had?

"Will Government be pleased to state the nature of the telegraphic correspondence thus referred to?"

The Hon'ble SIR DENZIL IBBETSON replied:—

"The telegrams to which the Hon'ble Member refers were as follows:—

From Government of India to Chief Commissioner.—Your letter 20th ultimo. Please wire whether Bain claimed to be tried as European British subject

From Chief Commissioner to Government of India.—Your telegram No. 2233, fourth. Bain claimed to be tried as European British subject.

"The information was required in connection with a technical point of law which had been raised during the consideration of the case.

"I alluded to the telegrams in question in my statement in Council, partly because the necessity for the inquiry contributed to the delay which had been made a subject of adverse comment, and partly in order that I might be able to state—as I did state emphatically—that 'no instructions, official or unofficial, were issued, and no steps were taken by the Government of India, other than those which have been mentioned in this statement.'

"In alluding to these telegrams, I used the following words:—'A doubtful point of fact was cleared up by a telegraphic reference to Assam.' Had the telegrams been of such a nature as is suggested in the passage which the Hon'ble Member has quoted in his question, my description of them would have amounted to a misstatement of fact."

INDIAN OFFICIAL SECRETS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR ARUNDEL ARUNDEL presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Indian Official Secrets Act, 1889. He said:—"My Lord, I beg leave to offer a few explanatory observations in presenting the Report of the Select Committee on the Official Secrets Bill.

"On the 4th December, I said, with reference to the speeches of the Hon'ble Nawab Saiyid Muhammad and the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale on the motion to refer the Bill to a Select Committee, that the numerous criticisms which had been received would be carefully considered by the Select Committee, and that I hoped important objections would be met and even that a general approbation of the Bill would not be wanting. And on the 18th December, on my motion to add the Hon'ble Nawab Saiyid Muhammad to the Select Committee, Your Lordship concluded your speech by saying you believed that when the Select Committee met, they would find that their labours were neither so severe nor so contentious as had been supposed, and that a satisfactory measure could be placed on the Statute-book, which need not strike terror into the heart of a single innocent person, but which would give to the confidential secrets of the State the protection which no reasonable man would willingly deny to them. The first of Your Lordship's anticipations has been fulfilled in the Report I have now to present; the fulfilment of the second is, I venture to hope, not far distant.

"A perusal of the amendments which have been introduced into the Bill by the Select Committee will show that the objections on which so much stress was laid both in this Council and by the public press have been substantially met and removed.

"The objections as summarized by the Hon'ble Mr. Gokhale in this Council were three.

"First, that civil affairs were placed on a level with naval and military, and that even if they were brought within the purview of the Bill, to which however he objected, there was no distinction between matters of smaller and greater importance.

"This first objection has been removed by a definition of civil affairs which limits them as regards this Bill to matters of major importance.

'Civil affairs' means affairs—

(a) affecting the relations of His Majesty's Government or of the Governor General in Council with any foreign State or

(b) affecting the relations of the Governor General in Council with any Native State in India, or relating to the public debt or the fiscal arrangements of the Government of India or any other matters of State, where these affairs are of such a confidential nature that the public interest would suffer by their disclosure.'

"This definition of course governs all references to civil affairs throughout the Bill, and as far as sub-clause (b) is concerned, it would be necessary to prove to the satisfaction of the Court that the affairs mentioned were of such a confidential nature that the public interest would suffer by their disclosure.

"The second objection was that whereas the Act provided that a person who enters an office for the purpose of wrongfully obtaining information, is liable to punishment, the Bill provided that whoever without lawful authority (the proof whereof shall be upon him) enters a Government office, in which he is not entitled to be, commits an offence.

"This objection, which I admit to be valid, has been met, first by removing the word 'office' from section 3 (1) (a) (i) of the Act and relegating it to clause (ii), so that the entering or being in an office without lawful authority or permission is no longer an offence; secondly, by restoring to the section the words 'for the purpose of wrongfully obtaining information'. At the same time to meet the difficulty of proving wrongful intention, the Bill provides that where a person commits an act specified in sub-head (a), of sub-section (1), without lawful authority or permission (the proof of which authority or permission shall be upon him), the Court may presume that he has committed such act for the purpose of wrongfully obtaining information.

"The third objection to the Bill was that it proposed to make all offences under the Act cognizable and non-bailable.

"This objection, the validity of which I recognize, has been met by making all offences with regard to civil affairs non-cognizable and bailable.

"In addition to this, while leaving all offences with regard to naval and military matters cognizable, we have limited the right of arrest in respect of them to public servants, and we have made them all bailable. We have also limited jurisdiction in such cases to Courts of Session, and to Magistrates of the first class who, of course, also possess authority to discharge an accused person if there is no primâ facie case against him. The Naval or Military Officer Commanding also possesses power to discharge an accused person brought before him.

"Lastly, no Magistrate or Court can proceed to the trial of any person for any offence under the Act, whether naval, military or civil, except with the consent of the Local Government or the Governor General in Council.

"The Hon'ble Messrs. Gokhale, Nawab Saiyid Muhammad and Bose have signed the Report subject to dissent on two points, one of which was not alluded to by them in this Council on the former occasion, and both of which will generally be admitted to be of less importance.

"The Hon'ble gentlemen consider in the first place that the words 'or any other matters of State' should come out of sub-head (b) of the definition of 'civil affairs'. They admit that the deletion of these words might in certain exceptional cases cause administrative inconvenience. But it is urged that their retention will confer too wide a power on the Government in so far as it will enable the Government to set the law in motion in regard to the unauthorized publication of any 'civil' information which they may desire to keep from the public.

"Now, I beg leave emphatically to traverse this inference of the Hon'ble Members. Government will not have power to set the law in motion in regard to the unauthorized publication of any 'civil' information, which they may desire to keep from the public. The law could only be set in motion if the information related to matters of State of such a confidential nature that the public interests would suffer by their disclosure, and this would have to be proved to the satisfaction of the Court.

"The second point of dissent urges that as regards Native States the disclosure in a newspaper of information regarding them should not be an offence unless the information was wrongfully obtained. 'A Native State may on occasion find it necessary to supply information to some influential newspaper for the purpose of putting its case more effectively before the Government, and the publication of information so supplied should not be made penal'.

"I am not at all sure that Native States will be grateful for this championship. It would mean that the Editor of a newspaper might publish any information, however detrimental to the interests of a Native State, or to the dignity of its ruler, or to the character of its employés, provided only that the information had not been 'wrongfully' obtained.

"Surely this proposed modification of the Bill would be a doubtful kindness to those for whose comfort it is suggested. On the other hand, if newspaper report is to be trusted, opposition has been expressed to this Bill by some of the inhabitants of a certain Native State on the ground that the Durbar would adopt its provisions for the protection of the interests of the Native State itself. I differ altogether from the view taken by my Hon'ble dissentient friends. Editors of newspapers cannot escape the natural, and indeed inevitable, responsibilities of their profession It is surely not only reasonable, but would be indefensible, that they should be conceded a latitude in their disclosures about the confidential affairs of Native States that is neither claimed nor granted in respect of any other confidential affairs.

"The Bill as now amended gives the Editor the amplest protection. He cannot be convicted of an offence under section 3 (3) of the Act, unless (1) the information he communicates regarding the Native State is a matter of State of such a confidential nature that the public interest would suffer by its disclosure, (2) he must wilfully communicate the information, and (3) he must know that in the interests of the State he ought not to communicate it at that time. All these three conditions would have to be proved to the satisfaction of the Court in case of a prosecution.

"I do not think any further protection for the Editor could reasonably be asked for, but it is conceivable that a Native State might think that the protection of its interests from undesirable publicity might have been better safeguarded The wording, however, is that of our Act and of the Act of Parliament as regards naval and military affairs, and no alteration in it seems necessary.

"I trust that this brief explanation will satisfy Hon'ble Members of this Council that the labours of the Select Committee have been successful in removing from the Bill the main objections that have been urged against it, and that it now contains nothing that the Government, in the interests of the State, may not legitimately demand. All these matters will no doubt be discussed when the Report is taken into consideration at a later date."

LOCAL AUTHORITIES LOAN BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR EDWARD LAW presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to make further provision regarding the borrowing powers of certain local authorities.

CO-OPERATIVE CREDIT SOCIETIES BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR DENZIL IBBETSON moved that the Hon'ble Mr. Hamilton be added to the Select Committee on the Bill to provide for the constitution and control of Co-operative Credit Societies. He said :—"Hon'ble Members will have seen the Hon'ble Mr. Hamilton's letter which is printed as Paper No. 15 to the Co-operative Credit Societies Bill, in which he makes a most generous offer to advance Rs. 20,000 to finance experimental societies under certain conditions. I do not know that we shall be able to accept his suggestions exactly in the shape in which they stand at present; but I hope that we shall be able to give him substantially what he asks for, and in any case we shall be very glad to have his assistance in the Committee in threshing out the details of the Bill."

The motion was put and agreed to.

NORTH-WEST BORDER MILITARY POLICE BILL.

The Hon'ble MAJOR-GENERAL SIR EDMOND ELLES moved for leave to introduce a Bill to provide for the Regulation of the Border Military Police Force in the North-West Frontier Province. He said :—"Now that the Military Police maintained on the North-West Frontier have become a considerable force, the want of any code to govern the members and of any legal authority for enforcing discipline among them has made itself felt and been brought to the notice of the Government. The object of the present Bill is to remove these defects. The measure, which in the main follows the provisions of the Bengal Military Police Act, 1892 (V of 1892), has been drawn so as to apply in the first instance only to the Border Military Police, but it is proposed—see clause 18—to reserve power for the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, to extend it by notification to the Border Militia or to any persons for the time being enrolled for similar service on the external frontier of British India."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MAJOR-GENERAL SIR EDMOND ELLES introduced the Bill.

The Hon'ble MAJOR-GENERAL SIR EDMOND ELLES moved that the Bill, together with the Statement of Objects and Reasons relating thereto, be published in the Gazette of India in English.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Friday, the 19th February, 1904.

2. In clause 2 we have added a definition of "College", which seems to be required.

3. In clause 3 we propose to omit the words "subject to the approval of the Government". The expression might be construed as requiring the consent of Government to ordinary acts of administration, and this, as we understand, is not the intention of the Bill. We have added the word "University" before "Professors and Lecturers", and have given an express power to maintain libraries, laboratories and museums

4. In clause 4 we have slightly altered the drafting of sub-clause (1); we have made the last words a new sub-clause (2) and have added a proviso expressly permitting the election or nomination of a Fellow who has vacated his office. In sub-clause (2), now (3), we have added words to provide that the duties and liabilities as well as the powers of the University devolve upon the Body Corporate as reconstituted. We add a new sub-clause (4), which will prevent any question being raised as to the validity of acts of the Senate, on the ground of any casual defect in its constitution

5. In clause 5 we have made some changes in the drafting of sub-clause (1).

6. On clause 6 we observe that while a maximum limit is fixed for the Senates, the minimum remains as in the Acts of Incorporation, i e, 30 for Calcutta, Madras and Allahabad, 26 for Bombay and 50 for the Punjab. It seems to us desirable that these figures should be revised in connexion with the scheme of this Bill, and we propose to fix a minimum of 50 for the three senior and 40 for the two junior Universities. We consider that election by Faculties may well be made a regular and necessary part of the University constitution, and have therefore changed "may" into "shall" in clause 6 (1) (b) and 6 (2) (b). In the case of the Universities of the Punjab and Allahabad, the Bill provides that eight Fellows are to be elected by the Senate or by Graduates, and seven by the Faculties We have changed eight into ten, and seven into five With a view to the period of five years fixed for the tenure of a Fellowship, we think the scheme of the Bill will be more easily worked if the number of Ordinary Fellows in each class is five or a multiple of five.

7. The provisions of clause 7 (2), which prescribes the qualifications of the Graduates who are to take part in electing Ordinary Fellows, have been much criticised. There is a large body of opinion in favour of conferring this privilege on Graduates of a certain standing. We propose to alter the sub-clause so as to admit all who have taken the degree of Doctor or Master in any Faculty, and Graduates in any Faculty of ten years standing. We also propose that the amount of the fee to be paid by a Graduate on entering his name in the register should be left to regulations, and we add a proviso which will permit a name to be entered after the expiry of the prescribed period on payment of the initial fee and of a further sum to be fixed by the regulations In sub-clause (3) we have left the amount of the annual fee to regulations, and have added a proviso under which a Graduate may compound for his annual payments, a practice permitted by the English Universities. We have slightly altered the drafting of sub-clause (4), and we add a new sub-clause (5) providing that registered Graduates shall enjoy such further privileges as may be determined by the regulations.

8. In clause 8, which applies to the Universities of the Punjab and Allahabad, we have introduced a new sub-clause (2) providing for an annual election by the Senate.

9 Under clause 6 as altered by us, the provisions of the Bill which relate to election by Faculties will be directory and not merely permissive. We have therefore redrafted clause 9 (1) so as to provide for annual elections, and we have made sub-clause (2) more definite by empowering the Chancellor to give directions prescribing the qualifications of the persons to be elected.

10 At the end of clause 10 we have added a proviso to the effect that not less than one-half of the Fellows nominated by the Chancellor shall be persons following the profession of education within the Provinces assigned to the University.

11 We have recast and considerably amplified clause 12 so as to include all the transitory provisions which will be required for the reconstitution of the governing bodies of the University and for the transaction of current business It seems necessary in the first place to fix the order in which elections and nominations to the new Senate are to take place, and the order will not be the same in all Universities we have therefore provided separately for the three older and the two junior Universities. In head (a) (i) we have taken out the words which permit drawing of names by lot, and we have substituted a more general rule for (ii), (iii) and (iv) To secure a fair representation of different branches of study in the Senate, we propose in head (g) to empower the Chancellor to give directions prescribing the qualifications of the persons who are to represent the Faculties. In head (h) we provide for the issue of a declaration by the Chancellor when the new Senate has been constituted, under head (i) the seniority of the Fellows will be determined by the order of their names in the list. We retain the scheme of the Bill which allows a term of three years to all Fellows elected or nominated to the new Senate, and directs that the names of those who vacate their places at the end of the third and the three following years shall be drawn by lot; but we have made it clear that the names are to be drawn from the original list of the new Senate, that they will be drawn separately from the nominated and the two classes of elected Fellows, so as to secure the due proportion of vacancies in each class, and that account will be taken of vacancies caused by death or resignation. We have added new heads providing for continuity in the office of Vice-Chancellor, in the business of the Syndicate, Faculties and Boards of Studies, and in the appointments of Examiners, etc, and preserving the existing regulations and by-laws until new regulations are made.

12. In clause 13 we have altered sub-clause (1) and omitted sub-clause (3). There is a general desire that existing Fellows of the Universities should in all cases retain the distinction of an Honorary Fellowship for life, and we think the point may be conceded without disadvantage. We have altered sub-clause (2) so as to emphasise the requirement that Honorary Fellows shall be persons eminent for their attainments, or as benefactors of the University, or for services rendered to the cause of education. We omit sub-clause (4), because the rules of precedence are not the same in all Universities, and the matter may be left to regulations. After careful consideration we propose also to omit sub-clause (5). The right to vote in elections to Legislative Councils and municipal bodies is given by rules made under Acts of Parliament or under Acts of Indian Legislatures. The rule-making authority can in each case amend the rules, if it is thought expedient, and we are of opinion that the matter is one which ought to be brought by the Government of India to the notice of the Local Governments concerned, but not one to be dealt with in a Bill to amend the law relating to Universities.

13. In clause 14 we have added the words "by the Senate under regulations made in accordance with the provisions of this Act", and we have added new sub-clauses, enabling the University to provide for the assignment of Fellows to the Faculties, and to empower the Fellows so assigned to co-opt, for such period as may be prescribed, a limited number of Graduates and others possessing special knowledge of the subjects of study represented by the Faculty We propose that these additional members of a Faculty should have the right to take part in its ordinary business, and in the election of Ordinary Fellows, but not in the election of the Syndicate We think that these provisions, if accepted by the Council, will strengthen the Faculties as consultative bodies, and they will afford opportunities of distinction to Graduates and others who are not in the Senate.

14 In clause 15 we have added the Director of Public Instruction in the Central Provinces as an ex-officio Member of the Syndicate at Allahabad. To be strictly consistent we should have added the Directors of Public Instruction in Burma and Assam to the Calcutta Syndicate; but considerations of distance preclude us from making this proposal The Bill is so framed as to secure a certain proportion of College teachers in the Syndicate by rules relating to Faculty elections, but our attention has been called to cases in which there is no Principal or Professor qualified to represent a Faculty, and also to cases in which the proposed rule would not secure an equitable representation of teachers in the Faculties We have therefore made the scheme of the Bill more elastic by providing that the Syndicate shall be elected by the Senate or by the Faculties in such manner as may be provided by the regulations, and that the regulations are to be so framed as to secure that as nearly as may be one-half of the elected members shall be Heads of or Professors in affiliated Colleges. We are not able to suggest a satisfactory definition of the term "Professor", and have left it to the Senate to decide whether a candidate for election is or is not a Professor. It seems to us unnecessary to make express provision for a Vice-Chairman of the Syndicate, we therefore propose to omit sub-clause (4).

15. In clause 16 we have given power to "institute and confer" degrees, diplomas, etc We have altered the language of clause 17 so as to indicate explicitly the grounds on which an honorary degree may be bestowed, and we suggest that a two-thirds majority of the Senate should be required. In clause 18 we propose that a vote of the Senate cancelling a degree should be passed by a two-thirds majority and confirmed by the Chancellor.

16. On clause 19, which provides for the admission of candidates who have not completed a course of instruction in an affiliated College, conflicting opinions have been recorded Some high authorities would omit the words "save by special order of the Senate"; they are of opinion that a College certificate should in all cases be required. Others again consider that there are cases in which a student should be admitted to examination without having completed his College course, but they would provide for these cases by regulation. We do not see our way entirely to prohibit the admission of private students, we think it expedient to retain the special order of the Senate, which marks the fact that such admission is exceptional, and to enact that such orders shall be made on the recommendation of the Syndicate. The Senate may provide a further safeguard by indicating in the form of a regulation the reasons which in such cases may be accepted as sufficient. We understand that the regulations framed for this purpose at Madras have worked well, and that they have considerably reduced the number of exemptions granted. We have redrafted the clause in accordance with the opinions we have expressed

17 In clause 21 (1), which sets forth the conditions to be complied with by affiliated Colleges, we have slightly altered head (a) by substituting "regularly constituted" for "properly constituted" in the description of the governing body. The words in head (b) which refer to the terms on which members of the teaching staff are engaged have been objected to, and we have substituted the phrase "conditions governing their tenure of office". Head (c) has been construed as implying that all students may be compelled to live in Colleges or hostels There is of course no intention to interfere with students who reside with their parents or guardians We have added words which will make it clear that while Colleges will be expected to see that their students reside in suitable places, they may perform this duty either by providing quarters or by exercising a more general supervision. We have also added the words "in conformity with the regulations" In exercising the wide powers of the Bill, the Syndicate should, we consider, be guided not merely by its estimate of the needs and resources of each College, but by gen[illegible], such as may be applied to all Colleges alike. We have added new heads [illegible] pr[illegible] for a library, and (where affiliation is sought in any branch of experimenta[illegible] a laboratory or museum. In head (d) of the Bill, now (f), we think it sufficient to provide for the residence of the Head of the College and some members of the teaching staff in or near the College or the place provided for the residence of students. We have altered the language of the head relating to fees so as to meet some of the objections taken to it. At the end of the sub-clause we suggest that the College should be required to give an assurance that any transference of management and any changes in the teaching staff will be reported to the Syndicate.

18. In regard to sub-clause (2) of the same clause, it is pointed out that persons intending to establish a new College may desire to obtain an assurance of affiliation before their arrangements for buildings, teaching staff, etc., are complete. We have therefore taken out the word "inspection" and have substituted "local inquiry". We have omitted the reference to members of the Syndicate, as such members will presumably be included among competent persons. We have completed the drafting of the sub-clause by requiring the Senate to record their opinion on the application. We have slightly altered the drafting of sub-clause (3) so as to make it clear that, when the opinion of the Senate has been taken, the Registrar will forward all the proceedings to Government.

19. In clause 23 we have made it clear that the provisions of sub-clause (1) extend to existing Colleges, and we have limited the power given to the Syndicate to call for reports, returns and information by adding the words "to enable it to judge of the efficiency of the College". On the other hand, we have strengthened sub-clause (2) by providing that the Syndicate shall cause all affiliated Colleges to be inspected from time to time We have omitted the reference to members of the Syndicate in sub-clause (2) for the reason given above in paragraph 18.

20. We have made some changes in the drafting of clause 24, sub-clause (1) (now sub-clauses 1 and 2), and we have given power to extend the time allowed to a College to present its case to the Syndicate when notice has been given of a proposal to disaffiliate it. We have altered the remaining sub-clauses so as to require the Senate to record their opinion, and the Registrar to forward the proceedings to Government

21 In clause 25, sub-clause (2), we have extended head (a) to all elections of Ordinary Fellows, we have slightly altered head (b), and have added words to heads (c) and (d) giving power to fix a quorum for meetings of the Senate, Syndicate, Faculties and Boards of Studies. Under head (d) we propose to give power to add persons who are not Fellows to the Boards of Studies. We have changed "terms" into "conditions" in head (g) We have made separate provision for University and College registers, and we have added the inspection of Colleges to the matters mentioned in the sub-clause now lettered (i). We have altered head (o) which relates to candidates for the Matriculation Examination

22. In clause 26 we have redrafted sub-clauses (1) and (2) so as to remove any doubt as to the time within which the power reserved to Government may be exercised. In head (b) we have made it clear that the additions or alterations to be made by Government are only such as Government, after consulting the Senate, may consider to be necessary. We recommend the adoption of this clause on the understanding that the power conferred will not be used to introduce changes in courses of study and other matters in which the University may be trusted to frame its own rules, with the sanction of Government. We make a consequential amendment in sub-clause (3), now numbered (2).

23. In the first schedule we have added the Directors of Public Instruction in Burma and Assam to the list of ex-officio Fellows of the Calcutta University, and the Director of Public Instruction in the Central Provinces has been added to the Allahabad list. The schedule of repeals has been completed and brought into accordance with the Bill as now reported.

The 19th February, 1904.

We are unable to accept the new proviso added to clause 10 of the Bill. We consider it most important that the teaching profession should be adequately represented in the Senate, and this is one of the objects of the Bill; but we should prefer to leave the Chancellor to select the persons who are in his opinion best qualified to render service to the University, and not to hamper him by rules fixing the exact proportion of teachers to be nominated by him.

The scheme of the Bill postpones nomination to election. It is probable that a large proportion of the Fellows elected by Faculties will be teachers, and it is not unlikely that the Graduates may also elect a fair proportion. If this should be the case, then the proviso which gives the teachers one-half of the Chancellor's nominations would give them a statutory preponderance. This we think unnecessary and unwise

We have tested our argument by referring to lists of affiliated Colleges and their teachers, and we are convinced that, if the Chancellor's area of selection is limited as proposed, he will in certain cases be unable to make up the number of teachers required without including some teachers who have no special claim to be Fellows. He will be compelled to choose an undistinguished teacher, when he might appoint a first-rate professional man, or a retired teacher. We think the Chancellor should be allowed to choose the best men, and to maintain such balance and proportion between different elements in the Senate as may be expedient in each case.

† Signed subject to minute of dissent

‡ Signed subject to note of dissent.

I sign this Report as a mere matter of form. It is true that there are provisions in the Bill, which, had they stood alone, would have received my hearty assent. But the main provisions of the Bill—which are constitutional—are, in my humble opinion, so objectionable that they render the whole measure a most retrograde piece of legislation, bound to prove detrimental to the highest interests of the country, and, as such, I am unable to give it my support The net result of these constitutional provisions will be (1) to make the Indian Universities virtual departments of the State, (2) to put, within such limits as the Government may allow, all directive and administrative power into the hands of European Fellows—chiefly European Professors in Government and Missionary Colleges, and (3) to place the Indian element in so hopeless a minority as to dissociate it, for all practical purposes, from the government of the Universities. This much is clear. The rest is doubtful—more than doubtful. And I, for one, am unable to share the hope—so far, at any rate, as the Presidency of Bombay is concerned—that the passing of this Bill will tend to raise the standard of University education.

2. I must at the outset refer to the grave inconvenience, which became abundantly clear in the course of the discussions of the Select Committee, of dealing with five different Universities in one and the same Bill. The most striking illustration is supplied by the case of Allahabad. Here it cannot be said that the abuses of half a century have to be corrected—the University of Allahabad having been established only in 1887. The University already possesses the legal power to undertake teaching functions, so it cannot be argued that the legislation is needed to enlarge its powers in that direction. The one prayer of the public of those Provinces, of their educational experts, and of the Local Government itself, is to be left alone. The Graduates' Association of Allahabad, as representing the public in general and the Graduates of the University in particular, have condemned the Bill The Syndicate, whose views are described by the Local Government as representing "the best available expert opinion on the Bill in its bearing on the Allahabad University," have objected to the Bill in clear and emphatic language "The Syndicate entertain the fear," so the Registrar of the University has been directed to write, "that the Bill, if passed into law as it stands, might seriously injure, and would certainly not benefit, this University. The changes proposed in the appointment of members of the Senate, and still more those proposed in the constitution of the Syndicate, would, in their opinion, amount to a retrograde movement in the case of this University and would result in positive harm to its work and interests." The Local Government has concurred in this view. And yet the Bill is being forced upon those Provinces for the sake of securing what the Syndicate aptly term "surface uniformity" in University matters all over India! Again, the University of Bombay has admittedly exercised its power of granting affiliation most sparingly, there being only ten first grade Colleges and one second grade College affiliated to the University in Arts All these Colleges, moreover, with the exception of the second grade College in the Native State of Kolhapur, provide residence in College for at least a part of the students The low commercial rivalry between Colleges, which is rightly objected to, does not exist on our side. And yet the same restrictions in the matter of new affiliations, and the same drastic powers for the inspection and control of affiliated Colleges, are proposed to be provided in the case of Bombay as elsewhere!

3. The principal changes made in the Bill by the Select Committee are four.—(1) the election of ten Fellows by Faculties has been made obligatory, instead of permissive, (2) the elective franchise in the case of Graduates has been conferred on all Graduates of ten years' standing, (3) the discretion of the Chancellor to nominate Fellows has been to some extent controlled by providing that at least half the Fellows nominated by him shall be persons following the profession of education, (4) the obligation, proposed to be imposed on all Colleges affiliated, or seeking affiliation, to make due provision for the residence of their students, has been modified into an obligation to provide for the residence "in the College or in lodgings, approved by the College, of students not residing with their parents or guardians." The other amendments are more or less verbal and are intended to make clearer the meaning or remedy the defective wording of the original Bill. The changes noted above are all in the right direction so far as they go. But they cannot reconcile the Indian public to the retrograde constitutional provisions or the increased Government control over Universities embodied in the Bill. I will briefly indicate here my principal objections to the Bill, as amended by the Select Committee.

4 Clause 3 of the Bill confers on the Universities the requisite legal power to appoint University Professors and to equip University libraries, laboratories and museums. Unless, however, definite provision is made in the Bill to institute in each University a certain number of chairs to start with and to make a commencement in the matter of laboratories and libraries, the clause in question is almost certain to remain a dead letter for many a long year. The money, of course, for these chairs, as also for these libraries and laboratories, will, for the present at any rate, have to be found by Government, and it is not too much to expect Government to do this in consideration of the increased control over University education which this Bill proposes to vest in them. It is true that the Hon'ble Sir Denzil Ibbetson announced last year at Simla that it was the intention of the Government to devote for the next five years a sum not exceeding five lakhs a year to carrying out the proposed reforms in University education. But the very time limit to this special grant, mentioned by the Home Member, shows that no expenditure of a permanent character will be undertaken out of this grant. There seems, therefore, to be little room for the hope that any part of this sum will be devoted to the institution of University chairs. The proposal to turn our Universities into teaching bodies is the only part of the Bill which has been universally approved, and yet this seems to be the only provision which will not come into operation for a long time to come.

5. The provisions, which, in my opinion, are open to the greatest objection, are those dealing with the constitution of the Senates. I object to them on five grounds —(a) they make a clean sweep of the old Senates; (b) the numbers fixed for the new Senates are too small; (c) the proportion thrown open to election is too small, while that reserved for Government nomination is too large; (d) there is no provision for election by those who follow the profession of teaching; (e) the five years' limit to the duration of a Fellowship aggravates the evil of an overwhelming proportion of seats being in the gift of Government

(a) In making a clean sweep of the existing Senates, the Bill inflicts a grievous indignity on men who have on the whole done good work for their Universities in the past. The very least that Government should have done was to have given these men a substantial voice in the appointment of the first Senates under the new Act, as suggested by the Calcutta University.

(b) The Bill, as amended by the Select Committee, prescribes a minimum of 50 and a maximum of 100 members for the three older Universities and a minimum of 40 and a maximum of 75 members for the Universities of Allahabad and the Punjab. These limits are, in my opinion, much too low. I would fix the number for the older Universities at 150 and for the newer ones at 100. The analogy of the London University is mentioned for justifying the proposed reduction in numbers, and it is urged that, as the scheme of the Bill is to put the control of the University education into the hands of educational experts, the proposed limits are reasonable, in view of the number of experts available. The analogy, however, appears to my mind to be wholly misleading. The experts, who sit on the London Senate, are men of acknowledged eminence in the branches of study which they represent. I do not think that the same can be said of many of the educational experts available in India. I wonder how many of them will obtain a seat on the London Senate if they ever sought the honour, and it is not reasonable that these men should, as a class, aspire to the same kind of authority in educational matters in this country that the members of the London Senate exercise in London. Again, though the direct work of the Universities is only educational, its indirect influence is wide and far-reaching, as it affects the whole social, political, economic and religious life of the people. It is, therefore, not fair to the people of this country that the control of this work should be entrusted almost exclusively to a body of men, whose personal interest in the country is only temporary and whose own children receive their higher education elsewhere than at the Indian Universities. It is no doubt necessary that men engaged in the work of education should have a substantial voice in the government of the Universities But in the present circumstances of India, this factor must be associated almost on equal terms with the lay element in the composition of these bodies.

(c) I admit that the statutory provision for the election of two Fellows every year by Graduates in the older Universities is an improvement on the existing practice, which derives its authority from a mere executive order of Government. But in this country, where the Government can pass whatever legislation it pleases, there is, after all, not much difference between a statutory provision and a mere executive order. The number of seats thrown open to election by Graduates is much too small. I think that not less than one-fourth and not more than one-third of the total number of Fellows should be elected by Graduates in the older Universities, and that in the case of Allahabad and the Punjab a beginning should be made at once to introduce election by Graduates. This is necessary to ensure the presence in the Senates of a sufficient number of Indian members, possessing the necessary degree of independence.

(d) The Bill provides for 10 Fellows being elected by the Faculties. I would prefer election by Professors and teachers to this election by Faculties. The Faculties will be small bodies, composed for the most part of Government nominees Such men as the members of these Faculties would like to co-opt may very well enter by the door of Government nomination The Professors and teachers in the different affiliated Colleges have a substantial interest in the deliberations of the Universities, and I think that they are entitled to direct representation. It is true that half the nominations of the Government are now to be from Professors and teachers. But this in practice is likely to mean for the most part the nomination of Professors in Government Colleges and after that in Missionary Colleges I am of opinion that not less than one-fourth and not more than one-third of the total number of Fellows should be elected by Professors and teachers. In this connection I must object most strongly to the proposal to reduce the proportion of elected members in the Senates of the Allahabad and Punjab Universities from one-half to one-fifth. No case has been made out for this retrogression, and in the case of Allahabad, at any rate, the proposed reduction has not a shadow of justification, because the Local Government, as also the educational experts, whose authority is so often invoked, have expressed themselves to be very well satisfied with the existing system.

(e) The duration of a Fellowship should be extended at least to 10 years. This will ensure greater independence on the part of nominated Fellows than if the tenure were for 5 years only This will also give a new man more time and opportunities to render himself useful to his University.

6. My next objection is to the provision securing that "a number, not falling short by more than one of a majority of the elected members of the Syndicate, shall be heads of, or Professors in, Colleges affiliated to the University" Now that at least one-half of the Government nominations are to be from among Professors (and the Faculties may also elect some from this class), it is perfectly unnecessary, and may in practice prove inconvenient, to set apart by statute practically one-half the number of seats on the Syndicate for this class. With half the Senate composed of Professors, if half the Syndics are not elected from this class, it will not be unreasonable to conclude that the men left out do not deserve to be on the Syndicate. And I think the Legislature is not justified in coming to the rescue of such men by means of a statutory provision in their favour.

7 I now come to the provisions regarding the affiliation and disaffiliation of Colleges. Here my first objection is to the proposal to make affiliation and disaffiliation the direct acts of Government It is true that in the existing Acts of the three older Universities, only institutions authorized by Government can send up candidates for the different examinations But in the regulations framed under those Acts, the initiation in regard to both affiliation and disaffiliation has been left to the Universities, the Government contenting itself with only the power of sanction. Thus, in Calcutta, affiliation is granted by the Syndicate with the sanction of Government, and disaffiliation is ordered by the Senate, acting on the recommendation of the Syndicate and with the sanction of the Governor General in Council. In Madras, both affiliation and disaffiliation are matters in the discretion of the Syndicate, acting with the previous sanction of the Governor in Council. In Bombay, the Senate, acting on the recommendation of the Syndicate, may affiliate and disaffiliate a College with the approval of Government. Of the two newer Universities, Allahabad follows the example of Madras, while in the Punjab University, everything is left to the Senate. Nowhere is affiliation and disaffiliation at present the direct act of Government. Moreover, whatever may be technically the legal extent of Government's power in this respect under the existing Acts, one would have expected that, in the new scheme of University reform, larger powers in this matter would be entrusted to the reconstructed Senates. So far, however, from this being the case, the Bill proposes to go back even upon existing practice. Under the provisions contained in this Bill, the Government can affiliate and disaffiliate a College in spite of a unanimous recommendation to the contrary by both the Syndicate and the Senate This is hardly consistent with the dignity of these bodies. I confess I fail to understand why it is necessary for Government to distrust them so much even after their reconstruction. I think Government may well claim that no College should be affiliated or disaffiliated without its previous sanction, but there is absolutely no justification for going beyond this.

8. The proposal to exact a very high standard of efficiency from a new College at the very start is also open to serious objection, and in practice the cumulative effect of the provisions on this subject will be to prevent a new College from coming into existence, unless it was a Missionary College or was strongly backed by Government. I insist, as well as any one else, on every College reaching a certain—fairly high—standard of efficiency within a reasonable time of its affiliation—say ten or fifteen years. But to require every College to begin its career in a high state of efficiency, such as has not yet been attained by many of the older Colleges, both Government and private, is to ignore the great difficulties that beset all private enterprize in the field of higher education in India. My own College—the Fergusson College of Poona—took nearly ten years to bring up its equipment to its present level, and this, in spite of the enthusiastic support which the institution received both from the Princes and the people of the Bombay Presidency. I am sure, if the Bombay University had insisted, at the very outset of our career, upon the standard of efficiency which the Bill contemplates, the Fergusson College would not have come into existence. With the popular element all but dissociated from the government of the Universities, these provisions are bound to make the rise of new Colleges well nigh impossible, and this cannot fail to have a disastrous effect on the educational interests of the country.

9. My next objection is to the provision about the periodical inspection of Colleges by the Syndicate. I do not object to the principle of such inspection—indeed, I would welcome it most gladly, if properly qualified persons were available for this work in this country. But as things are, the inspection is bound to be merely a costly sham, except perhaps in the case of Colleges much below the average. Is the inspecting officer to inspect only what may be called the physical side of a College—the College library and laboratory, the College playgrounds and residential quarters (where these have been provided), and the buildings in which the College classes meet? If this is all that is intended, I have nothing to say, for any person of ordinary intelligence will do for this work. But, if the Inspector is expected to report on the quality of the work done by Professors, the proposal is simply impracticable. The Professors in Colleges are—at any rate, are supposed to be—specialists, and it is impossible for one man, however eminent he may be in his own branch of study, to inspect the work of men belonging to other branches. And if it is proposed to depute different men for inspecting the work in different subjects, the cost of such an arrangement will be prohibitive. Moreover, such inspection cannot fail to be more or less irritating in practice to our best men. I would like to know, for instance, whom the Bombay University would depute to inspect Mr. Selby's work in Philosophy, or Mr. Bain's work in Political Economy, or Mr. Paranjpe's work in Mathematics.

10. My last objection is to clause 26, which empowers the Government to make additions to or alterations in the draft of the first body of regulations proposed by the Senate, even though the Senate disapproves of such additions and alterations. I object to this provision on principle. I think that with a Senate, reconstructed as proposed, there is small risk of the wishes of Government being disregarded by that body. Such little risk as there is in theory ought to be accepted by Government, if any trace of dignity or independence is to be left to the Senate. After all, the Government itself must act in the matter on some one's advice. And who can be more competent to tender this advice than a body of men, selected for the most part by Government and entrusted with the special control of higher education?

11. I have noted above the principal provisions in the Bill, to which I take exception. There are some minor points, which also I disapprove; but I have not thought it necessary to refer to them here.

G. K. GOKHALE.

I regret I find myself unable to agree with my Hon'ble Colleagues upon certain points in connection with the Indian Universities Bill. I am thankful to them for having accepted many of my suggestions, but as the points, upon which I have the misfortune to differ, involve important questions of principle, I am obliged to deal with them in this Note of Dissent, and I shall do so in the order in which they arise upon the clauses of the Bill.

1. Election of Ordinary Fellows.—Clause 4 of the Bill, as amended by the Select Committee, provides that, of the Ordinary Fellows of the University, some shall be elected by Registered Graduates or by the Senate, some shall be elected by the Faculties and the remainder shall be nominated by the Chancellor Clause 6, as amended, fixes the number of those to be elected by Registered Graduates in the case of the Universities of Calcutta, Bombay and Madras, at ten, and it also fixes the number of those to be elected by the Faculties at ten This is, no doubt, some improvement upon the Bill as introduced in Council, which made the election by the Faculties entirely dependent upon the discretion of the Chancellor. But the provisions of the Bill, even as they now stand, seem to me to be open to two objections. In the first place, the number of Ordinary Fellows to be elected by the Graduates (or by the Senate in the case of the Universities of the Punjab and Allahabad), as also the number of those to be elected by the Faculties, is wholly inadequate, and I would, without hesitation, recommend that these numbers should be doubled. In the second place, the Bill as amended makes no provision for election by another constituency which, in my opinion, has the first claim upon the University, namely, the Professors and Lecturers in Institutions affiliated to the University. If it be the object of the Bill to secure for the Universities an "Academic Senate" and also "to secure the closest possible co-operation between University and College authorities," I think it is essential that the right of representation on the Senate should be conferred by Statute upon those who carry on the educational work of the Colleges affiliated to the University, and I venture to think that the omission to provide for such representation is a grave defect in the Bill As it might be doubted whether any workable and consistent scheme could be devised to secure the end in view, I subjoin one such scheme which I placed before the Select Committee I would suggest that at least ten of the Ordinary Fellows should be elected by registered Heads of, or Professors in, affiliated Colleges, and that the following be inserted as a new clause after clause 8 of the Bill :—

"8 (A). (1) Once in every year, on such date as the Chancellor may appoint in this behalf, there shall, if necessary, be an election to fill any vacancy among the Ordinary Fellows elected by registered Heads of, or Professors in, Institutions affiliated to the University.

"(2) The Syndicate shall maintain a register on which any person who is the Head of, or Professor in, an Institution affiliated to the University, shall, subject to the payment of an initial fee of such amount as may be prescribed under regulations made in this behalf, be entitled to have his name entered, upon application made within the period of three years from the commencement of this Act, or one year from the date on which, by reason of his appointment as Head or Professor, he becomes so entitled

"Provided, nevertheless, that if such application is made after the expiry of the aforesaid period, the applicant shall be entitled to have his name entered upon payment of the said initial fee and such further sum as may be prescribed under regulations made in this behalf.

"(3) The name of any Head or Professor entered on the register shall, subject to the payment of an annual fee of such amount as may be prescribed under regulations made in this behalf, be retained thereon, so long as he continues to be the Head of, or Professor in, an Institution affiliated to the University, and in case of default or of his ceasing to be a Head or Professor, his name shall be removed therefrom :

"Provided, nevertheless, that the name of such person shall at any time, if he is duly qualified, be re-entered upon payment of such sum as may be prescribed under regulations made in this behalf

"(4) No person other than a Head or a Professor whose name is entered in the said register, shall be qualified to vote or to be elected at an election held under sub-section (1) :

"Subject, nevertheless, to such directions as may be given from time to time by the Chancellor, with a view to secure a fair representation of the Government, Aided, and, Unaided Institutions, as also of different branches of study on the Senate.

"(5) If a question arises at any time as to whether any person is a bonâ fide Head of, or Professor in, an affiliated Institution for the purposes of this section, the matter shall be referred to the Senate whose decision shall be final."

2. Duration of Fellowship.—The Bill, as amended by the Select Committee, leaves unaltered the provision that the Ordinary Fellows of the University shall hold office for five years.. This rule will tend to impair the independence of nominated Fellows, and I am not sure that it may not also keep away from the elections quiet scholars who would hardly care to face a contested election once in every five years. I would therefore recommend that the proposed limitation be abolished; great care should be taken when a Fellow is appointed, and once a proper person has been appointed, he should be allowed to work. The only plausible reason that may be urged against this suggestion, is the tendency of life Fellowships to postpone the admission of new members who may be of exceptional distinction, till a vacancy occurs. But the obvious answer to this objection is, that the number of persons of such distinction is very limited, and, no practical difficulty need be apprehended, inasmuch as vacancies on the Senate must frequently arise by reason of death, resignation or retirement, as also by the operation of section 11, sub-section (2). If, however, Fellowships are to be made terminable, a period of five years does certainly seem to be too short, under the operation of this rule, a Fellow may be removed from his office just when he has acquired some experience in the work of administration of the University, and is in a position to make himself useful. I would, therefore, suggest, if there is to be any time limit, that it should be at least seven if not ten years.

3. Number of Ordinary Fellows—Clause 6 of the Bill, as amended by the Select Committee, provides that in the case of the Universities of Calcutta, Bombay and Madras, the number of Ordinary Fellows shall not be less than fifty nor exceed one hundred. This is a slight improvement upon the Bill as introduced in Council, which was silent about the minimum limit, which had been fixed by the Act of Incorporation at thirty for the Universities of Calcutta and Madras, and at twenty-six for the University of Bombay. In my opinion, fifty as a minimum limit is too low, and I believe that it would be found inadequate for a proper representation of the various educational interests which ought to be represented on the Senate. But we must not lose sight of the very important fact that, besides this representation of what may be considered as personal or class interests, there is a higher representation, namely, the full and adequate representation of every department of study included within the scope of the University, the field of education is so vast and varied, and educational problems often involve such complex and difficult matters, that the combined reason of even the best fifty men may not be a sufficient safeguard for that elimination of personal equations which is absolutely necessary for the proper solution of those problems. I would, therefore, advocate that the number, so far, at any rate, as the Calcutta University is concerned, should be fixed at one hundred; in any event, the minimum should not be fixed lower than seventy-five. In the case of the University of the Punjab, the Act of Incorporation provides that the number of Fellows shall never be less than fifty, and so far as I can judge, there is no good reason why the minimum should be lowered to forty, as is done in the amended Bill. In the case of the Universities of the Punjab and Allahabad, the minimum ought not to be fixed lower than sixty

4. Character and Constitution of the Senate. The gravest defect in the Bill, as introduced in Council, is the omission to define in any way the character of the Senate. The Bill, as amended by the Select Committee, seeks, in some measure, to remedy this defect by the insertion of a proviso to clause 10, to which I shall presently refer It appears to me to be of paramount importance that the general principles which should regulate the constitution of the new Senate should be clearly defined and embodied in the Statute. It is pointed out in the Report of the Universities Commission (paragraph 35) that although "the Senates of the three older Universities were in their origin intended to be bodies of persons qualified to advise and to exercise control in educational matters," yet "for some time past, the notion has prevailed that a Fellowship is a distinction which may be bestowed by way of compliment, without much regard to the academic qualifications of the recipient." The Commissioners accordingly recommend (paragraph 42 of the Report) that "no Fellowship should in future be conferred, merely by way of compliment", and that "in every case there should be some good academic reason for the appointment"; they next proceed to describe how the Senate, as a whole, should be constituted. As I have already stated, in my opinion, the substance of the recommendation of the Commission on this point should be embodied in the Bill. There cannot be the slightest doubt that the condition of the present Senates which the Government is now pleased to describe as unsatisfactory, has been brought about, mainly if not entirely, by the action or the inaction of the Government itself. I do not think it is any answer to say, that the principles have now been investigated by the Commission, and are not likely to be overlooked in future. Past experience proves conclusively that recommendations of important Commissions and even principles set out in important Resolutions of the Government, are liable, in the course of a few years, to be forgotten and overlooked. If we are agreed about the principles on which the Senate is to be reconstituted, let them be set out in the Statute. There are obvious advantages to be secured by the adoption of such a course. If these principles are clearly formulated and if they find a place in the Act, they become widely known, easily ascertainable and little liable to capricious variation; the only persons who may find it inconvenient to see these principles formulated in the Statute, are those who, a few years hence, may find it necessary to disregard or to deviate, from them. I may further point out, that as it is proposed to make Fellowships terminable after five years, there must be frequent vacancies and constant changes in the Senate, and I deem it essential that certain well-recognised principles should be steadily kept in view. I would therefore recommend that the following be inserted as a new clause after clause 6:—

"6A. (1) The Ordinary Fellows of the University shall be persons distinguished for their attainments in any branch of Literature, Science or Art or for their devotion to the cause of education.

"(2) Not less than two-fifths of the total number of Ordinary Fellows shall be Heads of, or Professors in Institutions affiliated to the University, provided that, at least one-half of such Heads or Professors shall belong to Institutions not owned or managed by the Local Government.

"(3) Not less than two-fifths of the total number of Ordinary Fellows shall be non-officials.

"(4) When the jurisdiction of the University extends over more than one Province, the nominations of Ordinary Fellows by the Chancellor shall be made, as far as practicable, with due regard to a fair representation of the educational interests of each of such Provinces.

"(5) The nominations of Ordinary Fellows by the Chancellor shall be made, as far as practicable, with due regard to a fair representation of the principal religious communities whose children are educated at or admitted to the examinations of the University."

I believe that if these principles are adopted and fairly worked out, we shall be able to secure reconstituted Senates which will be "academic" in their character, and will "fairly and adequately represent Government and private educational interests, and, non-educational, official, and, non-official interests, represented by Europeans and Indians, in fair and if possible, equal proportion" It is hardly necessary to point out that a properly constituted Senate is of fundamental importance, and every safe-guard ought to be provided for the continuance of the character initially imposed on it, otherwise, the benefits expected from the operation of this Bill may prove illusory and the interests of high education itself may not improbably suffer. I may observe that the second principle enunciated in the clause proposed by me is partially—and only partially—covered by the proviso added to clause 10 by the Select Committee, which lays down "that not less than one-half of the persons so nominated (by the Chancellor) shall be persons following the profession of education within the territorial limits assigned to the University by the Governor General in Council under section 27" This proviso, as it stands, seems to me to be open to more than one objection, first, it is incomplete as it deals with only one of the principles which ought to regulate the constitution of the Senate; secondly, it is inadequate, inasmuch as it makes no attempt to define the character of the Senate as a whole; thirdly, it is likely to do more harm than good unless it is coupled with a qualifying clause, securing the adequate representation of Professors in Colleges not owned or managed by the Government; these form precisely the class of people who, for obvious reasons, may find it extremely difficult to have their just claims readily recognised by the Government.

5. University Funds.—Clause 3 of the Bill defines the powers of the University. It is clearly impossible for the University to exercise these powers without adequate funds. I would therefore suggest that the following new clause be inserted after clause 6.—

"6 (B). Every Ordinary Fellow of the University shall, during the term that he continues to be such Fellow, annually pay into the University chest a sum Rs 50 for the creation of a fund to be devoted exclusively to the objects mentioned in section 3.

If an Ordinary Fellow does not pay such fee within the year for which it is due, the Chancellor may declare his office to be vacated"

I do not lose sight of the fact that if my suggestion be accepted, it may amount to what may, perhaps, be described as an unfair demand on our European fellow-subjects to contribute not only to the intellectual capital of an Indian University, as they must do, if it is to work well, but also to its pecuniary capital, when the intellectual benefit to be derived is, no doubt, mainly confined to Indians. But I venture to hope that gentlemen who are associated with the work of the University and who take a genuine interest in the promotion of the object which the University has in view, will be found not unwilling to contribute to its funds. I may point out that even now the University of Cambridge imposes on each member of the University an annual payment with a view to provide sufficient means for a Professorship of Experimental Physics, and for other wants of the University.—(Cambridge Ordinances, 1901, p 394.)

6. Transitory Provisions.—As regards the transitory provisions contained in clause 12 of the Bill for the re-constitution of the governing bodies of the University, there are two points upon which I find myself unable to agree with my Hon'ble Colleagues. In the first place, the Bill ought to provide that a certain proportion, at least, of the Ordinary Fellows to be appointed under the new Act, shall be persons holding office as Fellows at the date of the commencement of the Act. In my opinion, this proportion should not be less than two-thirds. If it be true, that there is no intention "to extinguish the present Senate" and that the only object is to "re-constitute" it, it seems to me, that the proportion which I have suggested is by no means too high. I think the inefficiency of the present Senate has been greatly exaggerated, especially by persons who are outside the University, and who imagine, not unnaturally perhaps, that once they are within it, matters will be set right in no time. In the second place I am unable to accept the provision that the first Ordinary Fellows appointed under the new Act shall be liable to removal after three years. In my opinion, they ought to be allowed to hold office for the minimum period of five years prescribed by clause 4, and I am unable to see that any evil or inconvenience is likely to result if my suggestion is accepted.

7. Constitution of the Syndicate—So far as the constitution of the Syndicate is concerned, I find myself unable to accept the provision contained in clause 15, sub-clause (2), which provides that "a number, not falling short by more than one of a majority of the elected members of the Syndicate, shall be Heads of, or Professors in, Colleges affiliated to the University." The provision relating to this matter, in its present amended form, is no doubt of a more practical character and less open to objection than the corresponding provision in the Bill as introduced in Council It may be conceded that teachers ought to be fairly represented on the governing body of the University, but surely this object ought to be attained, not by means of any artificial rules as proposed in the Bill, but by securing to teachers of eminence and distinction, full and adequate representation on the Senate. If that is done, teachers will be duly represented on the Syndicate even by unrestricted election, not merely because they are teachers, but because they deserve to be there. Moreover, any rule for the representation of teachers on the Syndicate, which does not safeguard the interests of Government, Aided and Unaided Colleges, will be rightly regarded as unsatisfactory, and I fail to see, how under existing conditions, all Colleges or even all classes of Colleges can be represented on the Syndicate

I am also unable to appreciate the necessity for making any provision for an ex-officio member of the Syndicate. I do not suggest for a moment that the Director of Public Instruction should not be a member of the Syndicate. In the Calcutta University, almost since its foundation, the Director of Public Instruction has been returned by the Faculty of Arts as one of its representatives on the Syndicate, and has been rightly regarded as a necessary member of the executive body of the University But as the Director of Public Instruction does not and cannot represent all departments of study and all educational interests, if the principle of ex-officio membership of the Syndicate is recognised, I am afraid similar claim may be urged on behalf of others in relation to legal, medical or engineering education.

8. Inspection of Colleges.—One of the most important provisions of the Bill regarding the relation between the University and the affiliated Colleges, is the right of inspection conferred upon the Syndicate. It is unquestionable that the University should exercise an effective power of control over affiliated Colleges, and should exercise some degree of supervision over them, but it is equally clear that the power of inspection, unless cautiously and judiciously exercised, may lead to friction and may ultimately do more harm than good. In order to enable the University to discharge this new function properly, it is essential that, as soon as funds permit, the University should make provision for the appointment of an eminently qualified officer for the inspection of affiliated Colleges, but inasmuch as this may not be found practicable immediately, and as inspection may have to be done by what is described in the Bill, as "any competent person", I would suggest that the following provision may be inserted in the Bill wherever inspection is directed.

"Provided that such inspection shall not be made by any person who is directly or indirectly interested in any affiliated College in the neighbourhood of the College to be inspected."

9. Affiliation and Disaffiliation of Colleges.—I am unable to accept the provisions of the Bill relating to affiliation and disaffiliation of Colleges, in so far as such provisions make affiliation or disaffiliation, the direct act of the Government, the Syndicate and the Senate being treated merely as agencies for the collection of information and submission of reports. So far as the Calcutta University is concerned, under the existing Regulations, no College can be affiliated or disaffiliated without the ultimate sanction of the Government, but when the University authorities decide that no action is necessary, the matter does not go up to the Government. I venture to think the Bill ought to provide that when in the opinion of the Senate, no action is necessary upon an application for affiliation or upon a motion for disaffiliation, the matter need not go up to the Government, but when the Senate decides that some action is necessary in either case, the decision of the Senate may be given effect to after it has been confirmed by the Government. If the re-constituted Senate is adequate to the duties imposed upon it, surely it may and ought to be trusted in a matter like this, if it does not deserve this small amount of confidence, I do not see that there is any justification for its existence.

10 New body of Regulations.—Clause 26 of the Bill as amended by the Select Committee provides that within a specified period after the commencement of the Act, the Senate shall cause a revised body of Regulations to be prepared and submitted in draft to the Government, and the Government may, after consulting the Senate, sanction the proposed body of Regulations, with such additions and alterations as appear to the Government to be necessary. I entirely dissent from the view that the Government should take power to add to or alter the Regulations. Under the Act of Incorporation, Regulations framed by the Senate do not acquire any binding character till they have received the approval of the Government. The power of veto which the Government thus enjoys, is, I venture to think, quite effective for all practical purposes It seems to me to be quite inconsistent with the character of the University, as a body of experts, that an elaborate set of Regulations framed by them should be liable to be modified by the Government, and I am unable to see where Government will get expert advice outside the Senate to help it in the performance of this delicate and difficult task If the Government has such expert advisers surely they ought to be on the Senate, so that they may take part in the deliberations of the University when the Regulations are framed. I concede, that it is not merely inevitable but necessary and desirable that Government should exercise some degree of control over the University, yet it does not follow by any means, that the Government should reserve to itself such possible power of interference as may reduce the University to a Department of the Government. Let the Universities be re-constituted with the utmost care and caution But if the Universities are to take root and grow on Indian soil, the re-constituted Senates must be trusted and allowed to enjoy some degree of independence

And the Senate shall, after such further inquiry (if any) as may appear to them to be necessary, record their opinion on the matter.

(3) The Registrar shall submit the application and all proceedings of the Syndicate and Senate relating thereto to the Government, who, after such further inquiry as may appear to them to be necessary, shall grant or refuse the application or any part thereof

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 a.m. on Thursday, the 18th February 1904, based on the India Daily Weather Reports of the period.

During the first five days of the week under review, viz., from the 12th to the 16th, the weather was very quiet and settled over the Indian land area. On the 12th the only rainfall reported was 0·07" at Kodaikanal and on the 13th 0·02" at Tinnevelly and 0·01" at Kodaikanal. On the 14th there was no rain anywhere, on the 15th only 0·05" at Gauhati, and on the 16th again no rain in any part of the area. On the 16th conditions were changing somewhat. The barometer was falling almost everywhere and shallow depressions had formed over Gujarat and the Central Provinces. On the 17th these two depressions continued to be shown and a third had appeared over Orissa, while the reports of the 18th showed that the barometer continued to fall and that the three depressions were drifting eastward. These depressions were very shallow but they occasioned disturbed weather, so that, on the 17th Dibrugarh reported 0·12" of rain, Pendra 0·27", Sambalpur 0·38" and Cuttack 0·15", and on the 18th Silchar 0·80", Mymensingh 0·27", Dibrugarh 0·45", Sibsagar 0·18", Tezpur 0·56", Gauhati 1·00", Dhubri 2·36", Shillong 1·32", Cherra Poonjee 1·44", Darjeeling 1·38", Jalpaiguri 0·31", Chaibassa 1·63", Ranchi 0·32" and Hazaribagh 0·31".

The rainfall table shows that during the week under review efficient rain fell in the Narayanganj sub-division, the Brahmaputra division, the Dinajpur and Ranchi sub-divisions and the East Coast (South) division, while in other parts of the country the week has been actually or practically rainless.

The seasonal rainfall has been normal in the following divisions and sub-divisions, viz., Narayanganj, Brahmaputra Valley, North-West Dry Area, Baluchistan, Calicut and Bellary, and excessive in South India and the East Coast (South).

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 13th February 1904.

Madras.—There was no rain during the week. Irrigation supplies are generally sufficient. Ploughing, sowing, and transplanting are in progress in parts. The standing crops are generally good. Harvests continue with fair outturn. Pasture is generally sufficient and fodder is procurable. The condition of cattle is good. Prices are almost stationary.

Bombay.—There was no rain during the week. The rainfall has been generally sufficient except in parts of Larkana, Khandesh, Nasik, and Poona. The standing crops have been damaged by locusts in parts of Ratnagiri and Satara, by rats in parts of Panch Mahals, Khandesh, Nasik, Sholapur, Satara and Bijapur; by frost in parts of Karachi and Ahmedabad; by blight in parts of Dharwar, they are suffering for want of sufficient moisture in parts of Poona and Sholapur and are generally in good condition elsewhere. Harvesting of autumn crops continues in parts of Surat, Khandesh, Sholapur, and Dharwar. Threshing is completed in Colaba and continues in parts of Surat, Nasik, Poona, and Canara. The harvesting of spring crops is in progress in parts of Broach, Poona, Satara, and Bijapur and has commenced in parts of Khandesh and Nasik. Threshing is in progress in parts of the Panch Mahals and Satara. Cotton is slightly damaged by rats or blight in parts of Bijapur and Dharwar, by frost in parts of Ahmedabad; is in fair condition in the Panch Mahals and Surat, and generally in good condition in Larkana and Broach Picking is completed in Khandesh and continues in parts of Ahmedabad, Broach, Surat, Poona, Rajkot, and Baroda The fodder supply is sufficient. Agricultural stock is generally sufficient and in good condition. The water-supply is generally sufficient. Prices have fallen in three districts, risen in one district, and are stationary elsewhere.

Bengal.—No rain is reported for the week. The standing crops require rain in Burdwan, Murshidabad, Champaran, and Palamau. Some damage to crops has been caused by insects in Burdwan. Prospects are otherwise good. Threshing of winter rice, pressing of sugarcane and harvesting of early spring crops continue. The outturn of wheat and oil-seed crops is estimated at 94 per cent. of a normal crop. Preparation of land for early rice and jute is proceeding. Fodder and water are generally sufficient The price of common rice has risen in seven districts, has fallen in nine, and is stationary in the remainder.

United Provinces.—There was no rain during the week Rain is now wanted in Dehra Dun, Almora, Bijnor, Moradabad, Bareilly, Budaun, Pilibhit, Bahraich, and Lucknow for unirrigated land. Land is being prepared in places for autumn crops. In Agra, Shahjahanpur, Fatehpur, and Lucknow the crops have been slightly damaged by frost, but are generally in good condition. The poppy crop promises well. The pressing of sugarcane and the irrigation of spring crops continue. The food and fodder supply is sufficient and prices are stationary.

Punjab.—There was no rain during the week. The price of wheat is rising in Hissar and Shahpur and falling in Umballa. The prices of other food grains are fluctuating. Pressing of sugarcane continues in Jullundur, Lahore, and Amritsar. Sowing of extra spring crops in certain districts, and of sugarcane in Ferozepore has commenced The condition of the standing irrigated crops is reported good to fair in all districts, and that of unirrigated crops is unfavourable in Hissar, Delhi, Umballa, and Ferozepore where rain is urgently required. The unirrigated crops in Hissar are withering. The outturn of sugarcane is average in Shahpur. The condition of cattle is generally good in all districts. Fodder is said to be sufficient in all districts, except in parts of Rawalpindi and Delhi.

North-West Frontier Province.—There was no rain during the week. The condition of two standing crops is good. Stocks of food-grains and fodder are ample. Water in canals is sufficient. Prices are falling in Dera Ismail Khan, but are stationary in Peshawar

Burma.—There was no rain during the week. In Lower Burma threshing and winnowing have been completed in six districts and are progressing in Tharrawaddy and Myaungmya. In Upper Burma reaping of wet weather paddy is practically over. Sowing of dry weather paddy is progressing almost everywhere. Plucking of tobacco leaves in Momeik in the Ruby Mines District and ploughing for sessamum in the Kyaukse township have commenced. The standing crops are fair to good. The price of paddy has risen in Akyab and Myaungmya and slightly in four other districts and has fallen in Bassein and Bhamo.

Central Provinces.—The weather has been occasionally cloudy but rainless. The picking of cotton still continues in parts of the Nimar, Akola, and Basim districts. The reaping of wheat, gram, and linseed has commenced. The outturns promise to be about the normal. The spring crops are generally in good condition, but owing to the dryness of the soil wheat has suffered somewhat in the Basim taluk. The preparation of land is in progress in Berar. Prices of wheat and rice show a tendency to fall.

Assam.—There was slight rain in Kamrup during the week. Tea pruning, sugarcane-pressing, ploughing for rice, and jute, and gathering of mustard are in progress. EXTENSION TO MADRAS AND BOMBAY OF THE RULES FOR ADJUSTMENT OF EXPENDITURE ON FOREST SURVEYS APPLICABLE TO THE BENGAL PRESIDENCY AND AMALGAMATION OF THE FOREST SURVEY BRANCH WITH THE SURVEY OF INDIA DEPARTMENT

Circular No. 3 213-5 F., dated Calcutta, the 11th February 1904.

RESOLUTION.

The Governments of Madras and Bombay having accepted the suggestion of the Government of India that in future the Forest Surveys in those Presidencies shall come under the supervision and professional control of the Superintendent of Forest Surveys, who is an officer of the Survey of India, it has become necessary to make arrangements for the control and regulation of what will in future be the Forest Survey Branch of the Survey of India.

This Branch will no longer consist of one Imperial Survey party and a few Forest Survey detachments, but will constitute a considerable integral portion of the Survey of India, and the Governor General in Council is pleased therefore to direct that the following arrangements shall be made for the conduct of all Forest Surveys executed in future in India and Burma, in supersession of those promulgated in Resolutions No. 6 of the 6th March 1899 and No 7 of the 25th April 1901. The arrangements will come into force from the 1st April 1904

1 All Forest Survey operations in India and Burma, other than those undertaken by local Forest officials, will be carried out under the superintendence of an officer of the Survey of India, who will be nominated by the Surveyor General and designated Superintendent, Forest Surveys. He will be in charge of the Forest Survey Branch of the Survey of India, and his position and powers will be in all respects similar to those of the Superintendent, Trigonometrical Surveys.

2 All officers of the Survey of India, both Imperial and Provincial, at present on deputation to the Forest Department for survey purposes, as well as No 20 party in its entirety, will revert to the Survey of India.

3. The permanent native subordinate establishment of the old Forest Survey Branch of the Forest Department will be transferred to the Survey of India.

4. All members of the new Forest Survey Branch will be subject to the rules and regulations laid down for the Survey of India.

5. All accounts of the Forest Survey Branch will be kept in accordance with the rules applicable to the Survey of India and be submitted through the Superintendent, Forest Surveys, to the Comptroller, India Treasuries, for audit.

Abstracts of the monthly expense statements will be furnished by the Superintendent, Forest Surveys, to the Conservators of Forests concerned, in order to enable them to adjust the expenditure of their Circles accordingly.

6. The cost of all Forest Surveys on scales of not less than four inches to the mile, executed by the Forest Survey Branch, will be distributed as follows —

To Topographical Survey	30 per cent
To Forest "	70 " "

Provided that when special work is done at the instance of the Local Government, such as a boundary survey, the survey of a plantation on a particularly large scale, or of a river with exceptional detail, made with a view to the improvement of the waterway, the cost of it will be charged entirely to " Forests."

7. The charges for maps will be debited as follows:—

(a) The cost of the preparation and publication of the first editions of all forest maps drawn in connection with current field surveys, will form part of the general charges for such surveys, and will be distributed in the same way as the cost of the actual field survey. Copies of such maps will be issued free of charge on requisitions signed by Conservators.

(b) The cost of second and subsequent editions will be borne by the Presidency, Province or Administration concerned

(c) The cost of preparation and publication of special maps required for and prepared at the instance of the Inspector-General of Forests, will be debited against the Head-Quarters budget

(d) The cost of all special maps prepared and published for Provincial Governments, with the sanction of the Inspector-General of Forests, will be charged to the Government or Administration concerned.

8 The cost of all surveys executed by Local Forest officials will be debited entirely to "Forests"

9 All expenditure on surveys charged to "Forests," in Provinces to which the Provincial Service arrangements apply, will be divided between Imperial and Provincial as heretofore, in the same way as all other Forest expenditure.

10 The annual programme of Forest Surveys for the Bengal Presidency and for Burma will be drawn up by the Superintendent, Forest Surveys, in consultation with Local Governments, and be submitted for approval to the Inspector-General of Forests

The programmes for Bombay and Madras will be prepared similarly and be submitted for approval to the Governments of those Presidencies. The combined programme will then be submitted by the Superintendent, Forest Surveys, to the Surveyor General, who, after consultation with the Inspector-General of Forests, will include it in the general programme of the Survey of India, which he submits annually to the Government of India for approval.

It is essential that the programme for the year should be settled not later than the 1st July in that year to allow of the probable cost of the operations being intimated by the Superintendent, Forest Surveys, to the various Conservators concened with a view to suitable provision being made in the Revised Estimate of the Forest Department When the annual programme of Forest Surveys is settled, the Superintendent of Forest Surveys will furnish to each Conservator concerned a forecast (as accurate as possible) of the operations to be undertaken in the following year and their cost, to serve as a basis in the preparation of the Budget Estimate

11. The Superintendent, Forest Surveys, will, as heretofore, keep up the map records of the Forest Department, and will prepare such index and working-plan maps, and such other special maps and tracings as may be sanctioned by the Inspector-General of Forests. He will also be responsible for the safe custody and distribution of all forest maps

12. The following rules will govern the procedure to be adopted in the Estimates and Accounts —

(1) All revenue and expenditure controlled by the Superintendent of Forest Surveys will, in the first instance, be shown in the India Accounts as Imperial "Survey of India."

(2) The Annual Estimates will, however, be prepared separately from those of the Survey of India, and the Superintendent of Forest Surveys will append to them a detailed statement showing the amounts debitable respectively, against Survey of India, against Forest Imperial (India) in respect of the fixed proportion (70 per cent) of Head-Quarters charges, and against Forests Provincial in respect of the proper share of charges for Provincial Survey operations and the preparation and publication of Forest maps These estimates will be submitted by the Superintendent of Forest Surveys to the Government of India through the Surveyor General.

(3) The amounts included in the annual estimates which appertain to the Survey of India and to the several Local Governments will be passed on to the Survey of India Estimate and to the estimates of the Governments concerned. The portion appertaining to the Survey of India Estimate will be included by the Surveyor General therein on receipt of the Resolution passed by the Department of Revenue and Agriculture upon the Forest Survey Estimates previously submitted.

(4) In order to admit of the above procedure being properly carried out, it is essential that the separate Forest Survey Estimates should reach the Government of India not later than the 1st November annually

(5) The actual adjustment of expenditure in the Accounts will be made by the Comptroller, India Treasuries. For this purpose, the Superintendent of Forest Surveys will furnish with his monthly accounts to that officer a detailed distribution statement similar to that appended to his annual estimates A copy of this statement should be furnished also to the Surveyor General and the Inspector-General of Forests.

(6) Whenever it is foreseen that the expenditure during the year will exceed or fall short of the sanctioned Budget Estimates, the Superintendent of Forest Surveys will advise the Conservator concerned so that he may apply for additional provision, if necessary, or apply the saving to other purposes.

13. Minor Forest Surveys which are within the competence of the Provincial Forest Staff will be conducted by the local officers of the Circle concerned, but whenever such a work, not of a petty nature, is so undertaken, the advice of the Superintendent, Forest Surveys, regarding it should be first obtained through the Inspector-General of Forests, or in the case of Bombay through the officer in charge of the Working-Plans Branch. This is necessary in order to prevent an undue expenditure of public money on over-elaborate or completely inadequate schemes of survey.

14 In Madras correspondence on Forest Survey matters will, except in regard to minor details, be carried on between the Forest Survey Department and the Board of Revenue as the head of the Forest Department

Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded, for information and guidance, to all Local Governments and Administrations noted in the margin, to the Comptroller and Auditor General and to the Comptroller, India Treasuries, also to the Inspector-General of Forests, for information and for communication to the Superintendent of Forest Surveys, and to the Department of Finance and Commerce, and the Surveyor General of India, for information

No. 513-E.B.—The following communication addressed by His Majesty's Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs to the Right Honourable St. John Brodrick, His Majesty's Secretary of State for India, is published for general information and guidance:—

"His Majesty being fully determined to observe the duties of neutrality during the existing state of war between Russia and Japan, and being, moreover, resolved to prevent, as far as possible, the use of His Majesty's harbours, ports, and coasts and the waters within His Majesty's territorial jurisdiction in aid of the warlike purposes of either belligerent, has commanded me to communicate to you, for your guidance, the following rules which are to be treated and enforced as His Majesty's orders and directions:—

"RULE I.—During the continuance of the present state of war, all ships of war of either belligerent are prohibited from making use of any port or roadstead in the United Kingdom, the Isle of Man, or the Channel Islands, or in any of His Majesty's Colonies or Foreign possessions or dependencies or of any waters, subject to the territorial jurisdiction of the British Crown as a station or place of resort for any warlike purpose or for the purpose of obtaining any facilities for warlike equipment And no ship of war of either belligerent shall hereafter be permitted to leave any such port, roadstead, or waters from which any vessel of the other belligerent (whether the same shall be a ship of war or a merchant ship) shall have previously departed until after the expiration of at least twenty four hours from the departure of such last mentioned vessel beyond the territorial jurisdiction of His Majesty

"RULE II.—If there is now in any such port, roadstead, or waters, subject to territorial jurisdiction of the British Crown, any ship of war of either belligerent, such ship of war shall leave such port, roadstead, or waters within such time, not less than twenty-four hours, as shall be reasonable, having regard to all circumstances and the conditions of such ship as to repairs, provisions, or things necessary for the subsistence of her crew And, if after the date hereof any ship of war of either belligerent shall enter any such port, roadstead, or waters, subject to the territorial jurisdiction of the British Crown, such ship shall depart and put to sea within twenty-four hours after her entrance into any such port, roadstead, or waters, except in case of stress of weather, or of her requiring provisions or things necessary for the subsistence of her crew, or repairs, in either of which cases the authorities of the port or of the nearest port (as the case may be) shall require her to put to sea as soon as possible after the expiration of such period of twenty-four hours without permitting her to take in supplies beyond what may be necessary for her immediate use and no such vessel, which may have been allowed to remain within British waters for the purpose of repair, shall continue in any such port, roadstead, or waters for a longer period than twenty-four hours after her necessary repairs shall have been completed Provided, nevertheless, that, in all cases in which there shall be any vessels (whether ships of war or merchant ships) of both the said belligerent parties in the same port, roadstead, or waters within the territorial jurisdiction of His Majesty, there shall be an interval of not less than twenty-four hours between the departure therefrom of any such vessel (whether a ship of war or merchantman) of the one belligerent and the subsequent departure therefrom of any ship of war of the other belligerent. And the time hereby limited for the departure of such ships of war respectively shall always in case of necessity be extended so far as may be requisite for giving effect to this proviso, but no further or otherwise.

"RULE III—No ship of war of either belligerent shall hereafter be permitted, while in any port, roadstead, or waters, subject to territorial jurisdiction of His Majesty, to take in any supplies except provisions and such other things as may be requisite for the subsistence of her crew and except so much coal only as may be sufficient to carry such vessel to the nearest port of her own country or to some nearer named, neutral destination; and no coal shall be again supplied to any such ship of war in the same or any other port, roadstead, or waters, subject to the territorial jurisdiction of His Majesty, without special permission until after the expiration of three months from the time when such coal may have been last supplied to her within British waters as aforesaid

"RULE IV—Armed ships of either belligerent are interdicted from carrying prizes made by them into the ports, harbours, roadsteads, or waters of the United Kingdom, the Isle of Man, the Channel Islands, or any of His Majesty's Colonies or possessions abroad

"The Governor or other chief authority of each of His Majesty's territories or possessions beyond the seas shall forthwith notify and publish the above rules."
